Joliet & Chicago Railroad Co.
Kansas City, St. Louis & Chicago Railroad Co.
Louisiana & Missouri River Railroad Co.

All three of the above railroads are under lease to the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company, which was placed in the hands of receivers on September 1st last. Since questions will probably arise in the course of the receivership proceedings in which the interests of the leased lines and those of either the bondholders or the stockholders, or both, of the Alton Company may be in conflict, and since the administration and control of the three leased companies is now in the hands of the Alton Company, representatives of several of the large individual holdings of stock in the leased companies have formed a committee to safeguard the interests of all the independent stockholders of the leased lines in the proceedings growing out of the Alton receivership. Accordingly, the undersigned request all holders of stock in the leased railroads to forward to the Committee, if they have not already done so, their proxies to protect the interests of the leased lines, and for that purpose to intervene in the Alton receivership proceedings, if necessary. No deposit of stock is requested at this time. Copies of the proxies may be obtained upon application at the office of the Chairman, Mr. Joseph Walker, 61 Broadway, New York City.

Learning Your Three A's

MANY realize late in life—but not too late—the utter folly of attempting fortune-making through speculation.

Others speculate without realizing that they do. They are not impartially informed on the securities they hold nor guarded against the resulting loss as are investors guided by Moody's three A Rating.

They have not the protection provided through Moody's Ratings and Service.

It is never too late to learn. If you will ask for our free booklet "The Art of Wise Investing" you will learn much to benefit you in your investments.

From a letter of Mr. Spencer K. Mulford, President, we summarize as follows:

BUSINESS: The business was established in 1852 and incorporated in 1904 under the present name. Mr. Spencer K. Mulford, President of the Company, has been actively associated with the business for fifty years. In 1917, he and his associates acquired the entire capital stock and in the same year sold 50% of their holdings to Swift & Company. In 1919, the Swift holdings were transferred with the other leather assets of Swift & Company, to the National Leather Company—of which the Swifts individually are the principal stockholders. England, Walton & Co., Inc., are the largest tanners in the world of oak belting butts for the manufacture of power transmission belting and the largest producers in the United States of high-grade oak tanned sole leather.

PROPERTY: The plant consists of six modern tanneries, an extract plant and sufficient timber acreage to furnish a reserve of bark supply, constituting one of the largest and best balanced units in the industry.

Tanning capacity 2000 hides per day. Average annual output 20,000,000 pounds of leather.

ASSETS:

|---|---|
| Fixed Tangible Assets on which these bonds are a direct first mortgage | $2,437,847 |
| Net Current Assets, after deducting all Current Liabilities | 3,489,458 |

Total net assets amount to $3,951 for each $1,000 Bond and net quick assets amount to $2,326 for each $1,000 Bond.

EARNINGS: In 70 years of operation the Company has never failed to earn a profit except in the two fiscal years 1920 and 1921, when substantial operating profits were earned but net losses resulted from declines in inventory values.

After deducting all taxes, interest charges, depreciation and the losses of 1920 and 1921, average net earnings applicable to Bond Interest have been as follows:

1. Pre-War Period, 1910-1914 inclusive, $395,626 or more than 4 times Bond Interest.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Our distinguished guest, M. Clemenceau, believes himself charged with a solemn message and has come to deliver it; his past services and his earnestness of conviction deserve at least an almost affectionate respect. No living man has a greater title to a serious hearing. He presents the French view, and has every right to speak for France. It is hard to believe—even when we remember that France has never forgotten 1871—that any important European nation has not had a surfeit of war and that Germany is gathering material and counting upon alliances for another outbreak. Yet it is irresistibly natural and hence excusable in France to feel uneasy and to plead the lack and need of some form of effectual safeguard; had we such a neighbor, we should feel the same. Hence we must not, in justice, deride her fears, though we may think the danger overstated.

M. Clemenceau appeals to the old friendship, and when General Pershing laid a wreath on an illustrious tomb and said "Lafayette, we are here," it was something more than sentiment or rhetoric. The "heart and soul" of America are besought of us, although our visitor has not suggested any specific form of alliance. Upon what he would have us do he is vague, but he wants sympathy and an "understanding" that America will hereafter be found "with" the two major nations of Europe in favor of peace.

Very deep and very strong feelings naturally turn into strong expression, and M. Clemenceau may have slightly failed in tact in seeming to complain of us. Sweeping and harsh words never aid a good cause and always tempt to bitterness and reply in kind. So it is unfortunate that he has let slip a few expressions which a more careful study might have softened, and these seem likely to produce recriminations; they should not, for when a man is on the rack he should be forgiven if he is carried out of the balanced periods of diplomatic intercourse.

It is best to be honest, and to forego any boast that America alone won the war; grant that we were indispensable, does the last stroke fell the tree? It is well to realize, on the other hand, that there is a limit to possible intervention on the part of the United States. No one to-day advocates complete isolation from the rest of the world. As a matter of fact isolation received a blow when Perry broke into Japan; another when Dewey broke into Manila, both of which events long antedated our action of 1917. The parable of the Good Samaritan was told in answer to a scoffing inquiry, who is my neighbor. In one very real and practical sense every man is his own neighbor, and a nation is only a mass of neighbors, because an enlightened self-interest perceives that regard for others is the surest seed of welfare for one's self.

But to desire to be free from European political entanglements is not to espouse isolation. Central Europe is the battleground of the ages, and it is not only natural that we should want to escape becoming mixed up in ancient feuds and rivalries, but there is the further restraining influence that absolutely nothing could be gained either for ourselves or for Europe by allowing ourselves to be drawn into the European maelstrom. The United States has no wish to be either the policeman or the arbiter of Europe. Each of the European Powers, large and small, has its own distinct interests. These interests often clash. On such occasions we may have our own ideas as to which is right and which is wrong. But shall we therefore rush in to the rescue of the one and the destruction of the other, for there must always be contemplation of a resort to force to compel a settlement where other means fail. Ponder what that would mean. It is not alone a clash between Germany and France or a clash between Germany and the Allies that we have to consider, but a possible clash among the Allies themselves. The question then comes up, Are we prepared to take sides with Great Britain against France or with the latter against Great Britain, or, perchance, with Italy against either or both of the other two. Obviously not. We have no such duty and it would be folly to assume it, no matter how earnest the request to that end.

After all, we Americans did not enter the war out of altruism, but in self-defense. The tinkling statement that we entered it to make the world safe for democracy it is now seen was largely rhetorical, though it is undeniable that in the wild frenzy of war many of us placed implicit faith in it and it served to infuse the American "doughboy" with a spirit of the utmost enthusiasm. France will always remain nearest our hearts, but Europe must solve its own problems, because neither the United States nor any other country can solve them for her. A thousand Clemenceaus, pleading the cause of France with most entrancing eloquence, could not and should not swerve us from that course. In the meantime economic help from private sources will not be lacking where deserving, each proposition standing on its own merits. In the meantime, also, we can render inestimable service by continuing to set an example of a nation with industrial ideals ever uppermost, at peace with its neighbors and with all the world—and intending to remain so unless again wantonly attacked as in 1917.

Merchandise exports from the United States during last month exceeded in value the exports of any other month in the past year and a half, and considering the enormous reduction in values since that time, as shown in a review of the foreign trade of this country for the fiscal year ended June 30, published in the "Chronicle" last week, quantitative exports in October this year were fully 30% greater than in March 1921, based on the comparison in values as reported for these two months. In October, merchandise exports amounted in value to $372,000,000. These figures contrast with $317,000,000 for the preceding month and with $343,330,815 for October 1921. In March 1921 merchandise exports from the United States were valued at $387,000,000 and in no single month since that time, as already stated, has the value of merchandise shipments from the United States been higher than it was last month. Yet export prices have declined during that period, on some of the products entering largely into the volume of exports, 25 or 30%, and in some instances the decline has been even greater. The monthly merchandise export totals in the intervening period have been as low as $250,700,000, which was the total value of merchandise exports from this country in February last, and at that time the decline in export prices had reached its full limit, very little of the variation in valuse since then being attributable to further price declines. In fact, in some instances export values are on a little higher plane now than they were six months or a year ago, although the difference is not large either way.

As to the merchandise imports, unfortunately the figures for October are not yet available, as the intricacies of the new tariff law, which became effective in September last, had made it impossible to tabulate the returns up to the time that the statement of merchandise exports was completed.

A matter of some interest in the foreign trade statement was the relatively large movement of gold out of the United States during October. Gold shipments in that month reached $18,000,000, the largest for any month since November 1920, or for nearly two years. It is understood that the shipments of gold were almost entirely to Canada and have to do with exchange between New York and Montreal, exchange at the latter point having recently gone to a premium. Gold exports from the United States in September were only $1,398,607, and for the ten months of the calendar year, including the $18,000,000 last month, amounted to $31,000,000. For the corresponding ten months of the preceding calendar year the gold shipments were $21,000,000. Imports of gold into the United States during October were $21,000,000. These figures contrast with $29,315,941 for the preceding month and with $47,000,000 in October 1921. For the ten months of the calendar year gold imports have been $230,000,000, compared with $608,000,000 for the ten months ending October 1921. Silver imports last month were $4,000,000, this contrasting with $6,370,000 for the preceding month and with $7,000,000 for the corresponding month last year, while silver exports in October were $3,000,000, contrasting with $3,735,000 for the preceding month and with $5,000,000 in October 1921.

The formal assembling of the British Parliament, with the King's speech, in which he dealt with the Irish Bill, unemployment and the Lausanne Conference; the selection by Wilhelm Cuno of a new German Cabinet, which went before the Reichstag for the first time yesterday; the assembling of the Lausanne Conference in an effort to find a solution for the Near East problems, were the outstanding events in European affairs. Apparently the Labor Party will lead a strong opposition in the British Parliament. Doubt has been expressed in Berlin cable advices that the new German Cabinet will be able to stand long. Both the Turkish delegates and Premier Mussolini of Italy gave the British and French delegates at Lausanne considerable annoyance by their persistency and disregard of diplomatic procedure. The Italian Parliament is expected to pass to-day a bill conferring full authority upon the Cabinet until the end of this year. Such a measure has been reported favorably by a special committee. In the event of it going through, as is expected, the Italian Parliament is scheduled to adjourn until January.

The British Parliament convened last Monday, Nov. 20, following the general election on Nov. 15. It was opened officially at 2.45 p. m. The Associated Press correspondent called attention to the fact that "in this Parliament Ireland, with the exception of part of Ulster, is not represented. In it the Labor Party appears as the chief contender for recognition as the Opposition." He added that "the proceedings started with the usual formalities." In describing the opening of the House of Commons the correspondent said: "The rush of members to the House to obtain their seats for the opening session was the biggest since the war, and long before 8 o'clock, when the doors opened, a small crowd had gathered to 'peg' claims for favored places. When the doors opened the members rushed in, snatched cards from the attendants and raced up the steps for the desired positions. Among those obtaining the coveted corner seats from which Governments have been enfilated in the past were Lady Astor and Lloyd George. The latter's card was placed on a seat by a deputy, but Lady Astor personally seized the corner seat on the Government side. The place next to her was taken by Colonel Gresham, champion of the liquor interests. This Parliament is the smallest since the union with Ireland in 1801. The session past was the thirty-first Parliament of 'the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland,' but Ireland, with the exception of a part of Ulster, is no longer represented in the imperial legislative body, whose membership is correspondingly reduced." Announcement was made that "King George would formally open the session on Thursday."

Before adjournment was taken John Henry Whitely was re-elected Speaker. On Thursday "the King opened Parliament with all the pomp associated with that historic ceremony. The pageantry of the procession interested many Americans in London, who lined the route to see the King and Queen ride from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords," according to the London correspondent of "The Sun" of this city. He added that "the King's speech to his new Parliament was the shortest in history. He told the Lords and Commons that they were called together to pass the bill setting up the Free State in Ireland by Dec. 6. He also said that measures were being taken by the Government to promote trade, and reduce unemployment. The Commons would be asked, continued the King, to make a loan to Austria. Finally, he prayed for the success of the Lausanne Conference in settling the peace of the Near East." The correspondent observed that "the unemployed who demonstrated yesterday showed no sign of trouble in to-day's pageant. They are still waiting to see Bonar Law." Inasmuch as the Labor Party is now recognized as the leader of the Opposition, more than usual attention was given to the criticism of the King's speech by its leader, James Ramsey Macdonald. He was quoted by the Associated Press as declaring that "the statement in the King's address regarding unemployment was profoundly unsatisfactory to Labor." Mr. Macdonald said also that "the Laborites proposed to introduce an amendment to the speech from the throne to show what Labor would do to relieve the situation. He appealed to Premier Bonar Law to receive the delegation of unemployed leaders that has been trying to gain an audience for some days." The Associated Press said also that "Mr. Macdonald pledged the assistance of Labor in passing the Irish bill, ratifying the treaty and legalizing the Free State." The accounts of the session further stated that "Prime Minister Bonar Law in a brief speech said the first of the two Irish bills would be taken up by the House next Monday and that they would continue under consideration until completed, which he hoped would be by Wednesday. He believed the Provisional Irish Government was doing its best, and he was sure that Great Britain would do nothing to give it any excuse for going back on the treaty." Former Premier Lloyd George was unanimously elected leader of the National Liberal Party. There was a rumor in London on Thursday that he had proposed "a reunion of the Asquithian and Lloyd George Liberals."

In the first division in the newly elected House of Commons, which took place yesterday afternoon, the present Ministry was victorious by a majority of 103 over the Laborite opposition. The vote was taken on a proposal of Prime Minister Bonar Law that "the Government be empowered to take all the time of the House for Government business during this session." It was carried by a vote of 238 to 135. The Premier also introduced "the bill putting into effect the Constitution of the Irish Free State and the Free State 'consequential provision bill.'" Both measures were given their first formal reading.

Just one hour after the convening of the British Parliament (without making any allowance for the difference in time) the Near East Peace Conference at Lausanne, Switzerland, assembled. The first session opened officially at 3.45 p. m. President Haab of Switzerland presided and delivered the address of welcome. Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, replied in behalf of the delegates. The accounts stated that "the opening proceedings were concluded at 4.15 p. m." The conference reassembled the following morning at 11 o'clock "in the Hotel Du Chateau, at Ouchy." Sunday evening Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon dined with Premier Mussolini of Italy at Territel, a short distance from Lausanne. They had expected to meet him at Lausanne, but the new Italian Prime Minister was reported to have insisted that they meet him at Territel. At the opening session Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, "read a prepared address in a confident tone," in which he declared that "permanent peace could never be realized until the nations mutually respected one another's rights to liberty and independence." The correspondent noted that "the Turkish delegates, numbering about fifteen, had seats adjoining the Bulgarian representatives. All the Turks were in conventional morning suits, without fezzes." President Haab in his opening address "pleaded earnestly for moderation and conciliation and was heartily applauded. Lord Curzon, in responding, said he fervently hoped that this would be the last of the peace conferences and that after it the memories of the cruel and devastating war would forever disappear." The Associated Press correspondent observed specially that "satisfaction was evinced when it became known that the United States had designated its Ambassador to Italy, its Minister to Switzerland and Rear Admiral Bristol to watch the proceedings; even greater became the interest in the conference when a few hours before the session opened it was intimated that the United States representatives would raise their voices at the meeting whenever it was in the interest of the United States and Americans to do so." Richard Washburn Child, American Ambassador to Italy, explained at Tuesday's session of the conference "the position of the observers for the United States." He stated that "America was much interested in the Near Eastern settlement, and its observers would attend the meetings and join in the discussions, but were not authorized to be members of commissions, to sign reports, or to vote on the decisions."

Cabling from Lausanne last Sunday evening, the special representative there of the New York "Tribune" said that "Premier Poincare, Marquis Curzon and Premier Mussolini, after a secret parley at the village of Territet to-day, returned to Lausanne shortly before midnight, announcing that they had affirmed the Allied agreement to work on the basis of cordial friendship and equality in the Near East conference. This final affirmation appears to remove the last vestige of a posssibility that the Turks will not find the most solid kind of a wall against them here if they attempt to push their claims a paragraph beyond the main limits already agreed upon with the Allies, including the terms of the Mudania armistice." The same correspondent added: "Mussolini's appearance here to-night with Poincare and Curzon when they returned from meeting him at Territet had not been expected. He went immediately with his staff to the big hotel, Beaurivage. The diplomatic propensities of the Fascisti chief were shown in his insistence on the troublesome trip of Poincare and Curzon to the Territet rendezvous, an undertaking that caused the former much annoyance, and by his formal demand that Italy be received in the main conference on the basis of 'equality' as the price of his accord, thus salvaging his pride and adding to his prestige at home."

In the accounts of Monday's session that came to hand Tuesday morning it was made perfectly clear that Premier Mussolini, by his lack of experience in diplomatic negotiations and his dictatorial attitude, created more than one tense situation within the first 24 hours of his stay at Lausanne, and even earlier yet, as already outlined. The New York "Herald" correspondent cabled that "it is the problem of Benito Mussolini, not that of the Moslem world, that for the moment is agitating the Lausanne Conference, which opened formally here to-day. The gravity of the situation in which France and Great Britain have been placed by the arrival of this new figure, with the power of a dictator in one of the three countries that have been acting together, was emphasized to-night when Mussolini in effect kicked over the traces and, instead of agreeing, as hoped, to Lord Curzon's memorandum defining the Allied position in the face of the Turks, made six reservations, which appear to be of the most vital importance." The correspondent, in outlining further the problems that Mussolini had set up, said: "His position rests in part upon the fact that the Allies in Paris, in the absence of Vittorio Orlando, then Premier of Italy, made the original distribution of the colonies to be mandated, leaving Italy out. Mussolini's actions flabbergasted the French and British, who do not know how to deal with him. Naturally, the effect will be to throw M. Poincare and Lord Curzon into a combination against Mussolini as a Fascista leader, holding, as he does, and as recent events seem to prove, almost absolute power in Italy. He believes he holds the cards for Italy and has promised his followers that he will play them to take some tricks for Italy." According to the New York "Times" representative, "by his general attitude Mussolini has created the impression among the other diplomats that he will not last long. They say he is too inexperienced to conduct the affairs of a great nation. That is the opinion of diplomats whom the Italian has unquestionably ruffled in the last two days."

At Tuesday's session the Turks seemed to give the British and French special trouble by reason of their demands. Mussolini's name scarcely was mentioned. The New York "Times" correspondent stated that "the presence of American delegates at the peace conference was the occasion of an important incident to-day. On the ground that the Washington Government had no right to be represented at a conference to make peace between Turkey and the Powers with whom she had been at war, the Turkish delegation made a formal protest at this morning's meeting against America's taking part in the conference, as well as against the representation asked for by Spain, Norway and Holland." The correspondent added that "by the energetic intervention of Lord Curzon the issue was avoided, but the Turks declare to-night that the matter is not settled." He also said that "the second day of the conference was marked by three other developments: First, a partial agreement of England, France and Italy on the program of peace with Turkey; second, the initial clash between the Allies and the Turks; third, the organization of committees and a decision for secrecy." The program referred to consists of 15 points, which embrace an equal number of difficult situations or problems. The New York "Times" representative commented as follows upon the outlook for accomplishing much at the conference: "The actual beginning of the conference by no means effaces the early view that the making of a satisfactory peace with the Kemalists will be a difficult and delicate task. With the English insisting on remaining on the Straits for the present, a proposal to which the French have not agreed; with the Turks ready to support impossible demands, as, for instance, one for a plebiscite in Egypt; with Russia keeping the rest guessing, and with almost every one else fearing that Mussolini will make trouble, the outlook is far from rosy." At Tuesday's session the delegates also organized and appointed three committees, "the first one on territorial matters, presided over by Lord Curzon; the second on the status of foreigners in Turkey, presided over by Marquis Garroni, and the third on financial and economic issues, presided over by Ambassador Barrere."

The following excerpts from a long cablegram to the New York "Times" apparently give a pretty good pen picture of the new Italian Premier: "Mussolini, short and radiant, is the enfant terrible among the Allied statesmen. They decide on secrecy, and he spends half his day receiving correspondents. Rules and regulations he delights to break. He is as full of ideas as an Italian lemon is of juice and his manner of squirting them in the eyes of diplomats causes the solemn prediction on their part that this audacious young man, seeming to them to be drunk with new-won power, will not last. It is not according to the rules that he should do so. The Fascisti Premier's mannerisms, which his friends call evidence of genius, they call freshness. Fancy his telling Lord Curzon, his Britannic Majesty's Foreign Secretary, that 'Italy is tired of being England's chambermaid,' and his telling Premier Poincare of France, former President of the republic, that it is a joke to think that the Germans will ever pay reparations. Mussolini has the English and French diplomats guessing. His claim for the Dodbacanese Islands, which England wishes Greece to have, has Curzon stirred up, whereas his readiness to agree to send more troops to Turkey if need be pleases Curzon and leaves Poincare worried." When asked to define his foreign policy, Mussolini was quoted as saying: "That is simple. My foreign policy has one principle—'Rien pour rien'—(nothing for nothing). When other Powers ask me to do something I respond: 'What does Italy get out of it?' I insist on that question. It, of course, may not be agreeable after Italy has been doing things for nothing for so long. Henceforth, Italy has to have her share when there is any dividing up. You Americans tried an altruistic foreign policy and I do not comment on the results. We are trying another kind. There is not a bit of altruism in our foreign policy. It is 'rien pour rien.'" With regard to the Russian Soviets he was reported to have said: "I don't like the Soviets. Personally, I hate them. But I don't consider that it is my business what sort of a Government Russia has. The Soviets are established in Russia and are Russia's Government to-day. There can be no successful settlement of the Straits issue without Russia, and the Straits are tied up with the whole Near East arrangement. If the Russians were to arrive to-night and ask for full participation they would be backed by the Italian delegation."

Somewhat more progress appears to have been made at or outside of Wednesday's session. It was stated that "Mussolini to-day conferred at length with Ismet Pasha concerning the future Italian position in regard to Turkey, and Ismet also talked with Lord Curzon. The present developments indicate an attempt to reach a private understanding outside the conference, with the hope of hastening a settlement." That the Turks did not hesitate to make demands and to be insistent about them was shown in the dispatches from day to day. In his account of Wednesday's proceedings at the conference, the New York "Times" representative said that "the Turks to-day received the first concrete evidence since the conference opened that when they defeated Constantine's army they did not win a victory over the Allied Powers. This morning they presented a demand for the holding of a plebiscite in Western Thrace. Ex-Premier Venizelos for Greece opposed the demand, asking that the status of Western Thrace be not discussed here. The Jugoslavs and Rumanians supported the Greeks. At the afternoon session Alexander Stambuliwski, the Bulgarian Premier, asked that his country obtain the outlet to the Aegean Sea through Western Thrace that had been promised by the Allies. Replies to the Turkish and Bulgarian proposals were made by Lord Curzon, for England; Camille Barrere, Ambassador to Rome, for France, and the Marquis Garroni, for Italy. They said that the Allies were agreed in refusing the Turkish demand for a plebiscite in Western Thrace. As for the Bulgar demand, they were all in favor of giving the Bulgars an outlet to the Aegean, but differed as to how such access should be given. They showed that they intended to leave Greece the sovereignty over Western Thrace."

Neither Premier Poincare nor Premier Mussolini stayed very long at Lausanne. Announcement was made early in the week that the former had been compelled to return to Paris on account of "urgent business." The latter left for Rome Wednesday evening. The Lausanne representative of the Philadelphia "Public Ledger" cabled Thursday evening that "conversations with both Premier Mussolini and the Bolshevist emissary, M. Vorowsky, confirmed my belief that the near future will see Italy's de jure recognition of Soviet Russia, and that both countries are supporting the same Turkish policy here."

The outlook for the conference appeared somewhat brighter at the close of Thursday's proceedings. The New York "Times" correspondent cabled that "the Lausanne Conference has about solved successfully the first two ticklish problems tackled. Bulgaria is to get her outlet to the Aegean and the Turks will back down on their demand for a plebiscite in Western Thrace. There must be lots of manoeuvring before this result is official, but it is assured as a result of to-day's developments." On the other hand, the New York "Herald" correspondent asserted that "Turkey and Russia are here to make common cause against the other nations of Europe. There is no longer any doubt about that. Behind them also, it appears from what is happening in Lausanne, they have gathered as auxiliaries all the discontented elements in the countries now under European control in Asia and Africa. The delegations from these countries are meeting constantly under the tutelage of the Turks. Unless the Turks can be detached from the Russians by the most expert manoeuvring, the situation, as is becoming evident every day here, bristles with dangers such as never confronted the Paris peace conference."

Although the dispatches from Rome last week stated that Premier Mussolini, in his first speech in the Chamber of Deputies, did not ask for a formal vote of confidence, that body, a week ago last evening, gave him such a vote, the count being 306 to 116. According to the Associated Press correspondent "the minority vote came from Socialist, Communist and Republican Deputies and a few adherents of former Premier Nitti." Announcement was made in a cablegram from Rome Tuesday morning that "by 7 votes to 2 the commission, under the Presidency of ex-Premier Salandra, which was charged with examining the proposed law for conferring full powers on the Mussolini Government until Dec. 31 1923, has approved the measure, which will be submitted to Parliament when it reopens Nov. 23."

The Premier returned from Lausanne Thursday and took part in the discussion of the bill. It is expected to pass to-day. Announcement was made that "after the passage of the bill the Chamber will adjourn until January, when Mussolini will introduce a bill for the reform of the electoral law. This is now being drafted. The Deputies therefore are assured of their Parliamentary life over Christmas and the New Year."

According to an Associated Press cablegram from Rome Thursday morning, "wine, which, next to bread, is the commodity most largely consumed by Italians, will be the first item upon which the tax will be increased by the Mussolini Government in its attempt to raise revenues to balance the budget. Italians eat annually 65,000,000 quintals of bread and drink 55,000,000 hectolitres of wine, upon which a tax of 20 lire per hectolitre is now assessed, bringing in a revenue of 1,100,000,000 lires. The Government has decided to raise the tax to 50 lire per hectolitre, which will increase the revenue from wine to 2,750,000,000 lire."

It became known in Berlin on Monday that Wilhelm Cuno was experiencing great difficulty in selecting a Cabinet. Official announcement of the names of the members of the new Cabinet was made Tuesday evening in Berlin. In commenting upon the political affiliations of the men the Associated Press correspondent called attention to the fact that there are four hold-overs from the Wirth Cabinet, viz.: Andreas Hermes, Minister of Finance; Dr. Heinrich Braun, Minister of Labor, both of whom belong to the Clerical Party; Dr. O. Gessler, Minister of Defense, and Gen. Wilhelm Groener, Minister of Transportation, Democrats. The former official positions of the other members were given as follows: "Baron von Rosenberg, at present German Minister to Denmark, served as departmental chief in the Foreign Office before and during the war. Drs. Heinze and Becker of the German People's Party served in the Fehrenbach Cabinet. Henrich Albert, former Secretary of the Chancellery, was German Commercial Agent in the United States at the time of the breaking off of relations between the two countries. Rudolph Oeser, Democratic member of the Prussian Diet, is a well-known economist. Herr Stingl up to the present has been chief of the Bavarian section of the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs. Herr Mueller, new Food Controller, is Director of the Rhenish Agricultural Chamber. Only seven active Parliamentarians are represented in the new Ministry, the Democrats supplying three, the Clericals two and the German People's Party two. Baron von Rosenberg, Herr Stingl and Herman Mueller are regarded as non-partisan, while the new Secretary of the Chancellery, Eduard Hamm, who was Bavarian Minister of Commerce and Industry, is a Democratic member of the Reichstag. Dr. Albert, the Minister of the Treasury, is a member of a group party, but is not active politically. The only two Ministers in the new Cabinet who are doubtful are Baron von Rosenberg and Rudolph Oeser. Chancellor Cuno, however, expects to have their definite acceptances early to-morrow [Wednesday]." Official announcement of this acceptance was noted in Berlin cable advices yesterday.

The Associated Press correspondent said that "indications point to the probability that the new Government's program will be wholly based on the last Ministry's note to the Reparations Commission. Inasmuch as this program received the approval of the former Coalition parties and the German People's Party, it is not improbable that the new Cabinet will dispense with the formality of asking for a vote of confidence." The new Cabinet made its first appearance in the Reichstag yesterday, when the Chancellor "read the Government's program." This will be followed to-day "by the customary partisan discussions, upon the temper of which will depend whether Herr Cuno will ask for a vote of confidence." Chancellor Cuno, in a declaration to the Reichstag yesterday of the new Government's policy, asserted that "Germany must have a complete moratorium on reparations in cash and in kind, except deliveries for the devastated areas, for three or four years, and must obtain a loan of 500,000,000 gold marks to stabilize her finances." He added that "the Government had fully adopted the note sent by the late Wirth Government to the Reparations Commisison on Nov. 13, and was resolved on executing the program that note contained."

The controversy between the Allied authorities and the German Government with respect to reparations and observance of the Versailles Treaty has received considerable attention. Word came from Paris a week ago to-day through an Associated Press dispatch, that "the Allied Powers, through the Council of Ambassadors, have informed Germany that all questions concerning the withdrawal of the Military Control Commission in Germany have been suspended until the German Government gives the fullest satisfaction for what are termed flagrant violations of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles committed during the last six months, and until she shows willingness to abide by the Commission's instructions." In outlining the note still further, the correspondent said that "the Allied note of to-day demands an apology and reparations for recent incidents at Passau and Stettin. In requesting an immediate reply, the Allies say their patience is about exhausted. The Council of Ambassadors also is making another demand for the German naval enlistment list, which has been repeatedly refused them during the last six months. It is said the Allies suspect that Germany is exceeding her quota of enlistments and violating the conditions of training provided for in the peace treaty. A decision has been reached by the Allies to warn Germany that she will not be permitted to manufacture new war inventions in which she at present is said to be actively engaged. The Allies cannot prevent study or experiments of such inventions, but it is asserted they will prohibit the making of them."

Announcement was made in a Paris cablegram Tuesday that "Sir John Bradbury, British member of the Reparations Commission, is going to London to-night to learn the definite policy of the new British Government regarding reparations. The indications, as seen here, are that the policy will not be materially different from that followed by the Lloyd George Ministry, except that it is thought Great Britain probably would agree now to declare Germany voluntarily bankrupt if she failed to carry out the eventual decision of the Allies as to reparations payments." The Associated Press correspondent added that "the British Government has not yet finally decided to approve the holding of the Brussels Conference for consideration of reparations problems and Allied war debts, according to information in British reparations circles, and much will depend upon the outcome of the conference between Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Bonar Law, which is expected to be held within the next ten days. The British Government authorities desire certain assurances that the conference would be likely to prove successful before they commit themselves to it, while the French are continuing to exert all their influence in favor of the holding of the meeting."

Premier Poincare, of France, as well as Premier Mussolini of Italy, received votes of confidence from their respective legislative bodies before leaving for the Near East Peace Conference at Lausanne. The count in M. Poincare's favor in the Chamber of Deputies was 462 to 71. The vote was given "following a lengthy explanation of his foreign policy, in which he emphasized France's momentous need for friendly relations with England on the reparations question as well as the Near Eastern." The New York "Herald" correspondent in reporting the Premier's speech said that he "offered cold comfort to both Turkey and Germany, proclaiming his belief in Allied solidarity on the two problems which now agitate Europe. The Chamber enthusiastically applauded his announcement that he would not wait until to-morrow [last Saturday] to confer with Lord Curzon, but would see the British Foreign Minister shortly after his arrival from England to-night."

The sensational political development in Ireland was the execution at 7 o'clock yesterday morning in Dublin of Erskine Childers, an aid of Eamon de Valera. The technical charge on which he was tried on Nov. 17 before a military court at Portobello Barracks, Dublin, was that he had in his possession an automatic pistol "without proper authority." Childers was an ardent supporter of the Irish Republic and strongly opposed to ratification of the treaty for setting up the Irish Free State, "on the ground that it meant absorption of Ireland in the British Empire." He was defeated last June in the election for the South Irish Parliament, "receiving fewer votes than any other candidate in the whole election."

Fear was expressed in Dublin cable advices last evening that the execution of Childers would result in further violence on the part of the followers of De Valera. In most of the dispatches Childers was spoken of as his "right-hand man."

There has been no change in official discounts at leading European centres, from 10% in Berlin; 5½% in Madrid; 5% in France, Denmark and Norway; 4½% in Belgium and Sweden; 4% in Holland; 3½% in Switzerland, and 3% in London. Open market discount rates in London were a shade lower, with long and short bills fractionally down to 2 7-16@2 9-16%, compared with 2⅝@2 11-16% last week. Call money was also easier, and declined to 1¾%, as against 2% a week ago. In Paris and Switzerland the open market discount rate continued to be quoted at 4½% and 2%, respectively, the same as in the week preceding.

The Bank of England in its statement for the week ending Nov. 23 reported another small gain in gold holdings, this time of £4,245, which brought the Bank's stock of gold up to £127,445,261, as against £128,438,365 last year and £124,112,851 in 1920. As a result of another contraction in note circulation of £495,000, total reserve increased £499,000, while the proportion of reserve to liabilities moved up to 19.84%, in comparison with 19.60% a week ago, 16.88% in 1921 and 11.83% the year before that. Temporary loans to the Government by the Bank were reduced £103,000, although loans on other securities expanded £698,000. An increase of £3,185,000 was shown in public deposits, but a drawing down in "other" deposits of £2,131,000. Total reserve now stands at £24,487,000, which compares with £23,582,450 a year ago and £14,598,036 in 1920. Note circulation is £121,407,000, as against £123,305,915 and £127,964,815 one and two years ago, respectively, while loans aggregate £66,841,000, in comparison with £83,571,744 last year and £74,106,764 in 1920. The official discount rate continues to be quoted at 3%, unchanged. Clearings through the London banks for the week were £689,783,000. A week ago the total was £672,385,000 and in the corresponding week of the previous year £658,631,000. We append a statement of comparisons of the principal items of the Bank of England's returns for a series of years:

The Bank of France in its weekly statement reports a further small gain of 194,025 francs in its gold item this week. This brings the Bank's gold holdings up to 5,533,763,875 francs, which compares with 5,524,042,894 francs on the corresponding date last year and with 5,491,696,847 francs the year previous; of these amounts 1,897,967,056 francs were held abroad in 1922 and 1,948,367,056 francs in both 1921 and 1920. During the week increases were registered in the various other items as follows: Silver, 165,000 francs; bills discounted, 223,905,000 francs; advances, 1,095,000 francs; Treasury deposits, 42,943,000 francs; and general deposits, 157,450,000 francs. A further large contraction of 531,865,000 francs occurred in note circulation, the reduction in this item in the past two weeks exceeding one billion one hundred million francs. The total of notes outstanding is thus brought down to 35,789,381,000 francs, this contrasting with 36,336,275,435 francs at the corresponding time last year and with 38,806,732,995 francs the year before. In 1914, just prior to the outbreak of war, the amount was only 6,683,184,785 francs. Comparisons of the various items in this week's return with the statement of last week and corresponding dates in both 1921 and 1920 are as follows:

Still another huge addition to note circulation was shown by the statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany, issued as of Nov. 15, in round numbers 65,068,856,000 marks, while discount and Treasury bills increased 67,444,067,000 marks, bills of exchange and checks 49,006,647,000 marks, and deposits 61,560,259,000 marks. Smaller increases were recorded, —1,990,497,000 marks in Treasury and loan association notes, 2,402,000 marks in notes of other banks, 11,448,525,000 marks in advances and 2,439,171,000 marks in "other" liabilities. There was a decrease in investments of 4,133,000 marks and of 814,282,000 marks in other assets. With the gain recorded above, the Bank's note circulation has attained the enormous total of 582,105,024,000 marks. Gold holdings remain without important change at 1,004,848,000 marks, a loss for the week of 4,000 marks. Total coin and bullion, however, fell 5,437,000 marks.

The Federal Reserve Bank statement, issued on Thursday afternoon, was featured by a material lessening in bill holdings, both locally and nationally, which is taken by bankers to indicate that autumnal demands for accommodation are on the wane. Coincidentally with this, the System reported a gain in gold reserves of $15,000,000 and the New York Bank of $35,000,000; the latter being in part at the expense of the other Reserve banks. For the combined System total bill holdings declined $42,000,000; earning assets fell $73,000,000 and deposits $45,000,000. At the local institution bill holdings decreased $48,000,000, to $221,201,830, which compares with $242,560,000 last year. For the twelve reporting banks, the total, however, is still far below that of a year ago, being $871,596,000 against $1,274,545,000. At New York substantial reductions were shown in earning assets and deposits, while both statements show substantial reductions in the volume of Federal Reserve notes in circulation. On the other hand, member banks' reserve account was drawn down, so far as the System is concerned, there having been a contraction of about $30,000,000, to $1,829,069,000. Locally, the account gained slightly, to $713,568,000. As a result of the changes just noted, reserve ratios were advanced, for the System, 1.5%, to 76.7%, and in New York, to 82.9%, a gain of 4.2%.

The feature of the New York associated bank statement, issued on Saturday, was the wiping out of all surplus reserves and the establishment of a deficit of more than $19,000,000. This was the result of the strain incidental to heavy Nov. 15 interest payments on the part of the Government and was directly due to the drawing down of credits at the Reserve Bank by member banks. Changes in other items were less striking and included an addition to the loan account of $6,577,000 and a decline in net demand deposits of $1,330,000, which brought the total to $3,796,514,000. This is exclusive of Government deposits of $66,318,000, a shrinkage in the latter of $3,878,000 for the week. Time deposits, on the other hand, expanded $1,016,000, to $437,895,000. Cash in own vaults of members of the Federal Reserve Bank was reduced $4,857,000, to $55,675,000 (not counted as reserve). Reserves in own vaults of State banks and trust companies declined $88,000, but the reserve of these institutions kept in other depositories increased $350,000. As shown above, member banks drew on their reserves in the Reserve Bank to the extent of $55,499,000, and this in turn brought about a loss in surplus above legal requirements of $55,125,110, which after eliminating the excess reserve held a week ago, left a deficit of $19,642,600. The figures herein given for surplus are on the basis of 13% reserves above legal requirements for member banks of the Federal Reserve System, but not including cash in vault to the amount of $55,675,000 held by these banks on Saturday of last week.

The fluctuations in call money this week have been puzzling. One day it was reported that $10,000,000 was left over in the loaning department of the Stock Exchange. The next day call loans were not easy to arrange and the rates were advanced sharply. On Thursday there was a drop from 5% at the opening to 4% in the last hour. Apparently these fluctuations should not be taken as significant of important changes in the money market in either direction, when viewed in a broad way. There was little or no change in the time money market, the rate being held at 5%, with only a moderate demand. The Government was not a potent factor in the local money market. No withdrawals of its funds were reported. Its disbursements here were not large. Corporations did not appear as borrowers for large amounts. The offerings of new securities reached a fairly good-sized amount in the aggregate, however. There is a fair probability of several blocks of foreign Government bonds that have been in negotiation for some time being brought out in the near future. This observation includes a $50,000,000 loan to Cuba. While radical changes for the better have not taken place, the European political situation is spoken of as being a little less tense. Whether the new German Cabinet will last long is said to be a question. What the new British Cabinet and Parliament will accomplish remains to be seen. Already there are predictions that the tenure of office of Premier Mussolini of Italy is not likely to be of long duration. Uncertainty with respect to these various situations and others that might be mentioned naturally do not make for general economic and financial stability in Europe. This is bound to be a factor in this market for European bonds. In the United States building is still on a good-sized scale; general business keeps up very well, according to most accounts; some slackening in the steel industry is predicted. In a word, apparently the domestic commercial demand for funds will lessen gradually from now on until next spring.

Dealing with specific rates for money, call loans this week ranged between 4 and 5½%, as against 3½@5% last week. On Monday the high was 5%, with 4¼% the low and the ruling quotation. Tuesday increased firmness set in and there was an advance to 5½%; renewals were negotiated at 4½% and this was the low. There was no range on Wednesday, and 5% was the only rate quoted, this being the high, the low and the closing figure. On Thursday a decline to 4% was reported, but the renewal basis was still 5% and this was the maximum. Friday's range was 4¾@5%, with 4¾% the charge for renewals. Call funds were in freer supply and a feature of the late trading was the fact that several of the large banks made their appearance in the market as lenders. For fixed date money no change was noted and 5% continues to be quoted for all periods from sixty days to six months, the same as a week ago. Very little business is passing and no large loans were put through.

Mercantile paper rates remain at 4½@4¾% for sixty and ninety days' endorsed bills receivable and six months' names of choice character, with names not so well known at 4¾@5%, unchanged. Trading was quiet and featureless, with most of the limited business passing emanating from out-of-town institutions.

Banks' and bankers' acceptances were fairly active at unchanged quotations. Bankers appear to be taking more interest in the market than for quite some time and a fair turnover is reported. Both local and country banks figured in the dealings. For call loans against bankers' acceptances the posted rate of the American Acceptance Council is 4½%, which compares with 4% last week. The Acceptance Council makes the discount rates on prime bankers' acceptances eligible for purchase by the Federal Reserve banks 4⅛% bid and 4% asked for bills running 30, 60, 90 and 120 days, and 4½% bid and 4¼% asked for bills running 150 days. Fairly active trading with irregular movements, usually tending upward, were the most noteworthy features of the week's operations in sterling exchange, and the net result was a further advance to 4 49⅞ for demand, which is the highest point reached since the latter part of August, and more than 1 cent over the high level of the previous week. In the initial dealings trading was quiet and rates ran off slightly on account of renewed fears of international complications. For a time this caused an almost complete withdrawal from the market on the part of large operators. On Monday, however, a better feeling prevailed. The impression began to gain ground that the outcome of the Lausanne Conference would be favorable to exchange and substantial gains were established. Later in the week rumors of the type so frequently placed in circulation during the past year or so began to be heard, namely of the likelihood of failure of the conferrees at Lausanne to arrive at any definite agreement; but even this failed to have any important effect on quotations, and the final range sas very close to the best for the week.

Speculative interests were intermittently active during the week and short covering operations again played an important part in determining price levels; although it still remains true that this market is almost completely dominated by London. Foreign selling was in evidence part of the time, while domestic buying for ordinary commercial purposes assumed larger proportions than for some little time. No perceptible increase in the volume of bills offering is reported. Generally speaking, bankers appeared to take a favorable view of the exchange situation, on the ground that the Turkish trouble is in a fair way of being settled harmoniously; that the outlook for a reasonable adjustment of the reparations question is more promising; that the political party now in power in Great Britain will in all probability co-operate more fully with the other Allies, thus practically insuring peace and more stable conditions in Europe, and that British financial affairs continue to improve. Some attention was given in financial circles to the proposals of Sir Edgar Crammond, the British financial expert, which he claims would not only solve the present debt funding problem, but keep peace in the principal European countries for the next twenty-five years. At the same time, dealers continue to adopt a cautious attitude in the matter of making commitments and the bulk of the business passing is said to be of speculative origin.

Referring to quotations in greater detail, sterling exchange on Saturday last was a shade easier and demand declined fractionally to 4 47 9-16@4 48 1-16, cable transfers to 4 47 13-16@4 48 8-16 and sixty days to 4 45 7-16@4 45 9-16, on quiet trading. On Monday there was a sharp advance, mainly on higher London quotations and short covering, which carried prices here up to 4 47⅞@4 49¾ for demand, 4 48⅛@4 50 for cable transfers, and 4 45⅝@4 47½ for sixty days; increased activity was noted. Rates were maintained on Tuesday, although the general trend of the market was reactionary; demand ranged at 4 48¼@4 49¾; cable transfers at 4 48½@4 50, and sixty days at 4 46 3-16@4 47½. Wednesday's market was moderately active and quotations were firmly held, at 4 48 5-16@4 49⅝ for demand, 4 48 9-16@4 49⅞ for cable transfers, and 4 46 3-16 @4 47½ for sixty days; foreign news was regarded as more encouraging. Some irregularity developed on Thursday, while trading operations were sporadic in character; nevertheless, the undertone was firm and there was an advance to 4 49@4 49⅞ for demand, 4 49¼@4 50⅛ for cable transfers and 4 46⅞@4 47¾ for sixty days. On Friday the market was steady, but quieter, and a shade easier, with the range for demand 4 49⅛@4 49⅜, cable transfers 4 49⅜@4 49⅝, and sixty days 4 47@4 47¼. Closing quotations were 4 47⅛ for sixty days, 4 49¼ for demand and 4 49½ for cable transfers. Commercial sight bills finished at 4 49, sixty days at 4 46¼, ninety days at 4 45⅞, documents for payment (sixty days) at 4 46⅝, and seven-day grain bills at 4 48¼. Cotton and grain for payment closed at 4 49.

The only gold import reported this week was $4,200,000 on the Mauretania, which arrived late yesterday from Southampton.

In the Continental exchanges further marked improvement has taken place; almost from the start price levels began to move upward. After a brief period of comparative ease in the early dealings, violent advances occurred which carried French exchange up more than 44 points above the level prevailing at the close on Friday last, to 7.45 for checks. Belgian francs gained 45 points, to 7.01, while Italian lire went to 4.77; a rise of 35 points. Fluctuations were frequent and widespread, and though a generally better undertone prevailed than was noted a week ago, considerable uncertainty was observed at times and the market proved more than usually susceptible to "good" or "bad" news. The chief influence of the week was, of course, the Lausanne Conference, and attention centred very largely upon developments at this important gathering. Operations were to a very large extent speculative in character and the sensational rise in the early part of the week was attributed to covering of shorts. Conversely the later recessions represented the practical elimination for the time being of the large short interest, together with profit taking sales. Most of the interest and activity centred in French, Belgian and Italian exchange, though the variations were less drastic than those of a week ago. It is reported that the heavy losses suffered by shorts in the last week or so have been to some extent brought about by the action of several of the principal European Governments who are said to have been persistent buyers of their own currencies for the express purpose of putting a stop to professional manipulation. The action of certain speculative cliques both here and abroad in endeavoring to force down exchange values is said to have had a far-reaching and most injurious effect on economic and financial conditions in Europe. For this reason drastic measures are likely to be taken to prevent a recurrence of such movements.

Trading in reichsmarks showed an appreciable falling off and the quotation remained about steady, at slightly over 0.01½. The same is true of Austrian kronen, which continue to rule at or near 0.0014. Greek drachma were dull and nominal, at very close to the levels prevailing last week, while the Mid-European currencies showed no definite trend, alternate losses and gains of a few points in either direction being recorded throughout. For a while a slight lull in dealings was reported as a result of a temporary interruption to cable service with Europe. The supply of commercial bills offering is still light with no indication of the inauguration of any really broad export movement. Market sentiment on the subject of reparations seems to be more hopeful, although it is conceded that nothing tangible in the way of a settlement has thus far made its appearance, while much remains to be done in the settlement of the Near East dispute.

The London check rate in Paris finished at 62.85, as against 64.15 last week. In New York sight bills on the French centre closed at 7.13, against 7.01; cable transfers at 7.14, against 7.02; commercial sight at 7.11, against 6.99, and commercial sixty days 7.08, against 6.96 a week ago. Antwerp francs finished at 6.61 for checks and 6.62 for cable transfers. This compares with 6.56 and 6.57 a week earlier. Lire closed at 4.69 for bankers' sight bills and 4.70 for cable remittances, in comparison with 4.65¼ and 4.66¼ last week. Closing rates on Berlin marks were 0.01 7-16, against 0.01½ a week ago. Austrian kronen finished at 0.00014¼, against 0.0014½. Exchange on Czechoslovakia closed at 3.17, against 3.21; on Bucharest at 0.66, against 0.68; on Poland at 0.00064, against 0.00066, and on Finland at 2.58, against 2.50 in the preceding week. Greek exchange finished the week at 1.47 for checks and 1.52 for cable transfers. Last week the close was 1.40 and 1.45.

As to rates on the former neutral exchanges, there is very little of importance to report. Movements have in the main been parallel to those on the other Continental exchanges. Guilders continue to advance and it is claimed that this is in sympathy with the upward trend in sterling, the rate being usually fixed in London, which is the principal market for guilders. Swiss francs were firm and higher on light trading, while Scandinavian rates were maintained without important change, as also were Spanish pesetas.

Bankers' sight on Amsterdam finished at 39.33, against 39.25; cable transfers at 39.42, against 39.34; commercial sight at 39.23, against 39.24, and commercial sixty days at 38.97, against 38.90 a week ago. Final rates for Swiss francs were 18.59 for bankers' sight bills and 18.61 for cable remittances, against 18.47 and 18.49 last week. Copenhagen checks closed at 20.23 and cable transfers at 20.27, against 20.18 and 20.22. Checks on Sweden finished at 26.83 and cable transfers at 26.87, (unchanged), while checks on Norway closed at 18.39 and cable transfers at 18.43, against 18.41 and 18.45 a week earlier. Spanish pesetas finished at 15.32 for checks and 15.33 for cable transfers. Last week the close was 15.32 and 15.33.

With regard to South American remittances, Argentine rates were firmer at 36.60 for checks and 36.70 for cable transfers, against 36.05 and 36.11 a week ago. Brazil continues to advance, being now at 12.70 for checks and 12.75 for cable transfers. This compares with 12.55 and 12.60 last week and is about 100 points over the rate prevailing two weeks ago The movement is regarded as almost wholly speculative and to be in anticipation of the announcement of a free market for Brazilian exchange shortly. Chilean exchange failed to reflect the great disaster on the coast of Chile and the quotation was 12¼, against 12.55 a week ago. Peruvian exchange was also firm at 4 14, against 4 12½ last week.

Far Eastern exchange moved more irregularly than usual, especially Chinese and Indian currencies. The former reflected the fluctuations in the price of silver, while the firmness in the rate for rupees was said to have been caused by the large supply of export bills in London. It is not expected that the movement will be immediately checked, except in the event that the Governmental authorities offer Council bills for sale, a procedure not considered probable at the moment. Trading in Bombay and Calcutta exchange is quiet. Hong Kong finished at 53½@53¾. against 53¾@54; Shanghai 71¾@72, against 71¾ @72; Yokohama 48½@48¾ (unchanged); Manila 49¼@49½, against 49¾@50; Singapore 52¾@53, against 52½@52¾; Bombay 30¼@30½, against 30@30¼, and Calcutta 30¼@30½, against 30@ 30¼.

The New York Clearing House banks, in their operations with interior banking institutions, have gained $4,005,775 net in cash as a result of the currency movements for the week ending Nov. 23. Their receipts from the interior have aggregated $4,731,175, while the shipments have reached $725,400, as per the following table:

CURRENCY RECEIPTS AND SHIPMENTS BY NEW YORK BANKING INSTITUTIONS.

| Week ending Nov. 23. | Into Banks. | Out of Banks. | Gain or Loss to Banks. |

| Banks' interior movement | $4,731,175 | $725,400 | Gain $4,005,775 |

As the Sub-Treasury was taken over by the Federal Reserve Bank on Dec. 6 1920, it is no longer possible to show the effect of Government operations on the Clearing House institutions. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York was creditor at the Clearing House each day as follows:

DAILY CREDIT BALANCES OF NEW YORK FEDERAL RESERVE BANK AT CLEARING HOUSE.

| Saturday, Nov. 18. | Monday, Nov. 20. | Tuesday, Nov. 21. | Wednesd'y, Nov. 22. | Thursday, Nov. 23. | Friday, Nov. 24. | Aggregate for Week. |

Note.—The foregoing heavy credits reflect the huge mass of checks which come to the New York Reserve Bank from all parts of the country in the operation of the Federal Reserve System's par collection scheme. These large credit balances, however, show nothing as to the results of the Reserve Bank's operations with the Clearing House institutions. They represent only one side of the account, as checks drawn on the Reserve Bank itself are presented directly to the bank and never go through the Clearing House.

A "LABOR" BANK.

The proposition to establish a Labor bank here is interesting, though not the first of its kind. The title chosen is the Federation Trust, and a million of stock is intended, to be placed at 200, thus having a subscribed surplus. The dividend limit is to be 10%, any excess to go to depositors; it is desired to distribute the stock as widely as possible, preference being given to members of unions. The projector argues that an institution of this kind is really a necessity to the more than 700,000 unionists here. Its motto is to be "service," which is both an excellent motto and the prime condition for strength for banks and every other direction of constructive endeavor.

Thus far, the projectors are thinking on sound lines, but they are less sound if they share the notion that banking goes by or rests on favor or on anything except studying and obeying the laws of economics. An anti-labor feeling among banks may be suspected, but no banker worthy of the name lets himself be influenced by any prejudice, unless by such a contradiction in terms as a prejudice against prejudices. Not every man or woman can open an account in any bank in New York, because most banks have a minimum line of average balance, since accounts under the line are unprofitable; but banking rules do not discriminate between persons, and so far as a labor bank founds itself on the notion that labor cannot get fair and appreciative dealing except in a bank of its own it begins wrongly. It will begin more wrongly if it has any notion that banks have a special arithmetic or can find success outside of conservative business paths.

In investing funds, this projector says every effort will be made to favor plans of a productive and constructive nature, such as building factories, building homes for workers, and the developing of business. Excellent; but every sound bank is already following this preference, for a lender who does not consider the purpose as well as the person is not in really sound practice. How about what were once called railway securities? When unionists who have deserted their railway jobs and gone to participating in or being accessory to blowing up bridges and derailing trains turn from such attacks upon society as the Plumb plan would introduce and consider investments, will they perceive that railways can thrive on protection but not on attack? It would be unnatural if any holders of savings bank accounts and life insurance policies were found in a mob, unless caught in its coils unwittingly, for as soon as a man or woman has something saved up a stake in stability and order is recognized. As unionists become bankers, will they get the red out of their eyes and turn conservative? One must hope so; at least, when men who have assumed banking to be an easy" means of being greedily hard come to try it themselves, they will be in the way of learning.

"Our own bank" is to render many services, including information whereby to safeguard from fake investments, and including also the making of wills and the handling of estates; the first-named is really needed, and the others are services now performed and offered by a number of large institutions. Forming credit unions and aiding co-operative movements are also mentioned, and are excellent intentions; they are efforts at thrift, and if the wasteful folly of kicking against the pricks by strikes is also stressed the contemplated service will really go "towards strengthening the position of the organized workers." And yet we need to understand what is the "position" to be strengthened: whether it is to be the old delusion that a "class" can be segregated from the mass and wages of "organized" workers can be put up or kept up while commodity prices are put down or held down, or whether one whole union of all people is to be furthered. To quote:

"This bank of trade unionists is certain to work a great influence upon the banking world. In the past, in many instances, bankers have dictated the employers' attitude towards the workers and have forced lockouts and reductions in wages, with the resultant waste in wages and production, and economic confusion. With organized labor having its own bank, fair employers can always get consideration and have a protection against the big business which would destroy them. This will bring about a change of policy on the part of cut-throat financiers."

Was the case of this past summer a lockout, and did employer or banker dictate the small wage cut against which the action was taken? Here we have the old notions, of which we can only say that practical experience is the surest exposure of a false theory. It may prove so in this case; at least, nobody can fail to have good-will for an attempt at self-help and for an educational opportunity.

THE KANSAS INDUSTRIAL COURT.

In a recent issue of the "Country Gentleman" Governor Allen of Kansas writes of his Industrial Court and the experience of his State with that method of treating labor troubles. He begins with some clearly credible and probably carefully gathered figures of the country's recent plague of strikes. In the last three years there have been 25,000 of these, 90% failing to achieve the direct purpose for which they were called, while the supposedly successful ones did not return to the strikers the cost of their lost time. The farmer, in his opinion, is also especially a sufferer by the immediate effects upon goods carrying and coal mining.

The Kansas law, as most of us probably recollect, grew out of a coal strike. Governor Allen believes in an inalienable right of self-protection and asked the highest court in Kansas to turn over to the State some 60 or 70 millions' worth of mining property; and when the chief judge looked surprised and asked

"upon what allegations," he replied, "on any that you think would work." The request was granted; the people undertook to get coal without regard to unions; and when a union miner told one of the ex-service young men that the mine was out of order and had a lot of water in it, so that it could not be worked, the young fellow just lifted a corner of his lip and said to the striker, "Did you ever see any trenches in France?"

This famous law declared necessary utilities to be affected with a public interest (no new proposition), but added that the capital and labor engaged therein are also impressed with a public interest and owe a public duty. In case of a controversy threatening food, fuel and clothing, the law follows the intent of the opening provisions of Title III of the Transportation Act, but in a different manner. It empowers the court, upon complaint or upon its own initiative, to prescribe rules, working conditions, and a minimum wage; it also penalizes any combination to hinder or interrupt operations or to injure any worker by picketing or otherwise. The court "is one of justice, not of arbitration," and has no "representative" of either labor or capital; the complainant may have his counsel if he wishes, but need not, since the State bears all expenses.

This court has been 31 months in operation, and has made decisions in 45 cases, all but two of these having been accepted by both sides as fair. Nine cases of dispute between the Illinois Traction Company and its Kansas employees have been treated. In the first case, the decision ordered a 33% raise in wages, and the company accepted it; in the last case, a 11% cut in the wages of the same men was ordered, and they accepted it. In the three years 1916-18 a traction company which links the lead, zinc and coal mining districts of four counties had encountered one srike a year; the last one cost the men many thousands, the public some millions, and after 90 days the men returned at the old wage. Then they applied to this court for a "living wage" and obtained an advance. Then the other craftsmen of that company sat down with the owners for a common agreement for all workers, and in lieu of detailed stipulations it was agreed that all cases should go forthwith to the court; no more strikes followed, but the first decision under this agreement raised wages 37%, while the latest one cut wages 17%, and in both no objection was raised. For 25 years it had been a custom in the mining districts to charge the men a 10% discount for any money drawn before pay day; the court wiped this custom out in just 18 minutes. During the year before the court was established, strikes in the Kansas coal fields averaged 13 a month and the average term of employment was 141 days in the year; since then the average has risen to 256. On the day of the Herrin massacre in Illinois 2,200 men were working in 300 deep-shaft mines in Kansas, and doing it unmolested, although 10,000 miners were out of work in the State.

Mr. Gompers and his fellows object, as they object to every arrangement which prevents strikes by direct action without intervention; but Governor Allen says he has not (as Mr. Gompers declares) taken from men in Kansas their divine right to work; he has merely "helped to take away Mr. Gompers's divine right to order men to quit work" and has assured them protection when they decide to keep on.

Governor Allen's elected successor takes the union view by denouncing the law and the court and saying that "obnoxious laws cannot exist while I am Governor"; a doughty boast, but Governor Allen asks "why should not Government take over the quarrel between labor and capital?" It should be unspeakable, as he says, to permit every new contract in a great industrial field to be preceded "by civil war on the general public," and due respect should be given to the Kansas experience; yet it can hardly be admitted that the case for a wider application of this undertaking is closed. Governor Allen is an interesting man, entitled to respectful hearing and considerable admiration; yet he can hardly be permitted to say, unchallenged, that "it is foolish, in a nation where Government has found a just solution for every other problem, to say that Government cannot find a solution for the quarrel of the laborer with his employer." If there is any country where every other problem has been successfully solved thus it is not ours. We have tried to handle one phase of it by a Labor Board and are hardly at the end of a long wrangle which has left losses and bitterness. The best assistance Government can give is to take off its hands and keep them off, and the most natural and promising course is for the parties to get together by themselves, with all outsiders keeping or being kept away. This has succeeded when and where tried; can such a claim be justly made for any other?

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE ON AID TO AMERICAN SHIPPING.

In a special address on Tuesday, the President urged what he calls "Government aid, becomingly bestowed," closing with a brief hint of such aid for agriculture but devoting the half-hour to urging it for shipping. The situation—which it is futile to deplore, except as warning may be drawn from it—is that having spent three billions in a war emergency we have now about 12½ million tons of shipping in Governmental hands (after scrapping away on the wooden fleet) about one-half of it being owned and about one-fifth operated by Government; there is a deterioration and other loss of about 50 million dollars a year. Pronouncing this un-American and intolerable, the President urges adoption of the subsidy bill, and sees only two other courses open: continued Governmental operation, or scrapping the ships and leaving the field.

Against the old plea that a merchant fleet is a national protection by being ready for conversion when war comes two points may be cited which need no discussion: one is that (if we really have faith in experience, whether that goes into leagues or otherwise) we are to have deliverance from war; next, that the modes and implements of warfare are changing, so that the effective fighting ship of the future is an unknown and unknowable structure. The sentimental feeling about "the flag" will probably endure as long as the globe has many nations; we need not worry over it, nor need we argue over the old saying that trade follows the flag, the solid truth being that the flag is more likely to follow trade and that a profitable trade will always find the way, unless artificial hindrances prevent. If shipping is profitable, this country will get its share; if it is not profitable, the common sense course is to find out and remove the causes.

The President's contention is that direct aid to American shipping will cost less than to continue as we are now doing. Possibly; but if a railway official found a heavy freight train stalled on a curve he would not order out several more big locomotives without making sure that the brakes were off. Somehow or other, the very plainest propositions seem in these days to be the slowest apprehended; and before voting any form of aid whereby ships may become profitable in use would it not be practical sense to inquire what hinders them? Some of the handicapping obstructions are old, some quite new. If our flag does not get its fair share of floating over the waters, find and remove the hindrances, and let neither "class' favoritism nor fanatical excesses stay or weaken that process.

The President deprecates the word "subsidy" as a hated term. It ought to be hated; yet to call it "Government aid" does not improve it or change it from being a diversion of tax funds to a special purpose which is not bettered by calling it a high public purpose; and if one useful interest is to be nourished upon tax funds, where shall the line be drawn against others? There is a story of a rustic who carried his grain to mill in a sack thrown across the saddle before him, the grain being tied in one end of the sack and a stone for ballast being in the other end. When asked why he did not put half of his grain at each end and omit the stone, the man replied that what his father and grandfather had done was good enough for him. This story does not fit with perfect exactness, yet may suggest a moral. We of to-day do not follow enough the serious and prudent ways of our fathers, but we load ourselves with obstructions and then load again by an extra struggle to carry them, doing this notably in transportation; we bungle into losses, overweighting things and then trying to offset by tagging on weight somewhere else. The labor union and the one-idea loud reformer are about the worst of our dead weights; why not drop our "stones" instead of lugging them along?

The President's earnestness and sincerity are not open to question, and it is with regret that we have to dissent from him. The bill will run the gauntlet of amendments, as likely to hinder and kill as to improve and further it. Does not the sober second thought indicate a better way out?

THANKSGIVING DAY AS AN INSPIRATION.

There is a wide range between the thoughts and emotions at the Thanksgiving dinner table and those at the Thanksgiving Day's religious services to which the President invites the nation. A similar difference appears between the thought of our personal deliverances and well-being, or even the gratitude, so often characterized as "a lively sense of favors to come," and serious thought upon the events of the year.

There certainly is much that the nation has to be thankful for. This is quickly recalled; is always sure to be widely reviewed, and is variously accepted according to the individual's mental attitude. But quite apart from these particular events and individual experiences and predilections, there are some underlying features of our American life to-day which may well stir us in national thanksgiving.

The first is the greater freedom of thought which has come to us. The prayer of the early days of the war, and which did not cease with it, that "thanked God for the Atlantic Ocean," has given place to something of deeper appreciation of our relation to the people of other lands in the distressing experiences through which the world is passing. We may still find it difficult to fraternize with Germany, or to feel brotherhood with the Turks, but our sympathy is keener with the suffering peoples of Europe and the Near East, and the outpouring of aid for the helpless and starving is more than a passing impulse.

Old restrictions of conventional terms and habits of thought, the bonds of tradition and prejudice, have given way to a new sense of the largeness of human life and the indispensable and the unavoidable necessity, upon us as individuals and as a nation, of not living to ourselves, or being fettered by the past. "Neutrality" can never be interpreted to us again as it has been. Thoughts and feeling are henceforth to be freer in expression and action than heretofore. Conscience, we may believe, will in consequence speak with more authority in the individual breast and in the voice of the nation. Tennyson's heartening cheer to his fellow countrymen in the midst of the Crimean War found a response in the hearts of America in 1917. We realized then what it means to accept "the purpose of God" and be "one with our kind."

Traditions are not easily cast off; the Atlantic Ocean still embraces the horizon. We are not stirred, as men were, over the condition of the Greeks in the days of Byron and Marco Bozarris, of Dr. Howe and the "Greek Slave," but there is much searching of heart among our people of good-will over the doings in Smyrna. The political difficulties and the international problems continue; the work is not done; but shibboleths no longer serve, and inquiry persists till it is satisfactorily answered. We may well believe in our own new experience because the minds of men everywhere are astir.

A second inspiring feature of America's life to-day is that there is possible to us as individuals and as a nation a more intelligent and a sounder judgment. No one who has acquaintance with the larger areas of the West can fail to be aware that the minds of the people of America are awake and eager for knowledge. This has not always been so. The struggle for existence and the pressure of daily toil shut the mind in, as, in turn, the coming of prosperous days invites an equally indifferent ease. But to-day, notwithstanding the lack of men of commanding influence in Congress, and the want of any sharply defined issue between the two great political parties in the late election, and also the absence of outstanding leaders to guide them, the elections represent one thing clearly, the people are beginning to inquire for the truth and to seek sound leadership.

A prominent German told his countrymen not long ago that "the world viewed Germany with repulsion because of the dangerous character of her leadership and the ostentatious servility with which she endured it." We may hope that Germany has changed, or is changing; we, at least, are not open to that charge. We seek leaders competent to lead a people who would think for themselves and have convictions.

In quite other days Mr. Evarts wrote to Horace Greeley, "God help the party whose agitations are all about customs officers"; the failure of our political parties is that they are not sufficiently agitated about anything. Supreme issues are before the world everywhere, and the people wait for men who can present issues with the force of large intelligence and the weight of strong personal conviction. They look for guidance that is based upon wisdom rather than partisan appeal, and sane judgment and broad understanding rather than self-interest.

We can go a step further and say that we have learned anew the supreme value of the moral character which is the foundation of courage and enterprise for the future. The world longs for peace, and is beginning to realize that it will come, if it is to have chance of permanence, in the pressure gathering in the hearts of the people. Diplomatic peace is so often mere play for position in a second and inevitable contest. To endure, it must mark the laying aside of national antagonisms and cherished individual antipathies.

In his Williamstown address, Lord Bryce said: "In the last resort the question of the cure of the world's ills is one of the moral progress of the individuals who compose the communities"; and in a recent article, Stephen Lauzanne, the editor of the great Paris journal, "Le Matin," has declared: "The people of the United States represent the greatest moral force in the world, and their influence is without limit upon the world's events."

We have heard, perhaps, overmuch of the greatness of America, and have received unqualified praise and admiration for our service in the war. If this year on Thanksgiving Day we can pass over reference to our national prosperity and can gather from the memories and sacrifices of the past, coupled with consciousness of the perplexities of the succeding years, and some appreciation of the terrible experiences through which millions of our fellow beings have passed, we may turn to thoughts such as these we have enumerated which are common to us all. We shall find in them ground for a thanksgiving which, while it inspires courage for the future is not incompatible with the humility that follows honest self-examination, and starts in the soul's inmost centre that sense of the over-brooding presence of God, which makes right living a reality and a joy.

THE NEW CAPITAL FLOTATIONS DURING OCTOBER AND THE TEN MONTHS.

The new capital flotations in the United States during October, as represented by the stock, bond and note issues brought out on behalf of corporations and by States and municipalities, foreign and domestic, and as represented by farm loan issues, while not as heavy as in September, when the total was of exceptional proportions, were yet large, attaining an aggregate of $367,449,657, according to the elaborate tabulations we present at the end of this article. For September the amount was no less than $565,824,897, but for August, which was a very light month, the total was only $199,211,136. The October figure, it will be noticed, does not differ greatly from the average of these two preceding months and it also corresponds very closely with the new financing put through in July, which totaled $381,609,071. Going further back, however, it becomes apparent that the new capital flotations now are running on a considerably smaller scale than in the first half of the year, for in June the total was $550,824,856, in May $617,235,070, in April (the record for any month) $655,817,946, and in March $557,257,979.

There is a reduction, too, as compared with October of other recent years, excepting only 1921. In other words, at $367,449,657 for October 1922 comparison is with $290,556,373 for October 1921, but with $421,841,164 for October 1920 and with no less than $663,133,142 for October 1919, which latter was the year following the conclusion of the armistice and the war period, when financing had been absolutely restricted to expenditures on behalf of undertakings essential to the conduct of the war. Thus all the comparisons establish the fact that new financing, while still large, is on a relatively lighter basis than in the recent past, and such a policy is, of course, enforced by the circumstance that new issues do not now in most cases go with the same eclat as before. Even the increase over October last year, it will be recognized, does not serve to modify the general conclusion of a tendency towards lighter financing for the time being when it is noted that an unusual percentage of the new financing the present year was for refunding purposes and that last year's October total itself was smaller than the average of the monthly totals at that time. Of the $367,449,657 grand aggregate of new issues the present year, no less than $83,143,800 was to take up existing issues, reducing the strictly new capital demands to $284,305,857. On the other hand, in October last year out of a total of $290,556,373 of new offerings, only $15,076,884 went to retire outstanding obligations, leaving $275,479,489 then as the strictly new capital demands. On the same basis of elimination the new capital demands in October 1920 were $411,189,564 and in October 1919 $485,999,703.

It is also worth noting that the appeals to the investment market in October the present year have been chiefly on behalf of corporations. Out of a total of all issues brought out during the month of $367,449,657, $244,924,950 represented corporate issues, and of this latter total in turn $81,740,800 was for refunding. Under all the other leading heads the new offerings were relatively small. This is noticeably true in the case of the municipal bond sales which for October this year reached no more than $65,924,323, as against $114,098,373 in October 1921, $80,933,284 in October 1920 and $62,201,397 in October 1919. Independent of these, however, Canadian municipalities, as it happened, floated a larger amount of their obligations in this country than usual, the amount for the month having been $25,989,884; this followed entirely from the placing here of $20,000,000 5% 20-year bonds of the Province of Ontario.

As in preceding months this year, substantially all the corporate financing reported in October was of a long term nature, that is, of a maturity in excess of five years. Of the total of $244,924,450 for all corporate offerings, long term issues aggregated no less than $219,123,000, while short term securities amounted to only $6,000,000, and stocks but $19,801,450. From the subjoined table of corporate financing for ten months ended with October in each of the past four years it will be seen that in this year and last the tendency was decidedly toward long term issues, whereas back in 1919 the short term issues almost equaled the long term issues and the new stock issues overshadowed both, preferred stock issues in great profusion being brought out at that time by industrial corporations.

CORPORATE FINANCING TEN MONTHS ENDED OCT. 31.

| Long term | $2,075,032,350 | $1,505,240,700 | $1,016,789,000 | $556,005,800 |
| Short term | 132,887,000 | 166,825,766 | 591,006,500 | 498,412,700 |

The number and volume of public utility issues were noteworthy features of October flotations. In all 20 funded and 4 stock issues were brought out, totaling $92,016,750. While not as large as the September aggregate, this is an unusually good showing for public utility offerings. Present indications are that utility financing for the full 12 months of 1922 will exceed 1 billion dollars. The amount for the 10 months ending with October is $858,776,095, this exceeding by almost 200 millions the total for the entire year 1921. However, it should be noted that of the amount for the 10 months of 1922 a large proportion—$217,402,286—was for purposes of refunding (in a majority of cases considerably in advance of maturity) outstanding loans carrying a higher coupon rate.

The principal public utility issues offered during October were: $14,000,000 Consumers Power Co. 1st Lien & Unif. Mtge. 5s "C" 1952, offered at 92½, to yield about 5½%; $12,500,000 Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co. Ref. & 1st Mtge. 5s, 1961, offered at 92¼, to yield about 5½%; $12,000,000 New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1st & Ref. Mtge. 5s "A"

1952, offered at 90, to yield about 5.70%, and $10,000,000 Southern California Edison Co. Gen. & Ref. Mtge. 5s 1944, offered at 95, yielding about 5.40%.

Financing by industrial companies was featured by the following new issues: $35,000,000 Gulf Oil Corp. of Pa. Deb. 5s 1937, offered at 97, yielding about 5.30%; $15,000,000 Hershey Chocolate Co. 1st Mtge. 6s 1942, offered at 98½, yielding about 6⅛%, and $10,000,000 Brier Hill Steel Co. 1st Mtge. 5½s 1942, offered at 100, to yield 5½%.

Railroad financing, as in September, was on a small scale, totaling only $15,125,000. The largest offering was that of $4,500,000 Buffalo Rochester & Pittsburgh Ry. Cons. Mtge. 4½s 1957 at 96¼, to yield about 4.72%.

For the first time since July foreign Governments came into our market for funds. Three separate loans were floated amounting to $28,000,000. Details are shown on a subsequent page. Only three farm loan issues, aggregating $2,500,000, the smallest monthly total this year, were offered, at prices to yield from 4.58% to 4.66%.

The following is a complete four-year summary of the new financing—corporate, foreign Government and municipal, and farm loan issues—for October and the ten months ending with October:

CANADA'S EXPERIENCE WITH ITS RAILWAY LINES.

[Communicated.]

With the appointment of Sir Henry Worth Thornton, formerly of Logansport, Ind., and now of London, Eng., as General Manager of the Canadian National Lines, the question of the country's experience in the operation of these lines thus far, has again come to the front.

The Canadian National Railways should be subdivided in two classes, viz.:

(a) The Canadian Government Railways, which are railroads entirely owned by the Canadian Government through purchase outright. So much are these lines part and parcel of the Canadian Government-household that their earnings and expenses are included in the ordinary budget-income and expenditure of the Dominion.

(b) The Grand Trunk Pacific, Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Railways which, as yet, have their own corporate organizations, and in which the investment of the Canadian Government is comparatively recent.

In view of Sir Henry's assumption of the leadership of the above lines, now to be grouped in one large operating organization, an attempt to approximate the losses suffered by the Dominion in these railway properties in recent years will be timely. This task is not an easy one. So able a judge, as the Hon. J. L. Payne, former Statistician in the Department of Canadian Railways and Canals, recently referring to the difficulties in the way of getting precise and accurate information ("Railway Age" Oct. 14, 1922), speaks of "an archaic system of accounting, which covers up an enormous amount of capital charges under the rather indefinite head of public debt."

Mr. Payne touches here a very sore spot. While it is quite easy to compute the losses suffered by the Canadian railroads themselves, it is well nigh impossible to figure out from the Canadian Government's own accounts in how far the "investments" made by the Canadian Government in these railroads are for capital expenditures and to what extent they are financing operating losses.

In any attempt to ascertain part of the losses actually borne by the Canadian Government, it is first necessary to state the losses suffered by the properties themselves. As to the first group; the Canadian Government Railways, they comprise some twelve distinct lines, including the leased St. John & Quebec Railway, about 4,700 miles in length. This mileage includes about 1,500 miles for the "uneconomically located" Intercolonial Railway. This line runs from Sydney and Halifax north to the Gulf of St. Lawrence and thence southward along the St. Lawrence River to Monteral. A large part of this mileage "is through unproductive rocky section of eastern Canada with great stretches of non-traffic-producing territory, lying between the main terminals." It also includes some 1,800 miles for the wastefully constructed National Transcontinental Railway, running between Quebec and Winnipeg through largely undeveloped territory. The reasons—if they may be called such—for the construction by the Government of this line are too well known to require elucidation at this time. The operating results of these Canadian Government lines which, as we have before stated are treated as part of the Canadian budget, in recent years have been as follows:

| | Gross Earnings including Other Income. | Net Operating Loss Charged to Canadian Budget. |
| Year ended Dec. 31 1920 | 46,275,782 | 9,778,070 |

In addition to the above recurring and actual losses suffered by the Canadian taxpayers through their budget on the operation of the so-called Government railways, there also is a large "invisible" loss, represented by Dominion taxes and interest on the inflated investment in these properties, which are conveniently left out of all computations. This aspect of the situation we will take up later. In view of all surrounding circumstances, it would be no discredit to Sir Henry Thornton if, for many years to come, he should prove unable to make these roads earn a reasonable sum on the amount invested therein by the Dominion.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. (2,750 miles), extending from Winnipeg to St. Rupert, in which the Canadian Government has become heavily interested, continues to pile up tremendous deficits. The gross earnings and net operating losses in recent years have been as follows:

| | Gross Earnings. | Net Operating Loss. |
| Year ended June 30 1918 | $7,928,706 | $391,417 |

After charging to income the interest due and accrued, the operating results for 1921 showed a deficit of $14,283,568, increasing the total deficit incurred since operations started to $66,000,000. In this respect the Canadian people are holding the bag.

The Canadian Northern Ry. (9,774 miles) started out as a Western system and as such would have been tolerably successful. However, the "Pressure toward the East" of its promoters, in their desire to make the line a trans-continental system, brought it on the rocks, compelling the Dominion Government, already heavily committed on account of bond guarantees and stock investments, to come to the rescue. The system's operating results in recent years are shown below:

| | Operating Revenues. | Operating Loss. |
| Year ended Dec. 31 1919 | $53,562,178 | $6,471,846 |

After charging off taxes and interest charges due on its debt, including the advances made by the Dominion, the Canadian Northern system increased the above loss for 1921 on straight operation of $6,475,911, to a loss for the entire year of not less than $36,379,610, increasing thereby the accrued deficit to $85,167,760.

The Grand Trunk Ry. (4,000 miles), unlike other Government lines, well-established in the East, has only been recently drawn into this mess of Government operation—by means subjected to severe criticism in certain quarters—for the apparent purpose of "sweetening" the situation. Up to and including 1921, its lines were still operated by its own organization and therefore did not form part of the Canadian National Lines. However, when Sir Henry Thornton assumes leadership of the Canadian National Lines, the Grand Trunk Railway will be part of it. In fact, the Grand Trunk Railway's indebtedness to the Dominion Government in the year 1921, though the road was not operated as a part of the Canadian National Lines, increased by about $55,000,000, and a sizeable portion thereof (about $14,000,000) was to take care of income losses suffered during the year, a profit and loss surplus in the balance sheet only two years ago having turned into an accrued deficit of about $17,500,000 on Dec. 31 1921.

II.

Before taking up the question of how these huge losses have been financed, a few more words must be said of the reasons why the financial results of these properties are so disastrous. Nobody will gainsay, of course, the special causes which made the operation of railways the past few years—for that matter not only in Canada—an unprofitable business. The following comparison of certain essential operating figures of these Canadian National Lines (including the Grand Trunk) with the corresponding figures of the Canadian Pacific, which latter also was subjected to the severe strain caused by the special circumstances above referred to, at once throws a clear light on the handicaps of these Canadian National Lines. The figures are those of the year 1921.

*Canadian lines only. x Loss.

Some of the conclusions derivable from the above figures and dealing with the inherent disadvantages of the Canadian National lines are as follows:

(a) In spite of the fact that the Grand Trunk Railway has more branch mileage than any of the other Canadian National lines, its gross earnings per mile of total main track (including branches) are from 2 to 3 times as large as those of the other lines in which the Canadian Government is financially interested. In other words the branch lines of the Grand Trunk are by far more important than most of the main lines of the other roads; the Grand Trunk having been more or less forcibly added to the system in order—as hinted at above—to give the other roads with their tenuous connections towards the East the benefit of a more firmly implanted system, with good terminal facilities in that part of the country.

(b) The Canadian National lines—exclusive of the Grand Trunk—haul freight and carry passengers at ton-mile and passenger-mile rates not much lower than those of the Canadian Pacific. As it may be concluded from a study which we will here forego that the traffic of the Canadian National lines, includes a larger percentage of so-called low freight rate classes, the rates for manufactured articles must be quite high, making competition at points also served by the Canadian Pacific extremely keen, with the freight-securing advantages undoubtedly in favor of the latter. At non-competitive points, i. e., places exclusively served by the Canadian National lines, a tendency of high freight rates must needs prevail. In other words, the disastrous results of the Canadian National lines (Grand Trunk excepted) cannot be due to low unit freight rates, for the reason that the tendency will be of such rates being higher than those of the Canadian Pacific, which latter with its lower freight rate structure is thriving remarkably.

(c) The Grand Trunk has considerably higher average unit rates than any of the other roads. Yet in spite of these high rates it is able to attract considerable traffic, causing its ton miles per mile of first track operated (density) and consequently its gross earnings per mile, to be very large. However, all comparisons of the Grand Trunk with other roads with a total mileage figure as a basic unit are misleading, as a very large part of the Grand Trunk mileage is comparatively speaking in densely populated territory, and does not reach out to the West.

(e) This same volume of business being obtained over a mileage so much larger in the case of the Canadian National lines (exclusive of Grand Trunk) requires on the part of the latter a larger tractive effort. For instance, during 1921, it required in the case of the Canadian National lines 18,715,076 freight train miles to move 629,882,451 car miles, giving the Canadian National lines only 28.65 cars per train. The Canadian Pacific with practically the same freight train mileage, carried 29,000,000 car miles more or 32.17 car miles per train mile. Moreover, in the case of the Canadian National lines (Grand Trunk again excluded) only 62% of these car miles were loaded, the empty and caboose mileage being 38%; for the Canadian Pacific the loaded car mileage proportion in 1921 was 66%. Inasmuch as the Canadian Pacific in 1921, carried with substantially the same train mileage as the Canadian National lines (Grand Trunk excluded) 50,000,000 loaded car miles more, each train mile of the Canadian Pacific carried 519 revenue tons (and each passenger mile 66 passengers) as against only 408 tons (and 45 passengers) carried by the Canadian National Lines. In the face of this unfavorable record we have the assurance of the President of the Canadian National lines, that "it is difficult to see how heavier train loading could be obtained under present traffic conditions as the situation could hardly be met with less frequent service."

(f) This handling by the Canadian National lines of a volume of freight rate traffic (somewhat smaller than that handled by the Canadian Pacific) entailing at the same time a larger proportion of dead traffic space and subject to other burdensome conditions, as indicated above, accounts for the low train miles earnings, and high train mile expenses with its well known disastrous financial consequences.

Indeed, it is a Herculean task which Sir Henry Thornton assumes, a task the more onerous because aside from the physical shortcomings of the plant which is entrusted to his care, he will also have to overcome a great number of organization handicaps that unavoidably must have attached themselves to a system largely so ill conceived, so prematurely and extravagantly constructed, and undoubtedly run with much of a "government complex."

III.

We will now attempt to figure out—as nearly as can be done—how much of the capital advances by the Dominion on railway account, were to cover construction expenditures and to take care of operating losses. In so doing we may begin by observing that the debt of the Dominion of Canada has increased from $530,492,000 on March 31 1914 to $2,902,428,000 on March 31 1921, an increase of not less than $2,371,936,000 or 447.10%. From the above the so-called revenue producing assets which increased from $145,159,000 on March 31 1914 to $561,549,000 on March 31 1921, should be deducted. None of these revenue producing assets include any advances made to the Canadian railways as these advances in recent years have not been self-supporting. After deducting these active assets, the balance of debt of Canada shows an increase from $385,332,000 on March 31 1914 to $2,340,879,000 on March 31 1921, an increase of $1,955,547,000. This increase in net debt is represented on the debit side of Canada's balance sheet by an increase of $628,693,000 in so-called non-return producing assets, viz. from $596,684,000 on March 31 1914 to $1,225,377,000 on March 31 1921; and by an increase of $1,326,000,000 in the so-called Consolidated Fund, now amounting to $1,115,502,000 (March 31 1921) against a credit in 1914. There are debited each year to this Consolidated Fund the deficits on the ordinary service, while, should this ordinary service show a surplus, it is credited to the Consolidated Fund. The debit in the Consolidated Fund, therefore, in a sense represents the accumulated net deficits on the budget which had to be covered largely by incurring debt in one form or another. The huge increase in that part of Canada's debt represented by this Consolidated Fund is, of course largely a consequence of the war.

The outstanding facts, therefore, are that the debt of Canada is incurred:

(a) to create so-called self-supporting accounts (which we have deducted from the gross debt), and none of which now includes any railway investments;

(b) to create so-called non-active accounts, viz., assets which on the whole do not directly contribute any return to the Dominion Treasury and include the investment for capital expenditures in the Canadian Government Railways (but not for their operating losses, as these are accounted for in the ordinary service) and the investment for capital expenditure and-or to make good operating losses of the Grand Trunk Pacific, Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Railway;

(c) to cover the deficits of the ordinary service, this profit and loss deficit on Canada's balance sheet being represented by the consolidated fund, the ordinary service, as pointed out before, taking care of the operating results, but not the capital expenditures of the Canadian Government Railways.

As above stated, the so-called non-active assets of the Dominion amounted to $1,225,377,000 on March 31 1921, as against $596,684,000 on March 31 1914. They can be subdivided as of these dates as follows:

| March 31: | 1921. | 1914. | Increase. |
| Railways— | $ | $ | $ |
| a Canadian Government Railways | 398,825,914 | 260,159,153 | 138,666,761 |

| Total (a and b) | 869,791,670 | 391,062,125 | 478,729,545 |
| d Canals | 134,969,877 | 105,008,851 | 29,961,026 |
| e Miscellaneous public works | 165,766,147 | 59,925,732 | 105,840,415 |
| f Other accounts | 33,142,511 | 28,864,411 | 4,278,100 |

The above statement shows that the Dominion Government up to Mar. 31 1921 had invested in the ill-fated Quebec Bridge about $21,707,000. It may be well to consider this bridge as a part of the Canadian Government Railways, which, therefore, brings the total advance to the Canadian Government Railways up to March 31 1921 to $420,500,000. This advance, as before indicated, is exclusively a construction advance, as all operating losses of the Canadian Government Railways are carried by the yearly budget, while the Government does not charge itself with any interest or taxes on this investment. It will further be noted from the above comparison that the loans and advances made by the Dominion to the railways other than the Canadian Government Railways increased in the period from April 1 1914 to March 31 1921 by about $340,000,000, or to be exact, by $181,313,-699 for the Canadian Northern Ry., $27,618,401 for the Grand Trunk Ry. and $74,834,733 for the Grand Trunk Pacific, as well as by $56,295,752 for the purchase of railway equipment. The loans to railways for purchase of railway equipment were made under Chapter 38 of the Statutes of 1918. We have no way of telling, with the data on hand, how much of such equipment loans was on account of the Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk Ry. and Grand Trunk Pacific. At any rate, the Canadian Government has not received any interest on this advance and the item, like all other loans and advances to the Canadian Railways, is, therefore, carried as a non-active asset on the Dominion's balance sheet. While the above advances made by the Dominion to railroads other than Government railways up to March 31 1921 may include advances on account of operating deficits and interest due to the public, they apparently do not include anything for unearned interest due the Dominion on its own advances, as this would simply have resulted in the advancing of money out of one pocket that would have been returned to the other. The Canadian Government accounts, therefore, will show an amount owed by the railways considerably smaller than these railways will show as due the Government in their own accounts, as they, of course, will have accrued interest due the Government, whether it has been paid out or not. For this reason, and also because no later Canadian Government debt statistics in detail are available than those of March 31 1921, we cannot arrive, from the Government's own statistics, at very definite conclusions of the burden thus far borne by the Canadian taxpayers on their Government's railway venture.

IV.

We will have to consult the balance sheets of the railways themselves to arrive at the amounts owed the Government either in actual securities or in open account. The Canadian Northern Railway reports figures as follows:

| December 31— | 1921. | 1920. | 1919. |
| Capital stock | $102,897,800 | $105,837,800 | $105,915,300 |
| Funded debt, incl. Equip. bonds | 363,994,396 | 343,489,241 | 312,008,787 |
| Short term loans | 41,442,439 | 48,834,784 | 62,836,178 |
| Due Dominion of Canada | 286,279,460 | 233,800,738 | 165,230,658 |

It would seem that of the total amount $286,279,460 due the Government by the Canadian Northern as of Dec. 31 1921, $251,088,248 is carried in the books of the Dominion as actual advances of which for:

|---|---|
| Construction, refunding &c | $147,600,542 |
| Operating deficits and fixed charges (due to the public) | 103,487,707 |
| | $251,088,249 |
| It may be assumed that the remaining | 35,191,211 |
| making the total amount of | $286,279,460 |

which appears in the books of the Canadian Northern Railway as due the Government represents unearned interest on advances made by the Government to the Canadian Northern (the amount so due the Government having been $13,224,208 in 1921 and $10,326,260 in 1920). In addition to the above the Canadian Government accounts also carry the following items:

| A. Purchase of capital stock, Chapter 24, Accounts of 1917, Section 4, Subsection 3 | $10,000,000 |
| B. Acquisition of capital stock, legislation 1917 (7-8 George V, Chapter 24) | 25,000,000 |

The apparent conclusion that the entire $35,000,000 was expended for the purchase of the $60,000,000 capital stock of the Canadian Northern (out of the $100,000,000) not then owned by the Dominion is erroneous. The other $40,000,000 was previously acquired by the Dominion, undoubtedly for no cash outlay, and as a consideration for Canadian Northern bond guarantees. Only $10,000,000, the item under caption A, was issued for this additional $40,000,000 stock. The remaining $25,000,000 (caption B), seems to consist of a loan made to the Canadian Northern for capital expenditures, this loan having been made contingent upon the acquisition of the remaining $60,000,000 capital stock. One should bear in mind that the $10,000,000 paid for the $60,000,000 stock of the Canadian Northern did not go to the Canadian Northern Railway, but was paid to the McKenzie and Mann group. On the strength of the above figures it may be assumed that aside from the $10,000,000 investment in the (worthless) capital stock of the Canadian Northern, of the amount due the Dominion on Dec. 31 1921, of $286,279,460, not less than $138,239,918 represented operating losses and unearned interest. How much the remaining $147,600,542 Government advances for construction, &c., may be worth, and how much of the $405,436,835 long and short term debt (a large part of which carries the guarantee of the Dominion) can be considered self-supporting under normal operating conditions, is another problem which Sir Thornton will have to face.

The capitalization, &c., of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, as of Dec. 31 1921, was as follows:

| | Amount. | | Annual Charge. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Capital stock (all owned by Dominion) | $24,905,400 | | ---------- |
| Long term debt ($33,000,000 owned by Dominion) | 157,699,714 | | $6,070,466 |
| Receiver ctfs. (all owned by Dominion) | 34,400,305 | | |
| Due in open acct. Dom. of Canada | 62,809,237 | say at 5% | 6,704,842 |
| Due in open acct. Grand Trunk Ry. (In turn largely financed by Domin.) | 36,872,142 | | |

A cursory examination of the figures of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway shows that annual fixed charges on the bases as above assumed aggregate $13,775,308. On the other hand, the annual statement for 1921 shows an outlay for fixed charges of only $9,958,999, snd it is on the basis of this outlay that the deficit for 1921 before mentioned of $14,283,568 has been arrived at. In other words, should the income account of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway have stood the full fixed charge on its capital accounts the deficit for 1921 would have been in the neighborhood of $18,100,-000, instead of $14,283,568 as now reported. Furthermore, the Canadian Government seems to pay direct—and does not seem to charge the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway—interest on $56,132,000 3% Grand Trunk Pacific bonds. As a large part of that issue (apparently about $33,000,000) is owned by the Dominion, the out-of-pocket charge of the Dominion for that part of the debt held by the public is correspondingly smaller. It is a safe assumption for our purposes that the entire direct advance of $62,809,237 made by the Dominion to the Grand Trunk Pacific, and a large part of the advance made to it via the Grand Trunk Railway represents an actual operating loss. Undoubtedly a very large proportion of the $34,400,000 Grand Trunk Pacific receiver certificates (all owned by the Dominion) would be wiped out, should that road be subjected to a rational reorganization.

As regards the Grand Trunk Ry., Mr. W. C. Kennedy, Canadian Minister of Railways, in an able speech on the situation delivered in the Toronto House of Commons on April 11 last, stated that the outstanding obligations as at Dec. 31 1921 and 1920, respectively, of the Grand Trunk Ry. system, including the Central Vermont Ry., bearing interest were as follows:

| Government loans | $73,702,154 42 | $21,340,808 62 |
| Other obligations | 354,583,462 32 | 338,434,369 72 |

The above figures of the amount due by the Grand Trunk Ry. to the Dominion compare as follows with those given in the Grand Trunk Ry.'s own balance sheet:

| Government Loans— | Dec. 31 1921. | Dec. 31 1920. |
| Hon. W. C. Kennedy's speech | $73,702,154 | $21,340,809 |
| Grand Trunk's own report | 76,965,322 | 21,340,809 |

It may be assumed that the difference of $3,263,168 is interest due on advances to the Government which the Grand Trunk shows in its books, but which for reasons before outlined are not carried on the balance sheet of the Dominion. It cannot be wide from the mark if we consider as part of the $76,965,322 advanced by the Dominion to the Grand Trunk Ry. as of Dec. 31 1921:

|---|---|
| Advances to Grand Trunk Pacific Ry | $36,872,142 |
| Income deficits Grand Trunk Ry., 1920 and 1921 | 18,663,547 |

Finally, we have the case of the investment by the Dominion in its Government Railways. According to the annual report of the Canadian Railways, the Dominion Government as of Dec. 31 1921 had invested in the Canadian Government Railways $369,408,222. This figure is much less than the one which we have used before ($398,825,914), yet, showing such larger investment on an earlier date (March 31 1921), and which figure we took from a Canadian Blue Book. That figure of the investment by the Dominion in its Government Railways was made up as follows: Cape Breton Ry., $103,753; Caraquet & Gulf Shore, $150,000; Digby & Annapolis, $660,684; Intercolonial, $120,220,732; Elgin & Havelock, $33,530; International, $2,681,377; Lothiniere & Megantic, $336,875; Prince Edward Island, 11,451,124; National Transcontinental, $164,584,262; New Brunswick & Prince Edward Island Ry., $297,372; Hudson Bay, $20,588,873; North Railway, $250,000; Quebec & Saguenay, $6,892,576; St. Martin's Ry., $71,219; Salisbury & Albert, $84,390; York & Carleton, $13,500; Canadian Government Rys., $70,316,107; miscellaneous, $89,539; total, $398,825,914. Add: Quebec Bridge, $21,707,009; grand total, $420,532,923.

It is impossible to arrive at the investment in each of the Canadian Government railways on a per-mile basis, inasmuch as for some time additional investments in certain of the roads have not been added to the original investment therein, but bulked under the general name "Canadian Government Railways," the additional amount so invested as of March 31 1921 aggregating, as per above statement, $70,316,107. So long as we are in the dark about the distribution of that item, so long will it be impossible to ascertain the exact capital investment of the Dominion in each of its Government railways. Moreover, Mr. Kennedy in his above quoted speech quite correctly made the statement that "it has been alleged that our railway accounts are misleading because interest on capital account has not been charged up and compounded annually," which policy in the words of the To onto, "Post," "does violence to the very elementary principles of accounting." In fact, should the accounts of the Canadian Government Railways have been kept strictly in accordance with good bookkeeping methods, the above capital investment of $420,532,923 on March 31 1921, or let us say 425,000,000 on Dec. 31 1921 would have been increased by say 37,000,000 for operating losses since 1913 (we will not delve into the past any further) now charged to the budget; by say 3,000,000 for taxes from which these properties have been relieved, and by say 110,000,000 for interest since 1913 (not even compounded) on the investment, making a total investment of the Dominion in the Canadian Government Railways (Quebec Bridge included) of not less than $575,000,000 of which about $150,000,000 represented by operating losses and non-earned interest charges, the remaining $425,000,000 representing construction costs at the average rate of about $90,000 a mile, demanding net earnings of about $5,500 per mile, instead of the continued deficits as now shown.

V.

If we may now recapitulate our figures, we might say that as of Dec. 31 1921 the visible and invisible investment of the Dominion in railways (exclusive of some $88,000,000 old accounts) was approximately as follows:

| Canadian Northern—Advances, &c | $285,000,000 |
| " " Capital stock | 10,000,000 |
| Grand Trunk Pacific—Advances, &c | 63,000,000 |
| " " " 3% bonds | 33,000,000 |
| " " " Receiver certificates | 34,000,000 |
| " " " Capital stock | Nominal |
| " " " Interest payments not charged to Grand Trunk Pacific Ry., say | 25,000,000 |
| Grand Trunk Ry. advances | $75,000,000 |
| Government Railways (see above) | 575,000,000 |
| Of this "investment" there is represented by operating losses (including unearned interest) of: | |
| Canadian Northern, say | $138,000,000 |
| Grand Trunk Pacific, say | 87,000,000 |
| Grand Trunk Railway, say | 20,000,000 |
| Canadian Government Railways, say | 150,000,000 |

One would have to be an incurable optimist to expect that the remaining investment of $705,000,000 will soon become self-supporting as an entirety. If one could envisage the whole situation as a corporate one, with rational corporate bookkeeping methods adhered to from its inception, one could easily imagine a reorganization whereby the Dominion Government would have to write off on its total "investment" in these roads (including some $163,000,000 past subsidies), but not taking into account the heavy losses further incurred in the current year, nor considering the large contingent liabilities of the Dominion for guarantees, an amount in the neighborhood of three-quarters of a billion dollars. ## WEEKLY RETURNS OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.

Liquidation of $38,600,000 of discounted paper, of $3,500,000 of purchased acceptances and of $30,600,000 of United States securities, together with a reduction of $44,500,000 in deposit liabilities and of $21,800,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement issued as at close of business on Nov. 22 1922 and which deals with the results for the twelve Federal Reserve banks combined. Gold reserves increased by $14,500,000 and total reserves by $13,900,000, the reserve ratio advancing from 75.2 to 76.7%. After noting these facts, the Federal Reserve Board proceeds as follows:

Tota learning assets of the Reserve banks showed a decline of $72,700,000 and stood at $1,166,700,000, the lowest figure since Oct. 25, but $146,100,000 above the low figure for the year, reported on Aug. 9.

Gold reserves of the New York Bank increased by $35,500,000, smaller increases being shown for the Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Dallas banks. The largest decrease in gold reserves for the week, amounting to $8,800,000, is shown for the San Francisco Bank, a decrease of $6,100,000 is reported for the Chicago Bank, while the Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Kansas City banks report smaller reductions.

Holdings of paper secured by Government obligations show a decline for the week from $330,300,000 to $308,000,000. Of the total held $171,800,000, or 55.8%, were secured by Liberty and other U. S. bonds, $5,400,000, or 1.8%, by Victory notes, $121,500,000, or 39.4%, by Treasury notes, and $9,300,000, or 3% by Treasury certificates, compared with $188,000,000, $8,000,000, $125,800,000 and $8,500,000 reported the week before.

The statement in full, in comparison with preceding weeks and with the corresponding date last year, will be found on subsequent pages, namely, pages 2356 and 2357. A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the Reserve banks on Nov. 22 1922, as compared with a week and a year ago, follows:

WEEKLY RETURN OF THE MEMBER BANKS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

Further net liquidation of $32,000,000 of loans and discounts, as against increases of $7,000,000 in Government securities and of $10,000,000 in corporate securities, are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's consolidated weekly statement of condition on Nov. 15 of 785 member banks in leading cities. It should be noted that the figures of these member banks are always a week behind those for the Reserve banks themselves.

An increase of $16,000,000 in loans secured by Government obligations is more than offset by a reduction in loans secured by stocks and bonds, while all other loans and discounts, comprising chiefly loans of a commercial character, show a decline of $29,000,000 for the week. Member banks in New York City show an increase of $14,000,000 in loans secured by Government obligations and reductions of $30,000,000 in loans secured by stocks and bonds and of $20,000,000 in other loans and discounts. Their investments increased by $10,000,000, nearly all in corporate securities. Total loans and investments of the reporting institutions declined by $15,000,000, the corresponding reductions for member banks in New York City being $27,000,000.

Borrowings of the reporting institutions from the Federa Reserve banks show a further increase from $397,000,000 to $403,000,000, or from 2.5 to 2.6% of their combined loans and investments. For the New York City members an increase from $143,000,000 to $147,000,000 in accommodation at the local Reserve Bank and from 2.8 to 2.9% in the ratio of accommodation is noted.

Government deposits show a decline of $11,000,000 for the week, other demand deposits fell off about $6,000,000, while time deposits increased by $4,000,000. Member banks in New York City report decreases of $8,000,000 in Government deposits, of $11,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $3,000,000 in time deposits.

Reserve balances, all with the Federal Reserve banks, show an increase of $22,000,000, largely in New York City. Cash in vault, on the other hand, declined by $22,000,000, the New York City banks reporting a reduction of $6,000,000 under this head. On a subsequent page—that is, on page 2357—we give the figures in full contained in this latest weekly return of the member banks of the Reserve System. In the following is furnished a summary of the changes in the principal items as compared with a week and a year ago:

CHARLES E. MITCHELL SAYS WAR DEBTS AND REPARATIONS QUESTIONS MUST BE SETTLED BEFORE EUROPE CAN EMERGE FROM DIFFICULTIES.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank and the National City Co. of this city, was the guest of honor and principal speaker at the monthly luncheon yesterday (Nov. 24) of the Bond Club, held at the Bankers' Club in the Equitable Building. Mr. Mitchell only recently returned from a trip abroad, and his remarks naturally dealt with a discussion of the foreign situation. The efforts of M. Clemenceau to enlist the sympathy of the people of the United States in the difficulties which Europe is facing were referred to by Mr. Mitchell, who in expressing the view that "we need some concrete suggestions as to action" added "I cannot conceive of Germany for instance, getting out of its troubles -------- except as determinations are reached in the particular questions of reparation and currency, and I doubt that those questions can be solved except as there is a determination of the status of inter-Allied debts." Mr. Mitchell indicated that he did not find, as was the case a year ago, that there was talk of cancellation of the war debts, but that European bankers are expecting that this debt should be carried along for a long term and at a low rate of interest. In Mr. Mitchell's opinion, not until this is determined, can the question of reparations be settled, and not until then can Europe emerge from its present difficulties. Granting that it may take some time to iron out the many difficulties, Mr. Mitchell maintained that "so long as the fundamentals are improving, as they are, and are as sound as I believe them to be to-day, I see no reason for feeling pessimistic about European progress." "I think it is important that we get this view," he added, "because in this country we have a great gold supply, which in the ultimate must in part move from our shores if it is to have a real value and be a benefit to us. So long as international trade lags by reason of prohibitive tariffs, and we are certainly the greatest exponents of them, I would like to have some man tell me how that gold can be used except as it is moved by you and me in placing sound foreign credits with American investors with whom we are in contact." The following is Mr. Mitchell's speech:

Gentlemen, it is a very real pleasure to come here and talk to my old associates in the bond game. I must say that I was led to this, as your President has suggested, by a circuitous route. He told me that if I would come and talk to you as fellow-members of the Club, I could choose my subject. Just returning home and seeing investment conditions here, I really had in mind that I would discuss with you the necessity of learning, as bond men, the difference between appendicitis or dire liver trouble, and an ordinary case of old-fashioned belly-ache occasioned by too much eating. Before I knew it, however, I was posted to talk on the subject of the foreign situation.

Now, I have not been to Europe to make that kind of a survey which justifies me in standing before an audience of this character and discussing in detail the foreign situation. To do that, one would necessarily have to take into consideration the various political problems involved, and would have to study the trend of the psychology of peoples and expound it. That I will not do. I have not made that kind of survey that justifies me in standing on a platform of the Town Hall, with a white water pitcher shedding its beads of sweat, and expounding with my hand in my shirt front just what this problem is.

During my travels, I have tried to get a background of understanding for some personal views in connection with the foreign situation. They are views which will be used in the guidance of our own institutional actions. I am very glad indeed, however, to talk to you as man to man on this problem, at a time when I feel that without some definite understanding of the facts, we would be inclined, with the talk that is about, to get a view of Europe that is wrong, a pessimistic view that I do not consider to be justified by the facts.

Mr. Clemenceau is causing a great deal of stir the country over by that which he is saying, but I assume that he is simply asking, in his own way, that the American public become intelligent about and sympathetic with the difficulties that Europe is facing, and that our people do that which is within their power to help.

I think that we need some concrete suggestions as to action. I cannot conceive of Germany, for instance, getting out of its troubles—and I speak of Germany because the German situation must necessarily be involved if one discusses Europe at all—except as determinations are reached in the particular questions of reparation and of currency, and I doubt that those questions can be solved, except as there is a determination of the question of the status of inter-Allied debts as between the United States, Great Britain, France and Belgium.

I did not find, as I found a year ago, going about Europe, that there was talk of cancellation of inter-Allied debt. I found a common-sense view taken by the bankers of European centres and by the ministries as well—a view that under existing conditions it is folly for America to expect a prompt payment of principal or a payment of interest at a high rate. They are expecting, and I fully believe that in due course we will respect their view, that this debt should be carried along for a long term and at a low interest rate, and with that determined, and, in my opinion, not before, can this general question of reparations be settled, and not till then will Europe emerge from the difficulties of the moment.

I am satisfied that with a settlement of such a question as reparations, the fundamental conditions as they exist in Europe to-day, would make effective a real European prosperity.

I am anxious to have you believe that when I am a "bull" on Europe if that is what I am called, there is something back of that, and it is not something that is made evident for scenery's sake. Fundamental conditions, economic conditions, industrial conditions, in Europe to-day, are so much better than they were a year ago that the picture shows a complete change. France is busy. Belgium is busy. All of the countries of Europe that I obtained a view of from inside or from outside, are industrially active. Sources of production have been opened up. Trade is active. Of course, all of these countries are endeavoring to be self-contained. They are setting up their walls of protective tariffs but gradually, and in one way or another, those attempts to prevent the working of the natural economic law are breaking down, just as they will ultimately break down in this country of ours.

But it is essential that you who are responsible for the distribution of the foreign securities amongst the nationals of this country know something of the actual economic conditions that prevail there to-day.

Now, in France, I say conditions are better. The last week of October showed a tonnage carried on French railroads of 40% in excess of that carried during the same period a year ago. The ocean tonnage showed approximately the same increase. By and large, the production of France to-day is probably greater than at any time in the history of that nation. At the Automobile Show, which was going on while I was in Paris, the sales reached record figures. The export business is on the up-grade. The hotel business, which is indicative of that trade which helps so much in the invisible trade balance, has had a record year in Paris and throughout France, for that matter. The banks who distribute securities throughout France, tell me that they are having a very excellent, steady business in securities, and that there is constant absorption that is of a very encouraging character.

Now, of course, France has not yet obtained the advantage of the reparations work that they have done in the north, but that work is reaching the stage where it is about to be felt in the productivity of France and in her financial position. We are inclined to think that it is a tremendously devastated country. As a matter of fact, out of the 7,200,000 acres of land that were devastated, there have been to-day 6,500,000 returned to production. Trenches have been covered. Explosives have been taken out. Wire entanglements have been removed. The population is there. In 1914, that country, that northern country, had a population of 4,700,000, and to-day it has a population of 4,100,000. It is not a country without the labor for the production of wealth.

The railroads of that territory are all working. All the houses that were destroyed completely have been replaced and those that were damaged have been rehabilitated to the extent of about one-half. The factories are all in operating condition. There is practically no unemployment.

The Alsace-Lorraine country, again, a territory adding much to the wealth of France, is only now coming into production. In September their production of pig iron was 462,000 tons, while in 1921 the monthly average was 382,000 tons, and the year before it was 285,000 tons. I mention these figures because they show the development of the country, the new economic forces of France, and the improvement that has and is taking place.

When I went to France, there were some serious questions in my mind as to her future course. In the first place, I saw that great quantity of Government bills in the market, with constantly recurring maturities of short-term obligations on which the French Government was paying interest, and with their apparent inability to balance the budget, it looked to me as though there was a very marked likelihood that in due course France would convert that interest-bearing debt into non-interest-bearing debt by an inflation of their currency. The operation was not only possible at any time—it appeared likely to occur under pressure. But I found a firm determination to avoid the pitfalls of inflation. The fact is, that during the past two years France has deflated its currency by the amount of 7%. Mr. Rubeno, head of the Bank of France, which is the issuing bank, expressed himself thus: "Mr. Mitchell, I will cut my right hand off at the wrist before I ever sign an authorization for the issue of an additional franc in our circulation." The same view came from the Minister of Finance, Mr. de Lesteyrie, and from his able associate, Mr. Parmentier, with whom I had the pleasure of duscussing these matters. I became satisfied from my talks with these gentlemen, and with the bankers of France, that we need expect no toboggan slide decline in the franc such as has taken place in the mark. So long as they hew to this line and they are determined men, we need not fear that their currency will be inflated as a palliative to their troubles.

I was worried again by the possibility of a break in the Anglo-French entente. In talking with the man on the street in France, one gets the idea that there is a feeling of resentment against the English, and, for that matter, against America too, and that it has pervaded the French people to the danger point. There is no question about that, but when one meets the thinkers who control the destinies of the nation, one finds them thoroughly alive to the absolute necessity of standing shoulder to shoulder with England and such gentlemen, to a man, told me that I could go back with an absolute assurance that a break in the Anglo-French entente was unthinkable.

Now, France is not balancing her budget as yet, and so long as she does not balance her budget there is the necessity of putting out additional bonds to her people. She is moving in the direction of the balancing of her budget, but pending that accomplishment it is perfectly obvious that, except as she has the confidence of her people, and as those people are ready to take up the obligations as offered, she must be in a dangerous position.

When I went to Paris, the new Treasury 6% bond issue had just been offered to the public. I was told by the bankers that if the subscriptions to the issue ran between three and four milliards—that is, billions of francs—it would be considered a successful issue. Before I left for this side, I was given to understand that the subscriptions had already run between five and six billions of francs, and were still coming in. The public have confidence in France, her own public to-day, and they are taking her obligations, and in my opinion will continue to take them as long as there is any necessity therefor.

I was exercised, again, by the realization that France had an adverse trade balance which was not remedied completely by that great invisible balance, which, of course, always is in her favor. That necessitates, so long as it exists, the obtaining of foreign exchange through some means or other. In going over that question, and we gave it some study—I was amazed at the outset at the small amount that would be necessary in the coming year to provide for that deficit, and became satisfied that without any external borrowing by the Government ways and means can be found to obtain the foreign exchange that will give to France the power to buy that which is required to be bought.

Now, you and I are interested in French bonds. My own feeling is that those bonds in the hands of our nationals are absolutely safe, and the soundest of investments. Just take the amount of the French debt. The internal debt is about three hundred billion francs. At the present moment it is the equivalent, at the rate of exchange of the day, to $22,000,000,000. Her debt externally, and in that debt I include not only the debt of the French Government, but as well the debt of her municipalities, of her departments, and the debt of her railroads, guaranteed indirectly by France, aggregates in this country approximately $320,000,000, and in England, converted again at the rate of the day, approximately $80,000,000, with only a small amount of additional external debt in Switzerland, an amount so small that it hardly needs consideration. In other words, with an internal debt of $22,000,000,000, her external debt in the hands of nationals aggregates the very small sum of $400,000,000.

Now, France has a people who are of a character that makes me firm in the belief that they will never permit an obligation of the Government of France in the hands of nationals in this country or in England to go into default. Her people themselves are great investors. They have an understanding of credits. There are 2,000,000 small investors in France. There are 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 land owners. It is the small people of France who own their country. There are a million and a half of shopkeepers. France is a place where patriotism is fostered by the direct ownership of their country by small land holders, and such people will not permit their Government's obligations to go into default in the hands of our nationals. In my opinion French bonds, as they stand to-day, have a ridiculously low credit rating. If we want to be helpful to France, aside from getting our people awakened to the necessity of making some kind of an adjustment as in the matter of payment of the international debt, we can do no more effective thing than to give to the investors with whom you and I are in contact, a definite understanding of the fundamentals upon which the credit of France rests, and the credit back of the bonds which they have in hand.

Conditions in Belgium very nearly parallel those in France. There is a general improvement industrially. Unemployment is practically nil, about 30,000 estimated, as against 210,000 a year ago. As the main basis for my statement that there is marked improvement let me quote some figures which will give you concretely an idea of what is happening in Belgium. This is taken from the London "Economic Review" of Nov. 10.

"Turning to the two leading Belgian industries, metallurgy and textiles, the co-efficients of the present output, compared with 1913, the year before the war, are as follows: Pig iron, 74% in August 1922, compared with 19% in August 1921. Raw steel, 75% against 12% in July 1921. Finished steel, 82% against 23% in July 1921. Textiles, general, 78% in August 1922 against 32% in June. Cloth, which is a great item in the production of Belgium, 138% in September 1922 as against 57% in April 1921."

In other words, Belgium to-day is producing more cloth than she produced in pre-war days. The revival of this activity in general industry is so recent that it has not yet been shown in the figures, but to say that Belgium is retrograding, to say that its fundamental economic conditions are not better than they were a year ago, and that she is not moving, as we have seen from this article, moving on the road to sunshine, is an absurdity.

And again I say that the Belgian Government securities are not enjoying the rating which the facts justify.

Her budget is not yet balanced, but there is a marked improvement.

The Scandinavian countries are in an excellent position. Sweden, of course, is the best of all. Her trade balance is favorable. Her gold reserve for currency is in excess of 50%. In Russia and Germany to-day the two currencies that are accepted without question are the dollar bill and the Swedish crown. Her budget revenues exceed her expenditures. Her people are of a character that stimulates the visitor with the conviction—and now I am speaking of all Scandinavia—that sanity, industry and common sense will rule and naught can happen to destroy or materially affect, for any length of time, the credit of these nations.

In Denmark, which is a great agricultural producing country, their trade is generally good. They have a slight adverse trade balance, but that was the normal condition even before the war.

She is the exporter of foodstuffs to the extraordinary amount of 1,200,000,000 kroner per year, and that business is so basic, that it is unthinkable to me that it can be destroyed by any conditions that exist or can exist in the foreign countries she serves. Her gold reserve, again, is as great—in fact a little greater—than the gold reserve against currency in Sweden, more than 50%. Her budget, which has shown a slight deficit in 1922, will probably show a surplus in 1923.

Again I say that in the case of Denmark, the credit rating that we have given her securities here do not measure the national strength that is behind them.

Norway, like the other Scandinavian countries, is improving very rapidly. Her merchant marine, which was the greatest in Europe, has been practically rebuilt, furnished anew, by reason of the destruction that took place in the war, and is constantly finding an increasing carrying trade in every port of the world. Her trade balance is, for the moment, adverse, but there is a marked improvement taking place.

As to England, of course, good old England can be trusted at every stage of the game. Her budget for the first five months of the fiscal year, from April to September, shows receipts over expenditures of about forty million pounds sterling. Her standard income tax, which went to the point where they began to dry up the very sources from which wealth sprung and where they were defeating their own purpose, has been reduced during the past year from six shillings to the pound to five shillings to the pound. In spite of that reduction, as I have said, there is a balance on the right side of their budget for the first five months of the year, and those are ordinarily the small months. The big months of revenue are still to come.

The condition of her industry is so very much better than when I was there a year ago that it is not in the same category. Her factories are busy. Her coal mines are busy. Her railroads are busy.

I saw something in the newspapers yesterday about unemployment in England. A certain amount of unemployment will always exist where there is labor, but it was my observation that the unemployment question in England to-day has ceased to be a serious one. Her labor leaders are showing sound economic judgment. They are refusing to have wages advanced to where such advances will kill trade. They are insisting that wages be such as will permit the building up of English trade. England, good old England, can always be trusted to be doing that thing which builds not only for herself, but for the development of trade throughout the world.

I am anxious to have you gentlemen join with me in a bullish feeling regarding Europe, insofar as optimism can be justified by facts. I grant you the politics are bad. I grant you that it may take some time to iron out the many difficulties, but so long as the fundamentals are improving, as they are, and are as sound as I believe them to be to-day, I see no reason for feeling pessimistic about European progress. I think it is important that we get this view, because in this country we have a great gold supply which, in the ultimate, must in part move from our shores if it is to have a real value and be a benefit to us. So long as international trade lags by reason of prohibitive tariffs and we are certainly the greatest exponents of them, I would like to have some man tell me how that gold can be used except as it is moved by you and me in placing sound foreign credits with American investors with whom we are in contact.

I think a great responsibility rests upon you and me, and we cannot do our job if we are pessimists, and we must not be pessimists except as the conditions justify.

AN ANALYSIS OF BRITISH INDEBTEDNESS TO THE UNITED STATES.

The Bankers' Trust Company of New York, has obtained through its English Information Service, what are considered authentic figures, giving in detail the expenditures made in the United States by the British Government during the period in which loans were made to Great Britain by the United States Government. The figures are represented as showing that while the total cash advances of the United States to Great Britain amounted to $4,277,000,000, the British Government expended in the United States during the same time the sum of $7,220,000,000 or $2,943,000,000 more than the total amount lent to Great Britain. The items upon which these British expenditures were made in the United States are given as follows (April, 1917 to Nov., 1920):

| Purchases of munitions (including horses, &c.) | $1,536,000,000 |
| Cotton purchased, cereals purchased (to July, 1917) and bills of exchange bought to meet expenditures in U. S. | 1,683,000,000 |
| Payment for cereals after July, 1917 | 1,375,000,000 |
| Purchases of other foods | 1,169,000,000 |
| Tobacco purchased | 99,000,000 |
| Paid for other supplies | 215,000,000 |
| Payments for shipping | 49,000,000 |
| Interest paid to the U. S. Treasury | 388,000,000 |
| Repayment of loans raised in the United States | 353,000,000 |
| Purchases of silver | 262,000,000 |
| Paid in miscellaneous ways | 91,000,000 |

It is pointed out that a number of the above purchases (notably cereals, sugar and munitions) were made by the British Government for other Allied Governments and those Governments subsequently repaid Great Britain $1,854,000,000. But even after deducting those repayments, the net expenditures by Great Britain in the United States for British purposes were $5,366,000,000, or over $1,000,000,000 more than was lent to the British Government by the United States. The above expenditures, it is stated, were provided for as follows (April 1917 to November 1920):

| Loans by U. S. Treasury (net after deducting repayments) | $4,197,000,000 |
| Dollars paid by U. S. Government to British Government for sterling required to make payments in England | 449,000,000 |
| Dollars paid to British Government for rupees and gold from India sold to U. S. Treasury | 81,000,000 |
| Money raised by the British Government from other sources | 639,000,000 |
| | $5,366,000,000 |

It is added that the final item includes any payments to Great Britain for services rendered (such as transportation of troops, &c.) which the United States made in dollars in America, together with such sums as the British Government amassed from interest on or sales of American securities owned by it, shipments of gold and other exports, and so forth.

TRADE BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY IN FIRST SEVEN MONTHS OF 1922.

Trade between France and Germany in the first seven months of 1922 amounted in value to 1,721,285,000 francs. France's imports from Germany were valued at 765,407,000 francs and her exports to Germany amounted to 955,878,000 francs. According to figures received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, from its French Information service, (and given out under date of Nov. 17) the chief imports of France from Germany were:

| Common woods | frs. 16,802,000 |
| Cellulose | 20,147,000 |
| Coal | 365,200,000 |
| Coal-tar products | 17,818,000 |
| Paper | 18,871,000 |
| Prepared skins | 22,879,000 |
| Machinery | 68,979,000 |
| Tools | 26,816,000 |

France exports to Germany in the above period were principally as follows:

| Cast Iron and steel | frs. 134,228,000 |
| Ores | 30,879,000 |
| Cotton yarns | 42,149,000 |
| Woolen yarns | 44,159,000 |
| Cotton fabrics | 141,314,000 |
| Woolen fabrics | 90,181,000 |
| Silk fabrics | 27,615,000 |

The above figures, the Trust Company points out, show a decrease in the value of Franco-German trade. In the first seven months of 1921 France's imports from Germany amounted to 1,420,909,000 francs and her exports to Germany totaled 1,138,397,000 francs. However, the balance of trade in this year in favor of France, which was not the case in the above periods of 1921 and 1920.

ALLIED CALL UPON GERMANY TO GIVE SATISFACTION FOR TREATY VIOLATIONS.

In advices to Germany, the Allied Powers, through the Council of Ambassadors, informed that Government that all questions concerning the withdrawal of the Military Control Commission in Germany had been suspended until the German Government gives the fullest satisfaction for what are termed flagrant violations of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, committed during the last six months, and shows willingness to abide by the Commission's instructions. The Associated Press, in reporting this in Paris cablegrams Nov. 17, also said:

The note of the Allies was sent after the receipt of a German communication on the subject which was termed "insolent to a degree." In this communication Germany is said to have disregarded totally the long series of notes of complaint sent by the Allies and to have declared that she was glad to learn the Allies were about to end their military control and permit Germany to revert back to normal.

The note also ignored formal Allied representation to the Berlin Government of Sept. 29, consequent on the large number of acts of aggression against the Allied military in their work of inspection.

The Allied note of to-day demands an apology and reparations for recent incidents at Passau and Stettin. In requesting an immediate reply the Allies say their patience is about exhausted.

The Council of Ambassadors also is making another demand for the German naval enlistment list, which has been repeatedly refused them during the last six months. It is said the Allies suspect that Germany is exceeding her quota of enlistments and violating the conditions of training provided for in the peace treaty.

A decision has been reached by the Allies to warn Germany that she will not be permitted to manufacture new war inventions in which she at present is said to be actively engaged. The Allies cannot prevent study or experiments of such inventions, but it is asserted they will prohibit the making of them.

ELIOT WADSWORTH TO REPRESENT U. S. AT PARIS CONFERENCE ON RHINE ARMY PAYMENTS.

The State Department at Washington has designated Assistant Secretary Eliot Wadsworth of the Treasury Department to represent the United States at the conference to be held in Paris to discuss means for reimbursing this country for the cost of maintaining troops of occupation in Germany. A press dispatch from Washington to the New York "Times" Nov. 23 said:

He will go to Paris as the American delegate, and will report to Washington for instructions after that conference gets down to work.

The conference will be held at an early but unspecified date, and be attended by representatives of England, France and Italy as well as the United States. The costs of the American military forces on the Rhine to date are estimated at $300,000,000, or an increase of more than $50,000,000 since last May, when Secretary Hughes had his exchange of notes with the Chancelleries of the Allied powers, after it had become known that no provision was being made for its payment by Germany from funds set apart for reparations payments.

It was then that President Harding announced that the American forces would be withdrawn ftom the Rhine, but subsequently the Allied Governments and Germany requested that the American troops be left there, and this request was granted.

The formal announcement by the State Department ro-day follows:

"The Governments of Great Britain, France and Italy, in the memorandum of Nov. 8 1922, handed to the Secretary of State on that date by their diplomatic representatives at Washington reiterated their willingness to find a practical means to meet the desires of the United States concerning the reimbursement of American army costs and invited this Government to nominate a representative to meet Allied delegates in Paris forthwith in order to examine the matter as a whole.

"The above memorandum stated that the Allied Governments felt sure that this procedure would make it possible to prepare for submission to the interested Governments at an early date a solution to the question under discussion which would prove satisfactory to all parties concerned.

"This Government has accepted the invitation of the Allied Governments and has—designed Eliot Wadsworth, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, as its representative."

EDGAR CRAMMOND URGES NEW PLAN FOR REPARATION.

The New York "Commercial" printed the following advices from London Nov. 21:

Edgar Crammond, British authority on economics, addressing the London Chamber of Commerce to-day on the international financial situation, proposed that the capital amount of the reparations to be paid by Germany be fixed forthwith at £1,100,000,000.

Of this amount France should receive, 52%, the speaker said; Italy 10%, the British Empire 22%, Belgium 8% and eight other Allies 8%.

Mr. Crammond suggested that, if Germany is unable to make cash reparation payments during the next three years, a further £200,000,000 should be provided by an external loan. The service of the £1,300,000,000, he said, would be equivalent to about £1 per head of German population.

Great Britain, he believed, should cancel war debts due her by the French and Italian Governments, as well as all other war debts, while the United States should be asked to cancel the French and Italian debts. France should also undertake to cancel war debts owed her by her former allies.

Great Britain, the speaker declared, should enter into a defensive pact with France, Germany, Italy and Belgium for 25 years, making provision for admission of other powers to such an agreement.

NEW GERMAN CHANCELLOR WANTS MORATORIUM.

An Associated Press cablegram from Berlin, Nov. 24, appeared as follows in the New York "Evening Post" of last night:

Chancellor Cuno, in the course of afdeclaration on the new Government's policy in the Reichstag to-day, said the Government had fully adopted the note sent by the late Wirth Government to the Reparations Commission on Nov. 13, and was resolved upon executing the program that note contained.

Germany, said the Chancellor, must have a complete moratorium on reparations in cash and in kind, except deliveries for the devastated areas, for three or four years, and must obtain a loan of 500,000,000 gold marks to stabilize her finances.

The Chancellor laid emphasis upon the statement that the Government considered it was its duty to do everything possible for the discharge of Germany's obligations as the loser in the war, especially regarding the devastated regions, but Germany's vital requirements, he declared, must first be provided for.

Referring to the Rhineland, Chancellor Cuno said: "This Government will never surrender the occupied German territory."

In epitomizing the Government's foreign policy the Chancellor said: "Bread first, then reparations, will be a watchword for the new Government, as this policy of obvious self-preservation is indispensable to the enhancement of productiveness in all lines."

BERLIN ARRANGES FOR LOAN OF 300,000,000 MARKS.

The City of Berlin has concluded arrangements for a loan of 300,000,000 marks from a Danish consortium, according to a press cablegram from London Nov. 22. The loan, it is stated, is to be repaid within fifty years in marks or Danish kronen.

WILL CLOSE PARIS BOURSE ON SATURDAYS, BEGINNING JANUARY.

A Paris cablegram to the daily papers Nov. 21 said:

At the request of the Foreign Office, it has been decided to close the Bourse every Saturday, winter and summer, after the first of January, says "Excelsior" to-day. The reason for the decision, the newspaper asserts, is that through the closing of the London and Brussels exchanges on Saturday, tne Paris market alone bears the brunt of serious events, news of which arrives on that day.

INTERNATIONAL POSITION OF YUGOSLAVIA RAILROAD SYSTEM.

We have been favored with a translation of an article prepared for the American press by R. M. Avramovitch of Belgrade regarding the international position of the Yugoslavia railroad system. Mr. Avramovitch, who is the Chief Engineer and Under Secretary of State for Communications in the Kingdom S. H. S., was formerly Technical Delegate at the Peace Conference and Expert Adviser of the Advisory and Technical Commission of the League of Nations. He has contributed other articles for general publication on the subject, including one published Sept. 7 by the Manchester "Guardian" in its series of Reconstruction articles. Blair & Co., Inc., of this city, in furnishing us with the translation of the article on Yugoslavian railroads states that they are advised by an American engineer now in Yugoslavia that the Yugoslavia State Railroads are the only ones in Central Europe not showing a deficit. The following is the translation:

Owing to its geographical location between Western Europe and the Orient and between Northern Europe and the Mediterranean, the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes (Yugoslavia) is a pivotal point of the highest importance, from the standpoint of international communication. The value of these great lines of communication is enhanced by the fact that the Danube, the international river of Europe, waters districts of our Kingdom for 45% of its navigable length and joins, below the walls of Belgrade, another national river which is navigable, the Save.

Among other lines of international interest which pass through Yugoslavia, the following have already been established as international main lines of first rank:

First: The Old Orient Express, London-Paris-Munich-Vienna-Budapest-Belgrade-Sofia-Constantinople.

Second: The line called the Line of the 45th Parallel, Bordeaux (Atlantic Ocean)-Lyons-Milan-Trieste-Belgrade-Bucharest-Odessa.

But one of the most important lines, though long projected, has not yet been realized on account of the obstacles put in the way by the former Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. It had, nevertheless, been contemplated prior to the war, by Russia, and even by Italy. It is the line called the "Adriatic," which will give access to the northern part of our Kingdom, connect the whole of Central Europe, and beyond that, Russia, particularly Southern Russia, and the section of tremendous natural wealth, in the basin of the Don River, with branch lines extending northward through Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Poland, connecting Warsaw with Kiev and Moscow, and bringing all these countries nearer to the Adriatic. Moreover, this line passing through our territories, richest in lumber, ore, coal and cereals, and with its outlet on the Adriatic, will establish connections with the most important ports of Western Europe, Northern Africa, South America, and the United States, with which we anticipate close and strong commercial relations.

We are very happy to see that this line, which has been the constant ambition of our statesmen past and present, is now in full process of realization by the law passed by our Parliament, ratifying the contract with an important American group.

The great advantages which are anticipated from the construction of this line, not only for my country, but also for the countries which it will connect and for the entire world which it will affect, may perhaps excite some envy which, let us hope, far from having any effect, will, on the contrary, furnish additional reasons to the interested parties to work on this line, thereby creating new international relations to the benefit of the economic reconstruction of Europe and contributing toward the betterment of the entire world.

My country, being convinced that communications in general are the foundation of all economic, social and intellectual life, that only through them the world has become an undivided unity which was destroyed as a result of the war, and that they must now be reconstituted, has made energetic efforts and considerable sacrifices for the reconstruction. I can confirm that the enormous progress which we have made during the three years, since our liberation, greatly exceeds the sacrifices suffered. Let us never forget that our system of communications, after the retreat of the enemy in 1918, represented only ruins. This has been witnessed by the American Commission sent by Mr. Hoover, which established the fact that at that time there were only two locomotives in good condition and five of little use, to be found between Belgrade and Nish. The roadbed, equipment, bridges, buildings, even the rails, were destroyed. Left alone to ourselves in a country which had been pillaged, sacked and drained during three years of occupation, surrounded by our enemies and far away from our friends, especially on account of the lack of means of transport at that time, we found ourselves in a really desperate situation, but we were never discouraged.

Thanks to the cession by the American Government of a quantity of railroad material from its stock in France, which operation I had the honor to suggest, and thanks to the efforts of our engineers and to the sacrifices of our nation, we have restored traffic and communication, which, while not offering pre-war comfort, now exceed 2½ times the pre-war figures for the number of trains and the kilometric tons . We have at last almost rehabilitated our railroads. At present there are 36 lines of international interest running to the neighboring countries. The average speed of our trains, which in 1918 amounted to zero for reasons above mentioned, reached 10 kilometres an hour in 1919, 20 kilometres in 1920 and 30 kilometres in 1921. To-day it is 45 kilometres an hour. As soon as the small amount of construction which remains shall have been completed, we shall again attain the former speed of 60 kilometres an hour; this is a matter of a few months.

I might add that the revival of the passenger and merchandise movement is also due to the healthy conditions created by the disappearance of the foreign obstacles of the pre-war period, by the national and political unification of the country, by the liberation of our brothers who were lately under the Turkish and Austro-Hungarian yoke, as well as by the bright and solid condition of the State itself.

Our efforts are indicated by the statement of receipts and expenses from 1918 to the present time. In 1919-1920 receipts of our railways amounted to 160 millions, expenses to 260 millions. In 1920-1921 our receipts were 550 millions, expenses 625 millions. In 1921-1922 our receipts represented 1,040 millions, expenses only 880 millions.

Even more significant figures are furnished by comparison of the monthly receipts and expenses of the current year, which can be considered as opening a normal era.

Our lines have not only been repaired, with new ties, but have been improved, the stations have been enlarged, installation of signals has been accomplished, the erection of metal bridges, representing up to now 15,000 tons, has already been nearly finished. The rolling stock, which was a car cemetery in 1918, represents to-day a respectable figure, although it is still insufficient. In addition to these enormous expenses on account of reconstruction, we are also constructing new lines and junctions with the systems in the territories united to Serbia, which Austria-Hungary had systematically isolated in order to bring about the convergence of all the lines on Vienna and Budapest and thus separate our brothers, under her domination, from us who lived in Serbia. These new lines, which are actually under construction, represent about 450 kilometres.

Activity reigns in my country in spite of the difficulties common to all European countries, and even to other continents, and, far from fearing unemployment, we lack, on the contrary, workmen; it is to be kept in mind that the war, deportations and sickness have decimated our working population.

I will terminate by declaring that the sacrifices suffered have been endured with the confidence that they will be compensated by the reparations, which are due us as indemnification for the ruins voluntarily accumulated during the war, which had been forced on us; these reparations will be very profitably used not only in the interest of my ravaged country, but also for the benefit of our ex-enemies and of the entire world.

In order to indicate to you the nature of the relations, even the good-will which we entertain towards our former enemies, I will only mention the fact that we are having the greatest part of our rolling stock repaired in the shops of Austria and Hungary. These repairs amount into millions.

In terminating, permit me to recall the pleasant recollections of all the great technical works in connection with communications which were executed by the American and French genius in France, works which I had the honor and the pleasure to inspect and admire during the war and on the occasion of the arrival in France of American material for the reconstruction of our railroads. Under these circumstances, I had the honor to make the acquaintance of and to co-operate with a number of distinguished Americans, among them Mr. Hoover, whom I keep in excellent remembrance, and to all of whom I am grateful for all they have done for my country, directly or indirectly.

ROGER W. BABSON ON "OUTLOOK FOR 1923."

In an address last week at Cooper Union, New York, before a gathering of bankers and investors, Roger W. Babson, of Wellesley Hills, Mass., discussed "The Outlook for 1923." He cited four favorable and three unfavorable factors and in conclusion expressed the belief that the indications are "that 1923 will be a better year than 1922, but that it will take two or three years more to complete the readjustment and bring America back to normal." The following is a summary of his remarks:

Four Factors Are Favorable.

(1) Fundamental Conditions—By this I mean that the social, economic and spiritual conditions which affect business have improved so that they now furnish the basis for genuine prosperity. The over-extension among business concerns and the habits of extravagance and waste on the part of people are now being corrected.

(2) Crop Conditions—From the standpoint of profits, the crop outlook is the best in years. The harvest promised is large and prices are fair. Estimates indicate that the value of harvests at the farm will be more than $6,000,000,000 compared with $4,900,000,000 last year. This indicates that the majority of farmers will net about 30% more for their products than they did a year ago, consideraing the fact that producing expenses have been less. At least one-third of the people in the United States are going to have increased buying power this winter.

(3) Money Conditions—The Federal Reserve Banks are rediscounting only about a fourth as much as they were this time last year. Reporting member banks have cut down their loans by something more than $1,000,000,000. The ratio of nearly 80% of reserves against Federal Reserve note and deposit liabilities shows the strong position of the Federal Reserve System. Certainly the bank statements promise plenty of money with which to do business throughout 1923.

(4) Commodity Conditions—The position of business houses is decidedly better. Reports show that in most cases inventories have been sufficiently reduced. Stocks of goods have been cut down. Failures are fewer. The peak of losses apparently has been passed. Prices are becoming stabilized. A shortage in goods may even be witnessed in some lines.

Three Factors are Unfavorable.

(1) Labor Conditions—Common labor is fully employed and the building trades are working overtime. The settlement of the railroad, coal and textile strikes have put a million men back to work. This should mean better business because the purchasing power of the people is ultimately determined by the total payroll of the people. But it is reported that labor is yet careless and inefficient. If so, with present immigration conditions, this is a bad sign.

(2) Manufacturing Capacity—Mills and factories are working at only 60% of their capacity. This means that competition will be keen and profits will be cut to a minimum.

(3) Foreign Conditions—Affairs in Europe are in a very bad shape. Another European war may break out at any time. America cannot have good business until some peace policy is developed whereby these nations can use the money now spent upon armaments for the payment of their debts.

Conclusions.—The above indicates that 1923 will be a better year than 1922; but that it will take two or three years more to complete the readjustment and bring America back to normal.

OFFERING OF BONDS OF CENTRAL ILLINOIS JOINT STOCK LAND BANK (GREENVILLE, ILL.).

At 103 and accrued interest to yield over 4.60% to optional maturity and 5% thereafter, William R. Compton Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Harris, Forbes & Co. offered on Nov. 20 $1,500,000 Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank (Greenville, Ill.) 5% bonds. The bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act; $500,000 of the amount offered are dated Nov. 1 1922, are optional Nov. 1 1932, and are due Nov. 1 1952; interest is payable May 1st and Nov. 1st; the other $1,000,000 are dated Dec. 1 1922, are optional Dec. 1 1932, and become due Dec. 1 1952; interest on these bonds is payable June 1 and Dec. 1. They are coupon bonds, fully registerable and interchangeable and are in denomination of $1,000. Principal and interest are payable at the Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank, Greenville, Ill., or at the American Trust Company, St. Louis, Missouri. The bonds are legal investment for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government and are acceptable as security for postal savings and other deposits of Government funds. They are exempt from Federal, State, municipal and local taxation. With regard to the organization of the Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank we take the following, credited to official sources, from the circular offering the bonds:

The Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank was chartered by the Federal Farm Loan Board on May 1 1922, and has a capital of $250,000. While by its charter it is restricted in its operations to the States of Illinois and Indiana, the bank has elected to confine itself to thirty-eight counties in southern Illinois and twenty in southwestern Indiana. This territory in general consists of a strip of counties about three wide along the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between St. Louis and Terre Haute. By far the largest portion of the loans have been made in the territory immediately surrounding Greenville.

The Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank is under private ownership and management, and its operations are carefully restricted and supervised by the Government. The officers and directors are successful bankers and business men of broad experience, who are thoroughly familiar with agricultural conditions and land values in the territory in which this bank operates.

Mr. Clarence E. Hoiles, the President and active executive officer, is well fitted for the management of the bank. He has been constantly associated with the State Bank of Hoiles & Sons of Greenville, as an inactive Vice-President, and for the past four years has been the President of that institution, which was founded by his grandfather in 1869. Previous to his becoming President of this bank, Mr Hoiles practiced law, and was associated with the Bond County Abstract Company. While actively associated with the company, he supervised the placing of loans to the extent of more than $1,000,000.

Associated with Mr. Hoiles are Guy J. McCune, Vice-President; Joseph M. Daniels, Secretary and Treasurer; and George H. Houghey, Manager. Mr. McCune is active in the management of the State Bank of Hoiles & Sons, and Mr. Daniels is cashier of that institution..

OFFERING OF BONDS OF OREGON-WASHINGTON JOINT STOCK LAND BANK.

The first issue of bonds of the Oregon-Washington Joint Stock Land Bank (Portland, Ore.) 5% Farm Loan bonds ($500,000) were offered on Monday last (Nov. 20) by Brooke, Stokes & Co. of Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, at 103 and interest, yielding 4.62% to the callable date and 5% thereafter. The bank was chartered on May 12 1922. The bonds are dated Nov. 1 1922, are due Nov. 1 1952 and are callable at par on Nov. 1 1932 or any interest date thereafter. Interest is payable May and Nov. 1 at Oregon-Washington Joint Stock Land Bank, Portland, Ore., or at Brooke, Stokes & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. The bonds are in denomination of $1,000. By Act of Congress such obligations are "instrumentalities of the United States Government," and exempt from Federal, State, municipal and local taxation. Under decision of the Supreme Court of the United States handed down Feb. 28 1921, the constitutionality of the Act and the tax exemption features of these bonds were fully sustained. They are legal investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, and are acceptable at par for deposits of postal savings and other deposits of Government funds. Robert E. Smith, President of the Lumbermen's Trust Co. of Portland, Ore., is President of the Oregon-Washington Joint Stock Land Bank. The other officers of the latter are C. F. Wright. also Vice-President of the Lumbermen's Trust Co.; Ira T. Walker, Assistant Secretary; Carl Detering, Treasurer, and George C. Burton, Chief Appraiser. A letter from President Smith to Brooke, Stokes & Co. made public coincident with the offering, says:

The Oregon-Washington Joint Stock Land Bank was organized by the Lumbermen's Trust Co. and its associates and was chartered by the Federal Farm Loan Board on May 12 1922. It operates in Oregon and Washington, restricting its loans to heavy soil wheat lands in Eastern Oregon and Washington, and to general purpose farm and dairy lands in the Willamette, Hood River, Rogue, Umpoua and Grande Ronde Valleys in Oregon and certain choice farming sections in Western Washington.

A small percentage of its loans are made on irrigated farms, and these are confined to those where the owner has the sole ownership of a determined water right and the farm a long history of successful operation and satisfactory earnings.

Loans on orchard lands are made only upon the value of the naked land exclusive of the trees and must be fully adaptable to the successful growing of products other than orchard crops.

Loans on dairy farms, which constitute a substantial portion of those accepted, are in each case on well improved farms with sufficient dairy cows and hogs to assure satisfactory monthly earnings.

The loaning policy of the bank is conservative, and in addition to the regulations of the Federal Farm Loan Board respecting security, all loans are judged from an income basis, no loans being accepted unless the earning history of the farm conclusively shows that it will produce in addition to interest, principal, tax and maintenance requirements ample funds for living expenses of the borrower.

The officers and directors of the Land Bank are largely the same as those of the Lumbermen's Trust Co., and nearly all of them have had farm mortgage experience in Oregon and Washington for periods ranging from ten to thirty years.

Mr. George C. Burton, who is in immediate charge of appraisals has had thirty years' experience in this field as head appraiser for the Alliance Trust Co., Edinborough, Scotland, and other Scotch Farm Loan companies which have loaned upwards of fifty millions of dollars on the farm lands of these two States.

The three principal field appraisers have also been employed by these Scotch companies for periods ranging from ten to twenty years.

Mr. Burton is assisted by Mr. George A. Z. Harris, who for the past five years has been associated with the Federal Farm Loan Board, first in the Appraisal Division at Washington, D. C., and later as the Board's Inspector of Farm Loan associations in the Pacific Northwest.

The diversified character of the farms upon which funds are loaned, the stringent requirements as to income and the sharp restrictions which are made upon the loaning territory should result in the prompt and unquestioned payment of interest and principal payments of all loans.

EX-PARTNER BRINGS SUIT AGAINST NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM OF JOSEPHTHAL & CO.

Henry J. Schnitzer, a former partner in the New York Stock Exchange house of Josephthal & Co., at 120 Broadway, this city, on Wednesday of this week (Nov. 22) filed a complaint in the County Clerk's office asking that the assets of the firm be placed in trust in the hands of a receiver and an accounting be made. He also asks that the firm be "legally dissolved" and the amounts due him returned. He alleges irregularities, it is said, whereby it was made to appear that his investment in the firm of $800,000 had been wiped out. The allegations contained in Mr. Schnitzer's complaint were set forth in the New York "Times" of Nov. 23 as follows:

Schnitzer alleges that between January 1917 and January 1920 he was a partner in Josephthal & Co., under agreement. He sets forth that on Dec. 11 1919 a further contract was entered into, which was extended to Dec. 31 of this year. Under the original agreement, the complaint sets forth, Mr. Josephthal contributed $2,000,000 and the use of his Stock Exchange seat; Schnitzer put up $800,000. Losses and profits were to be equally divided and it was agreed that Josephthal could draw $75,000 and Schnitzer $50,000, according to the pap rs.

Schnitzer declares that Josephthal agreed that between 1919 and 1922 he was to share in the profits on the basis of 2% if the amount was $600,000, thereafter increasing participation up to 15% on $1,500,000. According to Schnitzer, a sub-contract entered into on Dec. 4 1919 provided for the admission into the firm of Harry Renskorf, Max Holz, Rosenheim, Gerold and Rhodes. Renskorf and Rosenheim, he said, contributed $25,000 and $50,000, with Stock Exchange seats, and the others put up $25,000 each. Gerold, he added, increased his interst last year to $50,000, and Renskorf and Holz left the firm.

Schnitzer then charges that, beginning the first of last year, "the defendants entered into a conspiracy to exclude the plaintiff from partnership and to unlawfully deprive him of his rights." He asserts that in furtherance of the alleged conspiracy the partners "caused improper entries to be made in the books of accounts kept by Gerold, whereby they wrongfully attempted to make it appear that the plaintiff's entire investment of $800,000 in the partnership had been wiped out," and that he was in debt to them.

Thereafter, Schnitzer says in his complaint, Josephthal, Rosenheim and Gerold refused to permit him to participate in the business and canceled his right to sign checks. He charges the partners "improperly trnasferred losses sustained by the partnership to plaintiff's individual account as though the losses were individual transactions, and so wrongfully and fraudulently manipulated entries in the books of accounts that amounts of cash, stocks and bonds, securities and other assets apparently disappeared from the assets of said partnership."

In his complaint Schnitzer adds that the defendants finally threatened him with criminal prosecution and public exposure for the alleged commission of a crime "upon charges false and untrue, involving personal integrity and commercial standing," unles he consented in writing to the voluntary dissolution of the partnership prior to but on and as of Dec. 31 of last year. Schnitzer recites that the partners ousted him on Feb. 11 of thisoyear and declared the partnership dissolved, a new firm thereupon being organized. He maintains the firm has refused to deliver to him securities he owned, setting up as a reason that he was indebted to the house. This he disavows, saying that large credits are due him.

On the ground that he understands new partners and capital will be brought into the firm after the first of the year, Schnitzer fears that it will be difficult in such an event to trace his own investment and a multiplicity of suits may be required to establish his rights.

The complaint names as defendants, it is said, the firm's members, Louis M. Josephthal, DeWitt R. Rosenheim, Nicholas J. Gerold and Gilbert L. Rhodes. On Thursday Mr. Gerold issued the following statement:

In the absence of Mr. Josephthal, in Chicago, I will say that Henry J. Schnitzer was expelled from the former firm of Josephthal & Co. as it existed prior to Feb. 11 1922, and that there is no merit whatsoever in his charges.

The ground for Mr. Schnitzer's expulsion will appear in our answering papers to his suit, which will be filed within a few days, and will indicate the true character of this litigation, instituted nearly a year after Mr. Schnitzer's expulsion from the old firm.

BORDEN & KNOBLAUCH, PHILADELPHIA, FAIL.

Borden & Knoblauch, 119 South 4th St., Philadelphia, were suspended from the Philadelphia Stock Exchange on Nov. 22 for insolvency. The firm consisted of James B. Borden (the Stock Exchange member) and Ernest A. Knoblauch. Mr. Borden became a member of the Exchange on Dec. 22 1909. Later developments in the firm's failure were the arrest and arraignment of Mr. Borden and Mr. Knoblauch on Thursday (Nov. 23) on charges of fraud made by the New York correspondents of the firm, Kean, Taylor & Co. of this city. According to a press dispatch from Philadelphia yesterday (Nov. 24) appearing in "Financial America" of that date, the firm on Nov. 17 "placed a buying order with Kean, Taylor & Co. for more than $400,000 worth of high-grade miscellaneous bonds. Kean, Taylor & Co. are said to have purchased the bonds and notified Borden & Knoblauch their balance was not sufficient to cover the purchase price. A check was then sent by the firm to the New York correspondents, and the bonds were sent by express to Philadelphia. The check was returned as valueless, and the failure followed, resulting in the charge being made by Kean, Taylor & Co." Bail for each of the defendants was place at $50,000, which in the case of Mr. Borden was furnished and he was released for a further hearing together with Mr. Knoblauch next Wednesday, Nov. 29. It is stated that Mr. Borden has taken no active part in the business of the failed firm since 1919. Mr. Knoblauch was taken to Mayamensing prison in default of the $50,000 bail. The liabilities of the firm are placed at $1,624,608 and its assets at $1,199,350.

ALLAN A. RYAN DISCHARGED FROM BANKRUPTCY.

Allan A. Ryan, who, on July 21 last, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal District Court, was released from bankruptcy by Judge Augustus N. Hand on Nov. 20. There was no opposition to his discharge. George F. Lewis, personal attorney for Mr. Ryan in the bankruptcy proceedings, is reported as saying that Mr. Ryan's discharge from bankruptcy makes possible the carrying out of his business plans, and that within a short time directors and an official organization will be chosen for Allan A. Ryan & Co., Inc.—the new stock and bond house for which articles of incorporation were filed in Albany a short time ago. We last referred to Mr. Ryan's affairs in our issue of Sept. 30, page 1502.

JONES & THURMOND, THIS CITY, BANKRUPT.

On Nov. 14 an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court against J. A. Jones Jr. and W. F. Thurmond, doing business under the firm name of Jones & Thurmond, 100 Broadway, dealers in stocks and bonds.

FINAL SETTLEMENT BY G. AMSINCK & CO., INC., WITH DEPART 1ENT OF EL VALLE DEL CAUCA, COLO 1BIA, IN MATTER OF LOAN.

Matthew C. Brush, President of G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., gave out the following statement for publication on Nov. 20:

G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., has made final settlement with the Department of El Valle del Cauca, Colombia, of the loan made by the company to the Department in 1919 and 1920 for the purpose of constructing a dock at the Port of Buenaventura. The Department has delivered to the company $1,205,000 7% 10-Year External Sinking Fund gold bonds. These bonds have a lien on the revenues derived from liquor, tobacco and slaughterhouse taxes, and machinery has been set up for the collection, deposit and remittance of service funds to the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, trustee of the bonds. The revenues upon which the bonds are a lien are about eight times the annual requirements for bond service, and the bonds are additionally secured by a mortgage on the dock. It is expected that the national Government will shortly purchase this dock. The arrangement between G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., and the Department has been sanctioned by the National Government of Colombia and the bonds bear the signature of the Colombian Minister to the United States on behalf of the Department.

The negotiation was conducted by the company with Phanor J. Eder, representing the Department in New York. The transaction illustrates the general policy which G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., has followed in dealing with its South and Central American debtors. The company's experience, covering three-quarters of a century, has conclusively demonstrated that the good faith of the South and Central American debtors can be counted upon with certainty and that, given a reasonable amount of time and cooperation on the part of the creditor, collection of just debts can ultimately be made.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION OF NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE RESPECTING PRIVILEGES OF PARTNER OF PRESIDENT OF EXCHANGE.

The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange has adopted an amendment of the constitution providing that the committee on admissions may by a two-thirds vote authorize a partner of the President of the Exchange, although not a member of the Exchange, to exercise the privilege of transacting business on the floor for the account of the firm of which the President of the Exchange is a member. The following is the announcement made by Secretary Cox:

The following Amendment to the Constitution was adopted by the Governing Committee on Nov. 22 1922, and is submitted to the Exchange in accordance with the provisions of Article XXXVIII. of the Constitution and will become law if not disapproved within one week by a majority vote of the entire membership:

Amend Article XIII by adding thereto a new section, to be known as Section 6, and to read as follows:

Sec. 6. The Committee on Admissions may, by a two-thirds vote of the entire Committee, authorize a partner of the President of the Exchange, although not a member of the Exchange, to exercise the privilege of transacting business upon the Floor of the Exchange for the account of the firm of which the President is a member.

Such privilege may not be exercised by the partner of the President, on whom such privilege has been conferred, when the President is engaged in the transaction of business on the Floor of the Exchange.

The Committee on Admissions may at any time withdraw such privilege.

E. V. D. COX, Secretary.

NEW PARTNERSHIPS TO LIFT TAX BURDENS— KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE AND OTHERS PLAN TO BECOME JOINT STOCK ASSOCIATIONS.

The following is from the New York "Herald" of Nov. 23:

A large number of Wall Street houses now conducting business on a co-partnersnip basis are considering dissolution and reorganization on the basis of joint stock associations or incorporations. This step was first taken by Blair & Co. about two years ago, and this year that example was followed by three other concerns, namely, Goldman, Sachs & Co., Dillon, Read & Co. and Bond & Goodwin. The first two changed into joint stock associations and tne last named firm became incorporated.

The largest house now considering reorganization as a joint stock association, it was learned yesterday, is Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, bankers, at 120 Broadway. It is believed that fifteen or twenty other houses engaged in the banking and brokerage business are considering or already have decided to make such change in their capital status.

One of the chief reasons for the desire to dissolve the old partnerships, it is said, is to escape the heavy burden of taxation borne under that head. Co-partnerships are not taxes as corporations, but as individuals, so that each partner is compelled to pay taxes on all profits earned, whether distributed or undistributed. These taxes are at the regular income tax rates and have been known to amount to 50 or 60% on individual incomes.

Partners in a joint stock association are all liable for the company's debts, but that form of partnership is taxable as a corporation, which means that only 12½% is paid on earnings. The profits of the year can be distributed or kept in the treasury at the discretion of the partners in the firm. Dividends that are distributed are not subject to the normal tax, but only to the surtax.

Another objection to the co-partnership is that on the death of a partner a complete reorganization is necessary. The chief obstacle to incorporation is that concerns taking such steps no longer can be members of the New York Stock Exchange. This consideration has kept several houses from becoming corporations. If the Stock Exchange permitted incorporated firms to become members it would immediately place itself under State control and would not have the unrestricted powers it now has in the matter of supervision of stock quotation tickers, &c.

The concerns that do seek incorporation are compelled to transact their Stock Exchange business through other members. In the case of a house whose business is mostly in bonds this is of little consequence, as the bulk of the bond business is done outside of the Exchange, but houses depending almost entirely on a stock brokerage business are faced with a serious problem.

WISCONSIN BANKS OUTSIDE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM NOT EMPOWERED TO EXECUTE ACCEPTANCES.

The following is from the bulletin issued on Nov. 3 by the State Banking Department of Wisconsin:

Bank Acceptances.

Wisconsin State banks, except such banks as are members of the Federal Reserve System, have now power to execute acceptances or trade acceptances. Section 2024—9, Subsection 1 (f) of the statutes confers upon banks certain powers, but the power to execute trade acceptances is not so conferred; consequently, a bank cannot lawfully do so.

In another portion of the section above mentioned, it is especially provided that such State banks as may become members of the Federal Reserve System, may have and exercise all powers not in conflict with the laws of this State which are conferred upon any member bank by the Federal Reserve Act. This provision appears to authorize member banks to execute trade acceptances.

This ruling is made on the strength of an official opinion by the Hon. William J. Morgan, Attorney-General, bearing date Oct. 18 1922, and banks will be required to comply with this construction of the law.

W. G. McADOO WOULD USE PROFITS ARISING THROUGH TARIFF ACT AS SOLDIER BONUS.

The utilization of a portion of the net earnings of corporations benefiting through the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act as payment toward a soldier bonus was proposed by former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo in an address on Armistice Day at Fullerton, Cal. According to the Associated Press dispatches Mr. McAdoo declared it was "sheer hypocrisy" to say that the nation cannot bear the bonus burden when great subsidiaries are granted to private interests at the expense of the people and for purposes which cannot be successfully defended. He is also quoted as saying:

The Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill was recently passed by Congress and approved by the President. It is estimated that the trusts, monopolies, combinations in restraint of trade and other beneficiaries of this measure will be able to take from the pockets of the American people $3,600,000,000 per annum, while the law is on the statute books.

How can such a conscienceless misuse of powers of Government be justified when the soldiers and sailors who saved our institutions are denied a just recognition of $1,600,000,000 on the ground that to grant it would impose excessive burdens on the American people?

Let an average of the net earning of every trust, monopoly, corporation or beneficiary of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill be ascertained for five years, or for some reasonable period preceding the enactment of the law. Then take each year 50% of all net earnings of these tariff beneficiaries in excess of the average while the bill is in effect and apply it to the payment of the bonus.

The plan is analogous to that adopted by the British Government for raising money to carry on the war.

There are some things that cannot be measured in dollars. Justice is one of them. The nation must stand for justice and do justice no matter what the cost may be in blood or treasure!

Mr. McAdoo, it is stated, also suggested that the payment of adjusted compensation might be effected by issuing long-term bonds.

STATE INSTITUTIONS ADMITTED TO FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

The following institution was admitted to the Federal Reserve System in the three weeks ended Nov. 17:

None were admitted during the week ending Nov. 10.

The Federal Reserve Board has granted permission to the following institutions to exercise trust powers:

The Collingswood National Bank, Collingswood, N. J.
The Hazleton National Bank, Hazleton, Pa.
The First National Bank, Lock Haven, Pa.
The Lawndale National Bank, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGES CLEMENCEAU'S VISIT TO UNITED STATES —ADDRESS BEFORE NEW YORK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Georges Clemenceau, former Premier of France, who was welcomed at the City Hall, New York, following his arrival from France on the French liner Paris on Saturday last, the 18th inst., made his first speech on that day, following the reception extended him by Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Alderman, serving as Acting Mayor in the absence of Mayor Hylan. The Paris was met at Quarantine by a committee on arrangements of the Council of Foreign Relations, which was instrumental in bringing the former Premier to this country, Ambassador Jusserand, Robert Woods Bliss of the State Department, representing President Harding personally, Frank L. Polk, former Under Secretary of State; George W. Wickersham, Otto H. Kahn, Bernard M. Baruch and Col. E. M. House, both close personal friends of M. Clemenceau. The delegation which had arranged to meet the distinguished visitor, made the trip down the bay on the city steamer Macom. With the police boat Manhattan serving as a bridge between the Paris and the Macom the former Premier, after greetings extended him on the Paris by the delegation, was taken on board the Macom, which proceeded to Pier A. At the City Hall, where M. Clemenceau was formally received by the city officials, Mr. Hulbert read the following speech of welcome in the Aldermanic Chamber:

It is a very agreeable and distinctive privilege for the President of the Board of Aldermen, acting as the Mayor of the City of New York, to receive the former President of the Municipal Council of Paris, who, however, has since attained such a position of pre-eminence in the affairs of the world that I greet you as the most distinguished citizen of the great sister republic, France.

Since the days of the American Revolution, when your countrymen, inspired and led by the gallant LaFayette, came to the aid and assistance of the struggling patriots of the thirteen American colonies, France has had an enduring claim upon our gratitude and Frenchmen an abiding place in our affections.

The people of the two nations believed then, as they believe now, that self-government is the natural government of mankind. To the maintenance and defense of that principle you have devoted a long life of service, characterized by the display of unusual courage, keen foresight, masterly ability and dynamic force.

More than half a century has elapsed since you first came and took up a residence in the United States, and though many changes have come about in what has perhaps been the most progressive fifty years in the world's history, our habits, our traditions, our ideals, our struggles and our political divergencies are not unfamiliar to you.

Your sojourn in this country, though all too brief, unquestionably enabled your alert, active and penetrating mind to grasp, understand and appreciate the American character and viewpoint. That acquaintance with our country of many years ago, which we are glad you have come to renew, will enable you, probably far better than any other citizen of France, to interpret to your fellow countrymen the views, the thoughts and the hopes of the American people on the great questions of the day, and particularly those of international import.

I can assure you that, in spite of the innuendo or indirectness of ingratitude, the people of this city are incapable of closing their hearts against compassion for human woes and that this nation is still, as it always will be, inspired by high ideals and a sturdy conception of human liberty and human freedom. The flower of our vigorous youth and manhood, whose bones are commingled with the soil of your beloved France, proclaim more eloquently than the tongue of man, the truth of that historic fact.

Permit me, M. Clemenceau, to extend to you a most hearty and cordial welcome and an expression of our most fervent hope that you will enjoy your stay among us and be spared for many years in health and vigor, to enlighten and to aid the conscience and intelligence of a sorely distressed and bewildered world.

M. Clemenceau was then introduced by Mr. Wickersham, who said:

Mr. Mayor On behalf of the Council of Foreign Relations I have the honor to present to you one of the first citizens of the world—a man whose name is a household word in every country. Called to be head of his Government when its fortunes and those of its Allies were at a low ebb in the great war, he instilled into the cause his never-failing energy, directness and singleness of purpose, which made victory inevitable.

He appointed Ferdinand Foch to be commander of the armies of France—a selection which was afterward ratified by the Allied nations in making him Generalissimo of all their armies on the western front.

M. Clemenceau gave on behalf of the civil Government of France to Marshal Foch and his armies that unquestioning aid and support in all his plans, without which military power can rarely be successful.

The inflexibility of his purpose was embodied in a sentence with which he answered a question in the Chamber of Deputies as to what his Ministerial policy would be: "Moi je fais la guerre." "I prosecute the war."

In that policy he never wavered until there came that victory over the enemy forces in which, by the blessing of God, America was privileged to have a share.

After the termination of hostilities, M. Clemenceau turned to the task of making peace with the same intensity with which he had made war. Alas, Mr. Mayor, it is harder to make peace than to conduct war. M. Clemenceau found the complexities more than he could master. Although four years have elapsed since the armistice of November, 1918, no one can say that peace reigns in Europe, and M. Clemenceau has come to aid in making lasting peace for the world. He has come to help create that state of mind which is the essential foundation of peace.

Mr. Mayor, I have the honor to present the first citizen of France, its former Premier, M. Georges Clemenceau.

M. Clemenceau, in acknowledging the greetings, spoke as follows:

Ladies and gentlemen, the fact is it is only fifty-seven years ago since I saw this old City Hall of New York. At that time it looked to me very high. Why is that? Now it looks so low.

Of course, I cannot help being moved to the utmost by the kind words which General Wickersham and Mr. Mayor were kind enough to address to me. The fact is that I myself did not come to get greetings. Our information is not so bad over in the benighted country we call France, but that, of course, I knew I would have kind greetings. But I did not think it would go to the bottom, as Mr. Mayor's speech would want me to think.

You have not said a word, Mr. Mayor, that is not an expression of the truth. You spoke of the time when France came to visit the American soil with weapons. But we want to see it never again, though it has progressed toward bettering nations and men. We have had a terrific, the greatest war that ever was in the world. Men fell by hundreds of thousands with that war and we waited very long, sometimes, and we looked around to see if some help would not come.

Help did come and it came magnificently, I must say, in the shape of the American soldier. I can speak of it as having seen it on the fields, and I have seen it, too, on the farm; very often I met at the peasants' homes a big, huge American with two children on his knees, you know, [laughter], telling stories to them and trying to understand the questions that the old men and women should ask about America. Of course he did not speak French more than the others spoke English. Some way or other they made themselves understood. Very soon we discovered they were all friends.

I have seen them—the Americans—in the fight and I have seen them in the field when the American Army under the command of General Pershing—something like, I think, twenty-two divisions—and four French took hold marvelously at St. Mihiel, losing a great many people. When I arrived the next day, what did I see? All the motors in the old city full of French women and children and flowers. These poor people, who had not been allowed to get out of their dens for three years, were rescued by the Americans.

And I saw the crowd cry, and laughing and crying, I think I saw once in a while an American soldier get a kiss from some woman. And it was the next day after the battle took place when all of the city had been emptied by the Americans. It was a joy not to be forgotten.

I saw sometimes the worst. I have seen Americans in the mud of the trenches for days and days without being relieved and looking very sorry, but the moment I came and brought them the crosses of war they had so magnificently gained, you know, they were all smiles. We shook hands and we spoke of the old place. America was the old place. They did not cry, but I could see the twinkle in their eyes. Of course they knew I was theirs and they knew they were mine. One day in the highway I met a troop of soldiers going home and they made me feel sad when they spoke of the old country.

They said: "Won't you come to America some day?" I said, "No. I am too old; I cannot think of going there." I said, "You make me make speeches and it tires my lungs. I have very few of them left. Poor miserable things." They said, "Do come." "I won't go," I said, and for years and years I said I won't go. One morning I was in my private house bordering on the sea on the other side of the water when I received bad news from America. I heard bad names. We were called imperialists and militarists. I think that is horrid and I thought I had better go and tell them how things happened to pass and to show them that their judgment was not sane and not right.

One day a British newspaper arrived. It contained criticism from a man of very high standing, calling America bad names. Before, I thought I had better go and scold America. At that moment I decided I had better go to America and defend her. That is the reason why I am here. I do not make sentences. I don't promise anything.

Nobody can ascribe any personal aim to my act in visiting this country. My life is over. But it does seem to me that I can do you some service in letting you know how we Europeans judge the American people. It is necessary, because in the world at this time there is a crisis which hasn't existed before. How it will end nobody knows. If you tell the bad side—well, there has been a war—we may have to go to war again. If it turns out right and the right thing is done at the right time then it is one of the greatest steps for the civilization of mankind.

That is the question I have come to put to America. I will ask them for great freedom of thought and great freedom of speech. I must be allowed to speak as a free man to free men who are not afraid of anything and I hope your greetings will encourage me to believe that I will get good access to American minds. It will be to me a great satisfaction.

I looked at this country from the Battery. It has not changed as much as it seems. The young ladies look exactly the same and that is the first message I am going to send to my country. I am going to tell them to come here because there are beautiful ladies to look at.

During over fifty years I have been mixed up with all of the worst crises of France—think of that! In my own life I have seen my country invaded twice by Germans. I am the only survivor of those who protested at the Assembly at Bordeaux against the act of invasion. I don't want to see that invasion repeated. I will not permit any one to tell me that I have too many soldiers or too few unless they succeed in some way and give us such guarantees, then only with the greatest of pleasure will I dissolve the French Army.

Will you Americans show us the similar feeling? We must defend ourselves.

On Sunday, the 20th inst., M. Clemenceau visited Oyster Bay and placed a wreath on the grave of the late Theodore Roosevelt. On Monday, the 21st inst., the day's events included a meeting with Chauncey M. Depew, who is M. Clemenceau's senior by seven years. A reception at the home of Thomas W. Lamont, by the France-American Society, and a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton to newspaper men, given by Ralph Pulitzer, of the New York "World," Regarding this gathering the New York "Times" said:

A stenographic report of the talk of Clemenceau was taken by direction of the "World," but it was stipulated by the ex-Premier that no direct quotations should be made from the transcript. It is permitted, however, to say

M. Clemenceau made a speech that was marked by extraordinary eloquence, frankness and sincerity.

He said he had not come to America to tell Americams what they should do, but to show them what France needs.

His address was a complete, candid discussion of the situation as he sees it, and was marked throughout by deep emotion.

He specifically requested that no textual references be made, as he wished to reserve the matter for his public addresses.

This speech was released for publication yesterday (Nov. 24), and is given elsewhere in this issue.

The former Premier's speech at the Metropolitan Opera House on Nov. 21, which constituted his first important public utterances during his visit, are given elsewhere under a separate heading. Much of what he had to say then was contained in his address before the members of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York on Wednesday, the 22d inst. Referring to his previous contention that the United States, with the signing of the armistice, "left without a purpose, left without saying a word, without trying to adjust differences." M. Clemenceau, in his address before the Chamber, added: "I want you to interfere in Europe because you left it too soon. . . . I want you to come back, make a little new trip to Europe, saying, 'Well, now, gentlemen, what's the matter with you? Something gone wrong? I will give you some help. Am I of no use?' And see what will be our answer." The following is his speech of the 22d inst.in part:

You have very great influence in Europe, and very often I say, and I will repeat, that you don't know your enormous power over there, the enormous power that you have upon European minds. If you knew it you would exert more of it in the right direction, and you would help Europe and help yourself at the same time.

Now you keep very quiet among yourselves and go to work. You are a nation of workers, but at the bottom, when one is granted the favor of speaking with you, it is very clear that you are interested in all questions of the world. There is nothing anywhere on this planet that does not interest you and does not make you wish to put a kind of American finger in the pie.

Differ from the British.

And I found that you talked of every matter which might be alien to you—very sensibly and with the kind wish to promote the welfare of mankind. Ha, that is where you differ from the great British nation. They are a mighty powerful people, they have done splendid work, they have fine men. Among the great works they have done—a little in spite of themselves—is the United States of America. But after all, they have done it, and it is not common work.

I love them, I like to talk to them; but the action with them is not always so pleasant as with you Americans. I tried both during the war and during peace. I love them, I admire them anywhere. Wherever I go I will say that the British soldier is a fine, beautiful, magnificent soldier—stern, willing, capable of all sorts of endurance in all ways. I saw them really in the Flanders fields up to the girdle, looking every one like a tub of mud, there and never to be moved.

There were days when I came to this admirable man, General Plummer, and asked him what he was going to do, expecting that he was going to answer "I am going to retire." Smiling with his good face he said, "I will go forward by and by." Dependable stock. But don't be too eager. Teach them to respect you as they want to respect you, because they deserve it. With America the part is so difficult, it is in a way something of the heart going to the heart. I don't know what it is.

The other day at City Hall I tried to describe some spectacle I had seen at the front of those people going into the front taking the children and taking and trying to explain to them—I don't know if they did—with gesture, since they could not speak, what America was, what the word meant, what America wanted and what she was going to do, and the father and the mother listened, not understanding very well, of course, but knowing that what they heard was good and right and that everybody was going to be saved with these men. That is what you brought to us. That I will never forget.

But let me tell you, if it was good for us it was mighty good for you, too, because, after all, of course I am not going to condemn success; I am not going to say that a man in business ought to try not to succeed. Of course not. Human rivalry is the law of mankind. But there is a curse in success—military success, economic success and every other kind of success—which brings man to have too much confidence in himself and to think not quite enough of others. That part of the reproach cannot be put upon you. It is not possible, because you have acquired—I know how—such a splendid renown as "the country of generosity" that nobody will accuse you of making money and keeping it to yourselves. No! But, on the whole, take care not to forget that there must be room enough for all men in the world.

I often hear that you are a young nation. Don't believe it. Don't believe it. You are as old as any European. We come from the same source. Your ancestors have labored and suffered and cried and bled with ours. We are all of the same stock. But you have a new field, a magnificent field—the best that there was. All these tales of the antiquity, these places in Asia where so many large nations develop themselves, are now all things of the past.

It is not to be conceived that America will ever be a thing of the past. No! I don't say that you will remain as you are, but you ought to strive to get better and better; and the beauty of it is that if a man does something right it is good for the man it helps and it is good for himself, because each will try to live better and better. Many of the others have got it. They don't show it. And you don't want to make too much of a show of it. But it is enough to speak with you ten minutes to know that you are the right kind of men and that something great may be expected from you.

Only let me tell you, if I have reproached to pass upon you, the trouble is it looks absurd, with your press and wireless and telegraph and telephone and everything, that I don't find you as well informed as you ought to be. You are a travelling people. I have met a great many Americans in Paris Do you know what they do? They live among themselves. They talk of Fifth Avenue, of Broadway, of business, California—I don't know what; but they don't take the trouble to learn French and go and see the French and mix up with them and get at the bottom of the real information that can be got from those people. That is what I complain of. Learning French is nothing.

Yesterday I heard at the Metropolitan the Marsellaise, and I thought, against whom was that great national song brought to the people? Against Germany, against the Germans, who wanted to pull the French Revolution down and to re-establish autocracy. I don't mean to abuse them. They are what they are. They have been a great people, and I do not see why they should not be a great people again. Only they must atone for the havoc that they have been doing. Think of it. The Germans have made so much havoc that they cannot pay the bill.

There is no reparation. There was too much destruction. Can you imagine twenty thousand manufactories destroyed—flax, linen, cotton, steel, sugar, everything. Twenty thousand manufactories. Do you suppose, can you fancy such a devastation, where even the trees have been cut down willfully to prevent the poor farmer when he comes back from making a living? Do you know what it is to have seen men and women carried under the stick of the Germans like cattle? Women taken away, girls being ravished?

I do not tell you this to excite your pity. I don't want to complain. I don't want my country to be pitied. I do not say I don't want to be helped, but I want her to be helped with the heart rather than with the pocket. At the same time I say, don't you think that it would have been fair from a financial point of view—I speak to business men—I cannot forget it—to help us in peace as we helped each other in war?

As soon as war was over we were frankly told that all economic relations of the wartime were ended, and we were not to expect any financial help from those who had given us so generously a great deal of help. Well, I say, that if one of you is interested in some industry, whatever it is, and if at any time you think you must stop your relations with it, very good. But unless you want to kill them, you are going to take time to arrange and prepare matters so that nobody will suffer too much from it. Well, we were deprived of the chance, and that was a great pity. It was the opening of the crisis we are living in now.

Another point was very irksome—the question of safety. Think of it. I am not a very old man, you know, but after all you would not look at me as being a boy. Twice in my life I have seen my country invaded by the Germans. That is twice too many. I don't want to see it a third time. I am sometimes called a militarist. Not at home, because in my own country if you say that I belong to the militarist group even my worst friends would laugh at you. But we are said to be militarists because we keep a comparatively small army. That is not hard to understand. We want to be safe at home. When the treaty came to this point in the long liberating document that is in chancery I was told by Mr. Lloyd George, "If you will give up the Rhine I will give you the British guarantee," and I accepted it.

President's Promise.

And I was also promised as far as the institution would permit it, that the President would ask the same thing from Congress. America left. It was a great mistake to leave without any proposal for an adjustment of matters. It was the greatest mistake and the source of all the evil that is taking place now. But we were left in the lurch. You should contemplate us not only from a financial point of view, but from a military point of view. We have to defend ourselves. Remembering that our frontier has been crossed twice in fifty years, we will defend it.

I am not going to plead extenuating circumstances. The five billions of our military budget is very heavy upon us. Our budget has a deficit of four billions, and, of course, I have no authority to engage any one, but I think that the duty of France is to cut down this four billion for the next year so as to have a budget that can take care of itself. I have no doubt that it can be done, and it will be done. I am sure of it. It cannot be otherwise. We cannot go on that way any longer.

If you lay this blame upon us and tell us we might have done it sooner, maybe your are right. And if you tell me that is a very big army we are keeping, it looks like it, I own. But then be sure that there is a great deal of wisdom, and maybe you know what wisdom means in such matters. We pay five billion, but we have not got an army for that price. No. Well, even democracies are not perfection. They get nearer and nearer every day, but they have not yet reached that point. And so, what do we do? We were promised safety and we did not get it. Very good, we took it upon ourselves and we will keep it as I say. The more so because as President Wilson had it, we are at the frontiers of liberty because the new fabrication of Europe now depends upon our means of defending it against the Germans.

My friend, do you know that 50%, in fact 57%, of what the treaty conceded to us has been given back to Germany within three years under the pressure of England, who wanted to find a market for a working man in Germany?

We have no market to compete for, because we had no means of competing. We considered everything, we got no compensation whatever. We don't complain.

One day at the end of the war I was asked in the House of Representatives in Paris what would be my policy when the war was over. I told them, "My policy is to remain faithful with England and America, and to do everything that is necessary to obtain this result." Experiments were made. America left. That was very hard upon us. You had been brought up to revere the Treaty of Trent. I have nothing to say against it. I think it did good on some occasions, and if it was necessary to recall it, with invaders of any kind, even if they were to be French, I will tell you frankly that you would be right.

But the policy for one people is not the policy for all. You are very great with your principles and ideas, but not without necessary faults, to expand doctrinely, economically, in every way over the world.

Times have changed. Do you understand yourself and what change is or what change was to come when President Wilson came before Congress and said that you were going to fight so that democarcy might be safe in the world? That meant everything. That meant you were going to work for liberation. That you did. But, let me tell you—friendly, you know—you stopped half way. That you should have left, that is your business.

I did not come here to blame you or to judge. It is a matter for you to discuss among yourselves. But left without a purpose, left without saying a word—without trying to adjust differences, so that theoretically the Germans would have before their eyes during peace and during war these three nations, England, America, France. That was the great mistake that you are paying for now. I won't put you to this trial. I want to tell you simply, practical men as you are, that I came of course not on any mission. Let missions go where they belong. No, the best mission is the mission that a man receives from his own impulse. In that, too, I am an American.

My visit to America was with the idea that a man feels something is wrong somewhere among his friends and believes he can bring the good work that sets everything right. And so the people ask me, "What do you want us to do?" I answer, "I don't know what I want you to do."

I want you to interfere in Europe because you left it too soon. Whether you were to interfere in the future or not is not for our discussion. It belongs to you, and I know the loss of influence among people will bring you more and more to interest yourselves in European business, as we interested ourselves more an more with American business. So do what you please. You have a Government which you choose yourselves. You have a Parliament. You have your own meetings, your own press, your own discussions, your own debates, your own good that is in your heart—I think a little wee bit of selfishness at times, which I never saw, of course. Make a fine mission of all that and you won't need to ask me what I should tell you to-day.

But I want you to come back, make a little new trip to Europe, saying: "Well, now, gentlemen, what's the matter with you? Something gone wrong? I will give you some help. Am I of no use?" And see what will be our answer.

Of course, I am very, very strong upon reparations; it is life and death for my country. We have already spent ninety-seven billions rebuilding houses, churches and schools, and so on, and I won't deny that, not being paid by Germany as she had promised to do, you know we sometimes are a little shallow in our pockets. I don't deny it; there is no shame in it. But I don't care so much about that as I care for the effect upon Germany.

Don't you see, it was a great encouragement for Germany to see division among the Allies and all these quarrels between France and England. If they be useful, I don't object to quarrels. There is something good in them when for a good means. But they were perfectly useless and did not bring any good to anybody, but were a great encouragement to Germany.

Don't you think it is encouraging to them when you say, raising your hat, "Good bye, gentlemen. I will see you maybe when you fight again in two or three hundred years"? Well, the Germans had nothing before them but France, and they then began that campaign of hatred, going on all through the German universities, all through the country, and which has even come to New York in numerous lies and tracts which I have seen myself. Everything against France. Nothing against England, nothing against America. They even supposed that you would help them in the most direct manner, and the moment you go and show yourselves ready to say a good word for the end of the Kaisers, everything will change. Democracy will be in Germany.

You must not believe we are not paying anything. That would not be fair. We bought the American stock and we engaged ourselves to pay $20,000,000 a year, which we have been doing. and that makes sixty. It is about the same sum England has paid. So after all, you see we are not quite so bad as some of you wanted us to be. Our safety—it is very embarrassing, something that I wish will be done one way or the other—France's safety, don't you see, is the safety of Europe. It is through that part of the Rhine passed all the invasions since Europe has been in existence. We have liberated people. You don't think we are raising armies to dominate them? Ask them. Ask then in whom they have confiednce, and they will tell you "in France." and they will tell you, too, "in America." Because so much hope had risen when your President came that for a day people thought all difficulties, all troubles, all misery were at an end.

I don't want to conquer Germany. At the time of the last treaty we did not ask for one German subject to become a Frenchman. Not for one. Our feeling is the same. And instead of building—trying to build—this society of nations or League of Nations, which is a very fine new word for a very old thing—a thing that failed, although there was in olden times of course the Oracle of Delphi, which was exactly founded on the principles of the League of Nations, and it brought war among the Greeks and was the cause of Philip and Alexander conquering Greece and doing what you know. Well, if you can do that without any title—well, I say, Germany recoiling before her deeds, notwithstanding that the violation of Belgium was a spot that cannot be put away for a long time, it is a spot that cannot be taken away—how can we trust Germany when we know that she does not keep her word?

Well, nevertheless, the time must come when things must take a better appearance, and ,before all, from nations. Each day has got to do the work of each day. If, every morning, when we got up, we managed to make full for the day that is coming all our duty, I should not be surprised if mankind would be a paradise or very near to it. But we don't. We make a compromise, as everybody is obliged to do. But I say in these relations between European nations with such a long bloody history, the beginning of a great nation of peace may be the beginning of something very great.

You see, in history people don't understand the whereabouts of the time in which they live. We have been causing a drama which people will understand maybe not before a century to come, and we are in a crisis the end of which nobody can foresee. Only let us do our duty day by day.

I was here fifty-seven years ago, mighty more happy then than I am now, and I felt a new America. I knew a deal of it. But in a few days, without having seen, after all, very much, and although I had the honor to be talking to some of the chief men you have in this country, my ideas are changed. Some way or other I thought I was going to undertake a task that was very hard, and I went to it, being an old man, wishing nothing, waiting for no reward and happy to feel that once more if it is given to him he would perform his duty. And now in a few days, because I have seen your eyes and faces, because you said yes or no to certain questions, something is changed with me, and if I was to go home to-morrow I would tell my friends, "Be quiet, I don't know how they will do, but be sure the Yankees will do it once more."

M. Clemenceau left this city on Thursday for Boston, and his address there will be followed by speeches in other cities of the country. Besides his speechmaking tour he is writing a series of articles for the New York "World." As to his visit and writings the "Journal of Commerce" of Nov. 23 said:

Georges Clemenceau, War Premier of France, is financing his visit to America through articles he is writing for a New York morning newspaper, his friends said yesterday. The arrangements, it is understood, were made through a well-known New York banker, with whom M. Clemenceau enjoys a close personal friendship.

M. Clemenceau informed Colonel House some months ago of his intention to come to America, it has been learned, and the diplomat warmly urged him to carry out the plan. Arrangements for tne former Premier's speech at the Metropolitan Opera House were made by the Council on Foreign Relations, Inc., of which John W. Davis, former United States Ambassador to France, is President.

Otto H. Kahn, Chairman of the board of the Metropolitan, is a director of the Council of Foreign Relations, while Colonel House is a member. Mr. Kahn offered the use of the Opera House at the usual rental, it was given out, and the Council engaged the building for Wednesday evening. It first was planned to issue free admission cards, but the Council feared inability to please every one and so decided to charge an admission. The entrance fees paid for the rental and there was a large surplus. This surplus was turned over to M. Clemenceau as a donation to any French charity he might name.

Rumors that M. Clemenceau had come to America in connection with Franco-German financing were denied last night by men in a position to know the facts. The "Tiger of France," it was pointed out, is about the last man in the world Premier Poincare would select for such a mission. The two Frenchmen are at swords' points politically. Only recently M. Clemenceau was quoted as saying: "This world contains two things absolutely useless—a man's appendix and M. Poincare."

The Council on Foreign Relations ceased to have any relation with M. Clemenceau's visit when the Metropolitan Opera House meeting was over. The balance of his visit, it is said, will be managed by the newspaper for which he is writing articles, and by the banker friend who made it possible for the former Premier to come.

John W. Davis said yesterday that so far as he knew M. Clemenceau had decided to visit America simply because of his present political inactivity. Unused to the simple life, and yearning for action in behalf of his beloved France, "The Grand Old Man" decided to visit the United States and do what he could toward cementing the friendship between the two nations.

APPEAL OF FORMER PREMIER OF FRANCE CLEMENCEAU IN BEHALF OF EUROPE.

A personal message was this week conveyed to the United States by the former Premier of France, Georges Clemenceau, familiarly known as "The Tiger of France," and one of "the Big Four" of the Versailles Peace Conference. The former Premier, who arrived in this country on Saturday last (Nov. 18), reserved until the 21st inst. the presentation of his explanation of the purpose of his visit to this country at this time; in indicating what had prompted his coming he referred to the fact that "we have been in the midst of a great crisis, . . . the greatest crisis in events because none of us can say how long this crisis is going to last and whether it won't grow at some time worse than it is now." "Why," said he, "cannot we find common means for preserving peace?" "The war," he added, "caused the world to get into a situation in which it has never been before, and now that we have peace we must preserve peace." M. Clemenceau declared that "he did not come here with a mission," but that he had come "to seek to preserve the friendship of America for France as France extends the friendship to America." Asserting that Germany is manufacturing cannon by the hundreds and making machinery everywhere, he made the further assertion that "they are preparing war again . . . to crush the German democracy if they can." He explained that there are two Germanys—"there is the Germany which is a democratic Germany, which I think could more easily at least be called to reason, while the others who love war have learned nothing and are preparing a revolution or civil war against their brothers just to begin the action against the European Powers." The main question for the moment, M. Clemenceau pointed out, "is conversation." "In the armistice, in the treaty, and all that followed," he said, "there was a great share of pure American work." He noted, however, that "you left after the contract was finished, and you said, execute it as you may;" in declaring that "you were wrong in that you left without any proposal whatever," he added.

When people have been mixing their blood—I am not speaking of the goods of the world—but their own blood on the field of battle, they have no right to leave, if there is a difference, without trying to adjust that difference. You broke all the organs of economic solidarity.

As to what he considers the main question for the moment—conversation—M. Clemenceau said:

If America could take upon it in some way to renew conversation with England and France not to give a promise of anything that would engage the future that she had not intended during the war. . . . .

If you could have faith and simply say let us establish a plan of what is to be done and when we have established it, it should take into consideration guarantees. The moment it is done it will do much to restore things to a more normal state.

During the course of his speech M. Clemenceau stated that "military and economic clauses get very often mixed up," adding, "I am not very sure that you haven't got a touch of economic imperialism. You indeed showed a touch of economic imperialism when you left us after the war was over directly." Stating that France had been charged with imperialism, he said, in referring to the inception of the war, "Mr. Lloyd George of course did not say that we were the one to provoke it, but he made me very clearly understand that we had a touch of militarism. We! We! We! Militarism before the war, when the German Emperor had been claiming this right to domination in so clear terms that the world could not make any mistake about it!" In declaring that it is the purpose of France to pay its debts, the former Premier observed that "we contracted an arrangement to pay you $20,000,000 a year. We have done it thus far. It is not very far from what England itself has paid you." As to the losses suffered by France in the war, he said they included 90% of the laymen, 90% of cotton, 90% of steel"—that out of 8,500,000 soldiers mobilized, France lost 5,500,000. While France had lost all it had, and the Germans had devastated its lands, he noted that "there had been taken from Germany 50% of their debts towards us under the pressure of England." Germany he said, "began by not executing the conditions of the Treaty . . . that the Powers under the pressure of England accepted it, and we gave up all that we had gained by the Treaty, most of it." Certainly, he said, "we are entitled to reparations for damages which the war brought on us, and which we had no hand in making. But I should say that what Germany ever pays will not be one-half of what the war cost us." In another part of his speech the former Premier said:

You have the best resources in the world—you and England. Nevertheless, you thought it might be good to insure yourself on your frontiers. But I notice that you, having good frontiers, when we have the worst in the world on the German side, you got an additional guarantee by suppressing the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and England got a guarantee by letting the German fleet sink in Scapa Flow. That fleet was not England's property solely. But she was to keep it, and she let it go to the bottom—where it is—and I ask that this may not have been the proper thing of England—that it was the property of our common soldiers. And then you take those guarantees. I believe we are entitled to guaranties to prevent another such invasion as took place before.

In concluding his speech M. Clemenceau said:

You have come to the last point where you are granted by good fortune the time to think. Now, have you made up your minds? No sacrifice demanded or exacted from you except to assert that you want to keep among the people of this world the great place that you have twice taken.

If you take it, then you will see a great emotion among the people, liberty—liberation. If you don't, the prospect is dark and dreary. But you may be sure that we won't fall into it before we have done our best to try to avoid it,

In its description of the speaker and the assemblage before which he spoke on the 21st inst. at the Metropolitan Opera House, the New York "Times" of the 22nd inst. said in part:

A grizzled bronzed man with beetling eyebrows and gleaming eyes walked softly across the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House last night and flung himself impulsively into the arms of a General of the American Army, talking volubly, heedless of the eyes of thousands.

That was the first bright picture of Georges Clemenceau, 81 years old, "Tiger" of France, as he was seen by his first formal American audience of 4,000 or more gathered to hear the most-feared man in his country plead for the cause of that country. It was their first sight of the orator and journalist whose lightning words had toppled eighteen ministries in his own country in fifteen years; a man whose personal power was so great that he had elected three Presidents of France; a man whose personal courage and skill with the lethal weapons were so great that even the doughty swordsman Cassagnac, who had taken the blood of three men in fatal duels, never dared face Clemenceau on "the field of honor;" a masterful and fearless fighter, a willful and stubborn man who had thrown himself into the broken dikes of French morale at the most critical period of the war and turned defeat into victory, overthrowing then not a mere ministry but the greatest military empire the world had known.

So the great crowd saw this remarkable man fling himself impulsively into the arms of a big soldier and heard him say:

"God bless you, my dear General Perishing."

M. Clemenceau took his place behind a low semi-circle of palms and chrysanthemums that obscured his figure almost to his waist. The chair provided for him was a small, cane-seated affair, appropriate, as he said, for "a simple citizen." The management had provided a big throne chair, but Clemenceau when he visited the auditorium late in the afternoon, had ordered it out, declaring it would make him "look like Queen Victoria."

First greetings over, he was introduced as a "returned voyager" to a land that was his home for four years, as "The Father of Victory," and as a man whose mighty will had held a group of allies together while everywhere the water was breaking through the dikes. Then John W. Davis, who was Ambassodor to Great Britain during the war, turned to the little gray man and said:

"Speak to us, and be assured that you are among friends."

And M. Clemenceau, calling himself a "plain man" from France with a plain set of facts to state, was face to face with the supreme effort of his life, an effort to reunite the war allies against what he believes is a still greater peril than the Great War.

He began by telling what he had learned in America in the four years he had lived here right after the close of the Civil War.

Passing to the main purpose of his address, he said it was not for himself but for the future of the world, for the future of France, for the future of America, that he pleaded with America to awaken herself to the vast conceptions of duty which she held during the war.

He spoke for about an hour and thirty-two minutes, and for forty-five minutes of that time he was a gentle friend, telling of the great debt he owed to America for his early training in the formation of his will and discipline.

Then he changed. The stalking Tiger appeared, and the flashes of wit and fire that have made Clemenceau so formidable in the forum appeared in his discourse. He pounded the table before him, threw his hands above his head, his eyes flashed under his bristling brows, he gestered with an emphasis that showed the emotion surging within.

Elsewhere we refer to some of M. Clemenceau's other statements following his arrival in this city a week ago,—including an address before the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York on Wednesday, as well as criticisms in Congress of his speech of the 21st inst. His address on the latter occasion follows:

Once upon a time, a thousand years ago, in an Indian village, there came an old Buddhist, and he told the villagers he was going to preach the good word, and they were glad to have him do so. He told them he would teach them how to be good and love each other, which in that time was a very difficult undertaking. So they all assembled, and there, under one of those giant trees, which are the beauty of this country, he was going to teach them of the good word. And as the old man was going to open his mouth there came a bird—a beautiful bird—who sat on one of the highest branches, and there the bird began to sing and sing and sing. He sang for a long time, and the more he sang the more ravished they all were. It seemed that they understood what he meant. And when he went the old monk got up and said, "Good-bye, gentlemen, the sermon has been preached."

I feel very much like the old monk. It seems to me as if some of us are sitting under a very beautiful tree, with beautiful foliage, and certainly there are a great many birds. I know it not by the singing, but by the flapping of the wings.

That was a very wise man. But I am not wise. Therefore, when our eminent President asked me to speak, I will speak. In fact, you may have heard of it, I came here on purpose for that. And first I will tell you that I am more accustomed to grinning faces than the smaling faces of ladies, and that I am rather—although it has not happened very often—rather timid, slightly.

First, of course, I must thank you for the really wonderful welcome which I have met in this country, which is most marvelous, since only no more than 57 years ago I came fresh from the Imperial jails of Napoleon III to find there was another way of living, and a much better way.

I was in that happy time where a young man of some imagination thinks everything is possible to him. There is no hard task. What men for hundreds of years and thousands of years have been trying to accomplish and failed—he can do. He has the heart, the mind, the knowledge, and he can do it.

So I brought this fresh outlook here. I don't know whether it has been appreciated. I have never been assured of that. But I looked around and I learned what Europe hadn't taught me—to help myself.

And now, like the pupil who comes back to his teacher who has gained experience, I come back and it is very different. I come back with changed ideas and to express my thanks for the good practical education that I received. I say practical because, of course, I do not come here to learn new things, and so I came with the American spirit and ready to find fault in different ways. But I must confess that I did not find as many faults as I expected. And to-day, having been taught independence, I have been trying to find advice. I have no mission; I did not come with a mission from anybody.

Therefore, I made up my mind that after all democracy was liberty, and I think it is the best government to be responsible for your own faults instead of others. And there I was in my pleasant little house on the sea and the beach a little too far so that you could not see it, and I heard that there have been bad words for France. I did not like that at all, and as for myself I say what words? At the same time there came people and hard critics, one a very distinguished Englishman, and I said well, now, if England misjudges France and the Americans misjudge France, what are we going to do; I had better go and see what is the matter. And I left without really knowing whether I was going to plead against you or defend you.

I have not been here a very long time, but I have been here long enough to think that I am not going to have much trouble in establishing a basis of common thought on a very important matter. I also heard that I was not desired. But I dare any one to tell me that I have a personal end in this trip from France to America, and that I pursue my design, political, personal or of any kind. I simply came to speak to you, and that is what I am going to do to-night. I do not know whether you will like it, but I am very glad of it.

When a man with his own nature tries to aim as high as he can, it is encouraging to hear the raging shrieks from below. So, thus provided, I came. Of course, as the boat came on and on I began to think that that was not quite so rosy, and there were some hours when I wanted to say to the captain, "Now, please, let us go home." But I was so much encouraged that at last I came, and now my thought is this:

These two countries, America and France, have had a great deal in common in some of the greatest events that have ever been seen in the world. They had the good fortune to open a new era, not only in the human thought, but to open the time ,the era, when maybe justice, hope, good-will and righteousness would be realized on earth.

The beauty of this was that there was a romance between America and France. I do not know two other peoples among which there is such a stretch of imagination. That is the thought that brought me here. After all, I am an old man, although you may not think so, but I am a very, very old man, and after I am gone I do not know in what measure I will be interested in some of the questions that have been most interesting in my life.

That is the romance General Pershing could tell you when he came to France. The first thing he said something : He went to Lafayette's tomb and said, "Lafayette, we are here." And here you were, and there you stood during the worst days. I saw the man, and I saw the chief, very often he may have thought, but I was comforted by their sight.

I wanted to speak with them, and I sometimes had quarrels with General Pershing, beautiful quarrels. I said, "I don't know what is your power to say yes, but I know what is your power to say no." A bad quarrel between us was that as soon as the American soldiers came I wanted them to go to the front and he wanted them to go to the front, too, but, of course, he couldn't send them as they were. He had to organize, he had to prepare, he had to concentrate the whole thing under the American flag. He didn't want to go to battle without an American army, and he was right, and so was I. I was right, too. Because our men were falling dreadfully. I will speak of that in a moment. And I was in a great hurry.

It was a long time before the first American soldiers came after the declaration of war, and we had to wait, and waiting meant hundreds of thousands of men falling and falling. And so, when I think of the reality of the brave, of the magnificent American soldiers and officers and chiefs that I have seen at the front, I consider that magnificent story of '76, when you brought into the world that wonderful nation, when you fought for the right to live and the equal right to pursue happiness.

It was the first time it had been heard in the world. I am not sure the enemies of that time, the European enemies, did not laugh at it, and thought it was all nonsense. Now they may come and see what those children have become, what giants they have become, and what things have been accomplished. I came here with the idea that I want to get romance. And if I have not met with the feelings I hope, then the romance is over. But I must explain to you in what feelings I was.

Now, I am not going to ask you for money. You have too much of it. I want something much more than that, much more valuable. I want yourself, your heart and soul. I want that thing that we call in France the thing that cannot be weighed in human skins, a little thing, which is a kind of kinfeeling of one human being toward another. That may exist and does exist between such nations as ours, and that is what I want of you.

I don't come to make you take any decision or try to have any influence over your political men to come to any decision or plan whatever. None of this. I am not an official, have no mission, and am glad of it, and I don't think I have any right to influence any American decision whatever. But I come here with this idea: That the explanations that I am giving to you may change your minds if you have been thinking in a different way, and hoping that they will change your hearts, as France's heart has been changed toward America. I have some friendly criticism to bring, and I think it is worthy of you and of me that we exchange them in the most democratic way.

I have no intention of making a speech or a lecture or any such thing as that. You may see it. I simply talk. I want to talk. I want to explain what have been my thoughts for three years. I have been away from any act of the Government. I have spent all that time in a quiet place which I love, thinking, thinking of you very often, thinking of my France above all, and now I bring my thoughts to you for some adjustment between us both. I hope, I am not sure.

We have been in the midst of a great crisis. I say the greatest crisis in events because none of us can say how long this crisis is going to last, and whether it won't grow at some time worse than it is now. Why should peace be hard to live? Why cannot we find common means for preserving peace? I must say that this war was brought about in the sequence of events, and now that it is over we must do something to preserve the peace. The war caused the world to get into a situation in which it has never before been. And now that we have peace we must preserve peace. I did not come here with a mission, and I am glad of it. I came here to seek to preserve the friendship of America for France, as France extends the friendship to America. I will try to make you understand what I mean. And it is for that purpose that I have come to America.

Let me explain to you the feelings that I find in my heart. When after seeing two invasions in one lifetime, two invasions of France, devastations of every kind, is it strange if I do not want to see another? You may call me militaristic, you may call me imperialistic, but I do not accept the reproach, and I return it by asking, did not Germany show herself to be militaristic and imperialistic? To France there came after 1871 a long period of 50 years, no, 46, something like that, during whtich Germany threatened us eight times to war, eight times. And the only word we got from her at the time was sharpened swords, high explosive powder. Just as in defiance of England, she said: "Our future is on the ocean."

England did not like it. But the governing power has such responsibilities that I do not like to blame them too easily. But the governing power, not only in England but in a great many other nations that I could name, saw the danger, but wanted to avoid it. Of course, it was very wise, but it is wise, too, to prepare in case the worst comes, and the worst did come. At that time England sent Mr. Haldane, who was the Minister of War, to Germany to try if matters could be arranged, and Haldane, who was a friend of Germany, was received in such a way that he had nothing to do but to come back. Chance had it that I saw him a little while after.

And good fortune had it, too, that I met that same time Mr. Lloyd George in Carlsbad. That was the first time I saw him. Of course, I was promenading everywhere with my prediction, "We are going toward a great war. Germany wants a war."

When he came to Paris he said: "You are the first man I came to see, because I was wrong. You are right. You first saw what was to happen, but I did not." I have seen a great many things that have happened. I did not want to look for a quarrel with Mr. Lloyd George in that matter. Lloyd George made a mistake at the time, but I took him as a representative of the British mind at the time.

But I suppose England had foreseen and suppose England had prepared when the war came at last she would have been ready, and the French were not ready, hardly ready, having no heavy artillery, and the British were not ready and America was not ready, either. So what were our people to do? What were we to do but fight and fall? When I think of the fight of the Marne I can understand why the soldier would not go and why he fell back from the powder, and he went to the doors of Paris and there he stopped and finally repelled the enemy.

Now, the war had come. Monsieur Lloyd George, of course, did not say that we were the ones to provoke it, but he made me very clearly understand that we had a touch of militarism. We! We! We! Militaristic! Before the war, when the German Emperor had been claiming his right to domination in so clear terms that the world could not make any mistake about it! I don't pretend that we may be in the state of mind that Mr. Lloyd George was at the time, and that things were going awry, and quite different from what you expected. At that time nobody told us we were militarists, nobody at that time told us we were imperialists. The more soldiers you had the better, the better they had been instructed the more good you could do with them. The worst of it is that the war began by the invasion of Belgium. Please do not forget that. It is a great pity that the province of Alsace-Lorraine was dismembered.

Now, I don't come to America to abuse the Germans or anybody. I am charged with militarism, but I believe I have a right to bring the fact before you, and it is a fact that Belgium was violated by one of those who had guaranteed its safety. That is not very encouraging for the future, and those who ask me to make arrangements with Germany, I make answer to them, "What is worth that signature? What is worth that paper?" There may be some bankers among you here. Suppose a man fails to pay his check. Would you be willing to trust him for another? It is not likely.

There were some worse things, and I have to mention them so that you will understand the case. I don't mean to pursue any hatred forever against them. Not at all. They have been a great nation, and they will be a great nation again. I am not opposed to that, as long as they don't dismember my nation. Now, the violation of oaths, the violation of signatures.

Now, if I speak of all this, it is because you must understand what is this feeling that we may be asked to entertain toward Germany. There are no differences exclusively between the French and the Germans. They are differences between Germany and the rest of the world. The rest of the world live in good faith. They live on the idea that a signature and an engagement is a signature and is an engagement. And a man who doesn't think in those terms —well, I will leave it to you what to do.

I have seen during this war General Pershing over there and I was a great admirer of him and the American soldiers. I am a great admirer of the English soldiers; they were very brave, and when called upon to do things, always did them well.

But may I say a word about the French soldier? He was very stern and he was very patriotic and he did his duty without question. I remember that in one of the battles of the war a group of soldiers were gathered together in a certain place. It was an exposed place, a place where the bullets were flying around thick and fast, and one of the commanders came along and asked them what they were doing there, and they said they were resting; that they had been told to rest, and that they were resting, and they had "rested" where they were in an exposed position, risking their lives from the bullets that were flying around, simply because they were told to rest, right there in the middle of the battle.

And the war pursued its way, and you know how it ended. We came to the armistice. Here I want some of your attention, because it is a very important point, and in fact something like the foundation of my reasoning. I have heard a great many things about the armistice. The facts are very plain. The fact is that the United States had a very general and noble idea, an idea that before the war was over we should all say what we had made war for and what we wanted, so that nobody could attempt after the war was over to ask for more than it thought of before.

And President Wilson came with his commission. So we all discussed and we all agreed about the Fourteen Points, which have become so well known, and from that time the world, the Germans, every one knew that on such conditions we would make peace.

So that when the Germans said, we agree on the Fourteen Points, we mean exactly the Fourteen Points; we had no choice but to accept the armistice that was proposed; the whole world would have arisen against us if we did not accept it.

So the armistice was in fact automatic. The most remarkable point about it is this, that it was an American idea that had brought President Wilson to act as he did, and the American idea entered into the practice as the war was over and our condtions were accepted by the Germans, and thence we began to see the thing that is not being considered at all in this country as far as I know—that the war was yours as well as ours. You took your share in it.

If we lost an enormous number of men and you lost a comparatively small number, it is because the war did not last longer, otherwise we would be losing less and less and General Pershing's troops would be losing more and more. But make up your mind that in the armistice, in the treaty, and all that followed there was a great share of pure American work.

For instance, in the armistice there was a line saying "reparations"—damages, repairs. There was also a line in the Fourteen Points. There was a line in the armistice that was placed in the conditions of peace that I would not accept and Colonel House agreed with me.

In the armistice the damages were to be paid, and President Wilson said if that kind of a peace is not assured we will go on. I did not ask them to be executed, but I asked that they begin to be executed. If we had known that for three years the thing that was guaranteed to us was not coming to us we would have gone to Berlin.

I don't want to be too long. I will try to stop as soon as I can. So, you see, it is something to begin thinking of. I see my dear friend Paderewski (looking in the direction of the right box). He has won honor in the field of art as well as in the political field of his noble country. He is here as a witness—to these conditions of peace.

I will leave the French conditions and the American conditions. It was not only a question of peace between France and Germany. We made something which nobody speaks of, which is the event of the century.

America had freed herself in 1776, and now in 1918 she freed the whole of Europe—all these people that had been put down under the sceptres of Grmany, Austria and Russia. They began to breath. They were called to liberty, and my friend Paderewski could tell you of the spectacle we had around the table—27 States calling for justice, for liberty. You don't know how, when the President came to Europe, when Woodrow Wilson landed in Paris, how the whole world extended their hands toward him. He brought them hope, the thing that they had been expecting, waiting for, praying for, for centuries.

Paderewski could tell you how these noble people of Poland had been treated, and how they had been trapled under foot, and how they had submitted as martyrs for centuries. And when he came to France, they all said, "Here is a man that brings justice, that brings the right for man to live." "Le jour de gloire est arrive."

You brought it, my friends. That's another one of those great debts that I owe your country, and that everybody owes you. But, a people may be grand one day and small and mean another. Now, we had to study over maps and mountains and rivers and such things trying to understand something that was brought to our attention. Deputies came to say to us, to ask us this or that, and I have seen Paderewski, in the name of his country, make to us one of the most eloquent and moving speeches that I ever heard. They cried when they heard you [addressing Paderewski].

It was the specter of all the wrongs of man against man. And some of them said that they were betrayed. You must understand this.

Of course, England went to war for English reasons, and America for American reasons. It was their duty to do that. But they had to mix it with other countries, and they had to measure it, and if you were long to come I know very well that you thought that you might be mixed up in European affairs more than you wanted to, and that it might bring complications which you wanted to avoid. With England—it isn't sure that she would have come if Belgium hadn't been violated. That was a great time for a policy of isolation.

The fact is that England has always—I don't blame her—has always endeavored to be the balancing power, preventing other countries from becoming too strong so that they might exert too much power. About a year ago I was in London and had occasion to meet one of the great statesmen of the day. We spoke, quite naturally, of the war. I told him on the very day of the armistice that I thought England was no more with us.

Every country makes mistakes, we have all made mistakes; it is a human trait. But we have to learn from our mistakes. And we should take the lesson of the war and seek in some way to avoid some of the mistakes in the future.

You left after the contract was finished and you told us to execute it as we might. Well, now, let us see, because I am coming to the point. Yes, the execution—I do not blame you for having the thought that it was better, that is your business. I don't reproach you or complain. I claim for no pity, I claim for no protection, I claim right. And you were wrong in that you left without any proposal whatever. When people have been mixing their blood —I am not speaking of the goods of the world—but their own blood on the field of battle, they have no right to leave, if there is a difference, without trying to adjust that difference.

You broke all the organs of economic solidarity. Of course, a bank is interested in some manufactory, and she wants to give it up. She wants to give it up; that is her right. They are not going to ther friends and tell them "To-morrow, Monday, the bank is to shut. We do not know you any more."

We were told that circumstances were such that we had to go, and what were those circumstances? I mean to say the circumstances were that there seemed to be a great market opened in Germany, maybe in Russia, and France was handicapped. She had 20,000 factories destroyed. Think of that. Of course, she was no candidate running for those markets, and at once, from one day to the other, we were alone. Now, we hear that we had better pay what we owe. Certainly. I do not want you to believe that we are such people that do not like to pay our debts. The question is really non-existent.

Of course, to-day everybody speaks to us of our solidarity with Germany. It is perfectly true, but France, if it is solid with Germany, we will receive from her what belongs to us, and it won't be half of what she has lost. I will say a word about that question in a moment, but I speak of it now simply to say that we are not people who deny our debts.

We contracted an arrangement to pay you $20,000,000 a year. We have done it thus far. It is not very far from what England itself has paid you. That question, I take it to be of second rank. It is no question. I do not suppose that you are going, one of these days, to say to us "You pay to-morrow, or the day after." We will pay you.

Now, I must say that England was the first. And America did nothing but fight. Now, let us see—90% of the laymen, 90% of cotton, 90% of steel, and so on, all our products—and out of 8,500,000 soldiers mobilized, we lost 5,500,000 out of 8,000,000. Don't you think that is a figure—5,500,000 killed and wounded and 500,000 coming back from the German prisons dying with hunger and with consumption! So, you see, the case is not so plain as some people thought. We are the ones that have suffered most, cruelly suffered. We are the ones that have lost more men. But we showed our power of action, and we showed the vitality of the people. That cannot be recorded for a long time. We have lost all we had.

The Germans have devastated our lands. Nevertheless, what has happened? In three years there has been taken from Germany 50% of their debts toward us under the pressure of England. Now, you Americans are fair-minded. You have got a great deal of business, private and public, at home. You are quite excusable if you make mistakes, but you should take the trouble to inquire before you pass severe judgment upon us.

Against whom are we? Of course, we don't think that we will fight England or America. So against whom? They say we want to dominate Europe. But we are the very ones who liberated Europe. How could we want to dominate after we have liberated Europe? Ask the liberated States if Europe is afraid of militarism. He would have another song to sing. I don't know what his country thinks, but I shouldn't be surprised if he thought of our future, and if they were taking precautions for that future. Military and economic clauses get very often mixed up. I am not very sure that you haven't got a touch of economic imperialism. You indeed showed a touch of economic imperialism when you left us after the war was over directly. You have the best resources in the world—you and England. Nevertheless, you thought it might be good to insure yourself on your frontiers.

But I notice that you, having good frontiers, when we have the worst in the world on the German side, you got an additional guarantee by suppressing the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and England got a guarantee by letting the German fleet sink in Scapa Flow. That fleet was not England's property solely. But she was to keep it, and she let it go to the bottom—where it is—and I ask if this may not have been the proper thing of England—that it was the property of our common soldiers. And then you take those guarantees to prevent another such invasion as took place before. Do you think that we want to threaten any one? Do you think that we want to have a large army in order to threaten any one?

Who could we threaten? We have lost so many of our men that how could we be aggressive if we wanted to? But we want to be secure; we want to feel that we will not again be in a position such as we were in before. And about reparations. I think we are entitled to damages. Certainly we are entitled to reparation for damages which the war brought on us and which we had no hand in making. But I should say that what Germany ever pays will not be one-half of what the war cost us. We are not looking for trouble, we are merely seeking to put ourselves in a position where we can be assured that we will not be forced into another such terrible war as that we have just been through. I think that we are entitled to that.

Safety! We have had a very bad frontier since the time of the Romans. Since all time it has been the threat of Germany to invade us. Well, look at our frontier. When Napoleon III—we were theatened to be annexed by Napoleon III. But now there is something better. Now, this new Europe we speak of, I do not think there is one of the new nations, if you ask it, "whom do you depend upon to help you in case of danger?" would not answer, "upon France," would not say "upon France." And if I were to meet you this afternoon I would say "upon America."

These new powers in Europe—there are new powers, and they have your thought and feelings when you live upon European feelings. And if you really think that you can live among yourselves, get your own produce safe from the rest of the world and do just as you please, that is not what you said in 1776. In that time there was no—I do not want to speak badly of the Monroe Doctrine. It did good. It did good. But you are wrong, and the policy of an old man is not the policy of a child.

Now, my friends, I must come to a conclusion, begging your pardon that I have spoken so long. I do not blame you. Let the past remain the past. We may see what the situation in Europe is to-day. The war of four years that brought the greatest damages that had been known in Europe at any time, even in the time of the wildest barbarism, is over. The treaty which is to establish the new order of things is not executed. What is to be done? You see where Germany is now. Germany began by not executing the conditions of the treaty. I am sorry to say that the Powers under the pressure of England accepted it, and we gave up all that we had gained by the treaty—most of it. And is it very extraordinary that Germany took advantage of that? Is it very extraordinary? That was the beginning, and the rest came, and we were told you must use the mentality of victory, and Mr. Schroeder, the Finance Minister, said, "We are going to strike out the line reparations."

Do you know that they are manufacturing cannon by the hundreds, that they are making machinery everywhere? The German taxpayer pays, I think $13, let's say, $14—the French $43. There is a line in the treaty that says Germany will have to pay as high as the Allies and all the rest. And what are they preparing? I tell you plainly, as I told Lloyd George before the war, they are preparing war again. Don't you see what is going on? Don't you read the papers? Why, haven't you heard of the treaty between the Turks and the Germans and the Russians? Look at all this manufacturing that is going on in Germany. Now, I say that Generals Ludendorff and Hindenburg are preparing war, civil war, to crush the German democracy if they can. Have you forgotten what the Prussians did after Jena—how with 50,000 men they brought Napoleon down! Now it is the same game. It is written. Nobody can deny it.

Declares England Promised Frontier.

And now I must tell you what I want. I don't want to bring any friction between your country and my country. I don't want you to do something that would put the civilization in danger in circumstances that might be worse than before. We have been guaranteed a good frontier. England promised it. We haven't received it. Lloyd George said that America had made the same promise and had also not kept it, so he wasn't to blame exclusively. I respectfully ask leave to tell him he is grossly mistaken. The facts are these: Directly, one day I told Mr. Lloyd George I want the Rhine, and I gave him a paper in which all my reasons were described, and after I read it, the next day, or two days after, he told me if you leave the Rhine I will bring you other guarantees, and I promise you to do my best with Mr. Wilson to obtain the same things from him. Mr. Wilson very wisely said that he was willing to agree, but, of course, it was all subject to the acceptance by Congress. So it was with Great Britain. But the fact that the United States didn't follow doesn't mean that the promise should not have been kept. And do you suppose that really because our allies didn't keep that promise, that we are going to stop and let our frontiers open? No! No!

That we never did. Things must be plain. I come back to the question. The main question for the present is conversation. It is almost a question of trust and banking, but it does not depend upon the bankers to create the situation which we allow for to make our friendships. If America could take upon it in some way to renew conversation with England and France, not to give a promise of anything that would engage the future that she had not intended during the war. We know that America interests itself in what happens in other countries. But it is not in your power to live happy, contented and wealthy in America if you know that much of the rest of the world is suffering, that some of it is covered with blood, and with want and with pestilence.

If you could have faith and simply say let us establish a plan of what is to be done and when we have established it, it should take into consideration guarntees. The moment it is done it will do much to restore things to a more normal state. And I know that you will not be content to remain loof and let many of the people in Europe suffer when you have so much.

Does Not Think That War Can Ever Be Prevented.

I do not want you to run any risk. You don't run any. Now, that will do for the present. Now, there remins the question of safety. I do not want safety. I do not ask for it. But don't you think if the frontier is protected on our side, you know the result would be a protection for Germany. If we are sure that Germany cannot attack us, she is sure that we won't attack her without letting all our friends go, which we are not going to do. When at the end of the war I was asked in the House of Representatives in Paris, when I was asked what will be your policy after peace is made, I answered, the same as in war—remain with England and America just as united as in war. And so if you find some way—I do not want to speak of the League of Nations, but I might, oh, I might. Don't you think it is kind of a beginning of a co-operation? Let us talk practically. As to the League of Nations I always said, particularly in the House of Representatives in Paris, I always said, I do not believe in it as a means of preventing war. I do not see how war will ever be prevented among men.

But I believe in it as a means of arranging matters; avoiding wars when it is possible, giving people time to think, to ponder, before they determine to action. Therefore you have the means of doing a great deal. I saw a banker in New York who told me, "Arrange your matters with England and we will interfere," but I do not want him to interfere.

Are you very sure that your time is to build walls around your country and to isolate yourselves from civilization? Moreover, if you bring Germany to reason, if you call her to atone in a reasonable measure, if that is done great good will come. I hardly dare pronounce the word, but, after all, I will say it.

Says There Are Two Germanys.

Now, I say, that after such a war men cannot continue to fight each other; they cannot fight forever. There are, after all, two Germanys. There is the Germany which is a democratic Germany, which I think could, more easily at least, be called to reason; while the others, who love war, have learned nothing and are preparing a revolution or civil war against their brothers just to begin the action against the European Powers. Well, whatever may happen, the intervention of America—in what way I leave it to you altogether for the moment, the way. That is no business of mine. That is yours. You have seen one of the greatest dramas in the world. We may not understand all that it meant and all that it represented.

Now we are in the greatest crisis, and nobody knows when it may end. Nobody knows whether European miseries won't have some effect upon American prosperity. You announced to the world that you would set them free. You proclaimed it in the peace treaty. Then I turned to you and I told you this: Why did you make the war? Was it because you thought that you would be threatened? was it to aid others? Was it for the liberation of suffering countries and make, as President Wilson said, democracy safe, or something like that? Tell me which of these points you have gained by this war. You have come to the last point where you are granted by good fortune the time to think. Now, have you made up your minds? No sacrifice is demanded or exacted from you except to assert that you want to keep among the people of this world the great place that you have twice taken.

If you take it, then you will see a great emotion among the people, liberty —liberation. If you don't, the prospect is dark and dreary. But you may be sure that we won't fall into it before we have done our best to try to avoid it.

M. CLEMENCEAU'S SPEECH TO JOURNALISTS ASKING U. S. TO HELP FRANCE PROTECT DEMOCRACY.

In another article we allude to the address made by M. Clemenceau at the luncheon to journalists given on Monday last at the Ritz-Carlton by Ralph Pulitzer of the New York "World." At that time the text of the speech was withheld from publication, and it was not until yesterday (Nov. 24) that it was released. Stating that he had "come to awaken certain feelings in your heart," the former Premier added: "I come to ask what will you do to help France to protect democracy." "There is something harder than war," he said—"It is peace. The danger is to go too far to enter into your own conscience." The "World" prints as follows his speech at the luncheon:

By many of M. Clemenceau's friends, and perhaps by M. Clemenceau himself, the speech he made at the luncheon given by the New York "World" to the editors and proprietors of the New York newspapers last Monday at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel is regarded as his strongest effort since he has been in America. He spoke with frankness because he was speaking to his "brothers in journalism," as he phrased it.

He imposed the seal of confidence upon the speech, but this he has now lifted and it is accordingly herewith presented, together with the introductory speech of Ralph Pulitzer, who, as President of the "World" organization, acted as host. That it is not a verbatim report is due to the fact that it was transcribed by stenographers untrained in taking long speeches, to the further fact of Clemenceau's quick, jerky delivery and habit of leaving his sentences incomplete, and, finally, to his sometimes difficult pronunciation.

Mr. Pulitzer—Gentlemen, we are here to-day to share the honor welcoming back to this country not only a distinguished newspaper man, not alone a great statesman, not alone a famous Frenchman, but a Man. He is indeed an envoy extraordinary. He comes here without any credentials but his character. He needs no passport but his personality.

He comes here not as the prudent emissary of a Government but as a frank spokesman of a great people. He comes here not to serve the purpose of politicians but to explain to us and to vindicate to us the country which he has so long loved and served. I am sure I can speak for all of us when I say that whether we agree on every point or not, we and the millions of people benind us in this country will listen to every word he may utter while with us with the most earnest interest, deepest respect and highest admirations.

M. Clemenceau.—Of course gentlemen, I am sure that you understand that when I say I'll make a speech I don't mean it. But the fact is, I am very much embarrassed as to what I've got to do. I was told that I was brought to a place to meet the most distinguished editors and publishers in America, and I asked what they wanted of me. They said they didn't want anything. They just wanted to shake hands and say "How do you do?" So I thought I'd come, and I was going to prepare a speech and say a good deal about interesting matters, and what did I learn? That it was private. A "private" speech—I never heard of that before.

Well, nevertheless, I think that by scraping my head I can find one or two things you will be pleased to have me tell you. The fact is that I am not in my place now. It is so far back that as a journalist my memory is gone. Only I remember as a journalist I was very eager and daring, and maybe that is one of the dearest lessons I have learned in America more than fifty-seven years ago. I do not know where most of you were at that time, but I know where I was. I know no one is here to get information.

You know better than I, I suppose, that in America, as in France, emotions are always contrary. If one says black the other says white and all the rest say gray. The greatest difficulty, I think, in democracy is to get the truth. I do not say that the difficulties are any less in monarchies, but you see, democracy serves to change the names of the Government, of the houses and of the people. But, after all, we are all very much alike. They like the truth as long as it does not come out. When it comes out sometimes they are very apt to be afraid.

As the journalists say, the newspapers are written by the readers. That is a good word, and that is the danger. We give ourselves the pleasure to write something that will please the readers, simply because it establishes a friendship between the writer and the reader. As a young man I tried to write not only what I thought my people would like but also my own ideas.

If you give yourself to the propensity of writing what you think, the readers will not like it, and will find ways to show they do not like it. It is very difficult to find a hero to stand this. People think to be a hero you must be riding a big horse and doing wonders against an enemy whom nobody sees. We ought all to be heroes. We ought to do our plain, simple duties willingly which are exacted and demanded from us. I know that in my country there are some deficiencies, but you've got a great thing here that no Government can overthrow. There are a number of things in this democracy that are not good, but they need a man for the hard work and to take the position.

We belong to an old race that has a very heavy story in the past, and if I could complain of something here in this country it would be because you don't always make compromises. You know you established liberty in this country, which was not very easy. You have very many heroes and they established a Government in this country; it was not very easy. Ah! What a different story with us. We have been fighting for centuries, bearing sufferings and massacres and everything. But, of course, that reacts. The men do not come to the front and say what they think, and that reacts upon the spirit of the reader. What is the use of the press if the reader does not believe the writer?

The American people have difficulties. After all, they look for nothing but the truth. It is not their fault if they are often mislead. American people are not only American people; they are a part of the set of European people. Think of your dear old Pilgrims, your cavaliers, your Huguenots. A body of European minds. We all come from the same blood.

Therefore, be good to us. I do not know whether you mean to be good or not, but I do not care, because I think that the stuff at the bottom of your heart is just what it ought to be. Therefore, I trust whatever you decide you will not judge too fast. Let things go to see whether you are prejudiced or your right judgments are founded on them.

When you find an old people like the French who have suffered for the work of liberation of Europe, and when you come to think that in this last war out of 8,000,000 mobilized we lost 5,500,000 mutilated, killed and wounded, think of the large amount of goodness, courage, power of hope righteourness and human strength in all its best. Children returning to their own villages finding nothing. Not alone their houses but the City Halls and churches just a stick with the name of the village that was. Well, if they make some mistakes in the work of reparation, tell them that they are mistaken but don't give them then feeling that after being in the war we will let then lay.

I will tell you a great secret: there is not much difference, as Bernhardi said, between war and peace. But, nevertheless, war must bring a state of peace, and if you do not attend to the execution of this peace you will be asked, Why did you send soldiers to Europe, causing so much blood to be shed? Why did you give us money? Why cannot I find in speeches of your statemen why you were proud when Europe came to you that you were willing to pay with your men?

There is one thing that you do not know; that is, when word came that "America is coming" they did not know what America was. If I could take you to my country now you could see for yourself the peasant. When you ask him what America is you will see that he cries at mention of America.

If you do a noble thing one day you cannot do a mean thing next.

But, as I told you the other day at the City Hall, it has given us one of the greatest joys to see those men at the farmers' table being asked what their country was. Maybe Americans had been taught to know there was a country called France. But somehow or other among our peasants there was a tradition that America was a country of freedom and they knew what freedom meant.

The farmer who was born on the fields did not know what freedom was and he had to turn to the American soldiers to find out about his Government. He would greet the American soldier, say "How do you do? What is your Government? Did you get the gratifications you expected from democracy?" And they all laughed.

If you knew your power to-day as you seemed to have known at that time—the great crisis the end of which no one can foresee. It is very easy to see that we are in a crisis, and if you do not choose carefully the means, and if you do not unite your parties—well, the time has come, I thought, when American people ought to think about their responsibility.

I beg of you I do not come here to blame, to judge or to criticise. We can all make mistakes. You can ask me any question about my political life. I also have made some mistakes, if I should say the truth.

Well, the time has come for you to make up your mind. I am not going to tell you what to do, how to do it, when to do it, but I am going to tell you that the black clouds are on the horizon far away, for all the civilized world.

Of course, every nation has its own faults. I admire American soldiers. I admire the British soldier who behaved in the splendid way. When I hear an American say: "What is it to me?"—What was it to the Australian who gave his life? He enjoyed his freedom and he wanted everybody to have a share of it. Do not put yourself below what you are really worth in spite of yourself. Now, according to the time, we have come to end it.

I did not come for pity nor for protection of my health. I bring health with me. I feel, having lived in the situation which is coming soon, sooner than you think, and I come to wake you up. Not to do any worrying or on account of any economic question. I do not come for money. My principle is every honest debt must be honestly paid.

See what our situation is. If you doubt it. come out and see the devastated regions that have been destroyed, so that we may not have any economic success for a long time. Immediately after the armistice was signed. Think of it. Why?

Twenty thousand manufactories destroyed; every piece of the machinery taken; the coal mines put in such condition that they will not be used for year and years. That was the treatment we had for France. I could say we were quite as badly treated by our own people, but I do not think it.

My friend, think of it, you left us in a lurch, and in a lurch we are. I come to warn you because I know what you mean at the bottom of your hearts. I do not want to ask a decision. I want you to decide as you think is best for America, because I know what is best for America is best for Europe and the world. Do not forget the responsibility which you have toward the civilized world. We have our share of it.

I have no illusion about the history of my own country. I am pleading for an American influence in Europe that will protect Germany against France, if necessary, no less than France against Germany.

Do not forget you wanted to call men to help when you broke with England. Otherwise what would you have been? But you saw your cause much higher and you cried out to the world: "Here we are. We fight for happiness; we fight for liberty; we fight for the human soul and heart." Was that not the great end?

I have allowed myself to speak a great deal more than I wanted, but if I succeed in making you feel like myself, I will be very glad to have had this occasion to speak to you with my heart and to show you in what position I am.

If we were united and you help us get along with Great Britain, who have spendid qualities, the moment you appear, the moment you say America is going to interfere, all the threats coming from Germany will stop, because whe will find before her the three powers she cannot overcome. Through your doing that we will pay you what we owe you and shake hands with the best wishes for your country.

If you will put some questions to me I will be glad to answer with the greatest pleasure and wishes of my heart.

Question.—What definite things can the United States do?

M. Clemenceau.—My dear friends, I will answer the question very plainly. My strength, my power, the reason that you have been so kind in listening, is that I represent nobody; I bring nobody with me; I have no desire of anything. But there is something I must take care of—your own public powers that are interested with yourselves. I am not going to take the slightest share in the action which I wish you to take. I will not say a word about it. I speak plainly because I do not try to make out a definite plan.

I come to awaken certain feelings in your hearts, and if that is done I am willing to leave the rest to your conscience. I am sure in the end it will be right one way or the other, because if the wish is in your heart the trouble will be in not doing what I ask. I understand why you were afraid to get entangled. When we were told the American Nation was not alive, don't think that I did not understand what you meant. I know all the reservations that we have to submit to, but for the present I want to put this idea in your heads.

I have come to ask what will you do to help France to protect democracy. If it is not done, why are you quiet when we are so much disturbed? The Government cannot say it; it is only a private man who serves France with a high mind that can come to you as I have just done, but with a danger to me if I go too far, because I know nothing about the American parties. They differ so much between themselves, as they believe, except with the tariff question. Well, I am going to guard myself against it. The American mind is all right. I know if they make a mistake they repent in the most glorious manner.

But, in the mean time, you were not prepared when Germany was going to rush upon us. We waited for Great Britain to prepare and for America to get ready. We waited a long time. Now here we are. Do I ask you to do anything dangerous? Will it cost you money? Not at all. No, just the other way. It will give us a way to repay and give you gratitude above it. If you run any risk to-day it is because you will run a greater risk to-morrow.

There is something harder than war. It is peace. The danger is to go to far, to enter into your own conscience. It is no value unless it comes from yourself. It is for you to do. You know if the circumstances are favorable or not. That is your business, not mine.

If I brought here a plan, you know that two-thirds would arise and say that is not right. You must do it that way. You are a free people If you were left to yourselves and the way was shown to you, you would not need anybody to show you. You will find, in the end, it was too late, as when you wanted to come to war, because our soldiers had fallen, and for one year after you declared war the American soldiers did not appear on the battlefield.

Therefore, I hope I made my reasons clear to you. I am not a savage man. I may be savage when others are savage—oh, then I can give way to my nature. But I take very good care not to go further than what I say you in this meeting, which is for me the greatest occasion to speak plainly and to tell you after hearing me to-day there will be no difference to-morrow. I bring what is in my bosom. I ask you to discuss among yourselves after I am gone and make up your minds according to what you think should be done. But it seems to me, old as I am, that if France were to be destroyed I would be proud to be among the last Frenchmen. "God is too high and France is too far."

America and England have come to the front together. How many stories I could tell you to prove it. But sometimes I think England is too near and America is too far.

Come and visit our country as I visit yours; come and see our people and, if you want, secret information upon our military forces. During the war, at certain times when I was in Great Britain I did not like certain officers in London to see the real condition of their soldiers because I complained. We do the same thing. Do not come publicly to call us bad names. The people that you knew a century and a half ago are the same people. They are stronger because France has established democracy very perfectly.

You have the minds, you have the wills which make the greatest men. When a man dies you write on his tombstone that he was a great success in the buttonhole business; but if he is a poor fellow and a good citizen you will take care and have it written down on the stone. I hope there will never be a grave of the American people. If there is, the French will be buried on the same day. You have done too much to do too little, and I want us to live together to the end.

SENATORS IN CRITICISM OF M. CLEMENCEAU'S REMARKS.

The speech made by M. Clemenceau on Tuesday night at the Metropolitan Opera House in which he besought the help of the United States in preserving peace was subjected to considerable criticism in the Senate on the 22nd and 23rd. Senator Borah, one of those exclaiming against the remarks of the former Premier declared on the 22nd that "there is no man living more responsible for the present misery of Europe than M. Clemenceau. He more than any other man is responsible for the impossible and destructive terms of the Versailles Treaty." The New York "Times" in a Washington dispatch Nov. 22 reports the criticisms as follows:

The reaction in the Senate to the speech of Georges Clemenceau in New York last night in which he appealed for the aid of this country in the solution of the grave problems facing Europe, as indicated by statements to-day, was for the most part adverse. In no legislative quarters was there any expressed approval of Clemenceau's plea; in others comment was withheld, while among the Versailles Treaty and League of Nations irreconcilables criticism was outspoken.

Senator Borah, who, after March 4, will rank next to Senator Lodge on the Committee on Foreign Relations, denounced Clemenceau as the man most responsible for what he termed the "present misery" of Europe.

Senator Lodge refused to comment, as did also Senator Pomerene, one of the ranking Democratic members of the committee.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was Chairman of the committee during the war period, denounced the French position and repeated the charge that France is maintaining a division of negro troops on the Rhine. The comment of the Nebraska Senator was considered as significant in view of the fact that it is generally admitted that one of the principal causes of his defeat for re-election on Nov. 7 was the opposition of the German voters of that State.

Senator McCumber, the only Republican member of the committee who supported the League of Nations, did not care to enter into the controversy as to the propriety or impropriety of the speech. This also was the attitude of Senator Wadsworth of New York, who became a member of the committee during the last session of Congress.

"A Prolongation of War."

Senator Borah had this to say:

"I am unable to accept M. Clemenceau's argument. He tells us that Europe is weltering in misery. So she is. For her we have the deepest sympathy. But there is no man living more responsible for the present misery of Europe than M. Clemenceau. He more than any other man is responsible for the impossible and destructive terms of the Versailles Treaty. He more than any one else stood in the way of the American Delegation to mollify the treaty and make it so that under it Europe could recover.

"The Versailles Treaty is utterly destructive of the economic life of Europe. That is the judgment of every economist I know of who has studied the situation. It is also the judgment of leading Americans who have gone to Europe and returned after studying the situation. The present condition of Europe is due more to the terms of the Versailles Treaty than any other one thing. Europe can never recover under its terms. Misery and suffering and discord and bloodshed will prevail so long as it obtains.

"Now, M. Clemenceau is directly, or indirectly, asking us to enforce this treaty or to help enforce it. To do so would add misery and suffering to Europe.

"M. Clemenceau said, after he had written the Versailles Treaty practically, that the Versailles Treaty was in effect a continuation of war—almost as destructive and inhuman as the war itself. And we are now looking upon Europe as she exists after four years under this treaty, which was, as he very well said, merely a prolongation of the war.

"If M. Clemenceau will show the American people he could help the suffering millions of Europe and actually bring relief to them he would find great sympathy here. But when he talks further punishment, talks, in effect, war, preaches destruction and dismemberment—as in effect he does—I am of the opinion that his message will find many to disapprove."

Forcing an Eastern Alliance.

Senator Hitchcock expressed the opinion that France was partly to blame for conditions east of the Rhine, saying:

"Now that Germany is a republic I should think France would try to placate her. I should like to ask Clemenceau why France continues to provoke Germany by, for instance, keeping 30,000 black troops on German soil and why she persists in doing things to arouse the resentment of the Germans.

"As he maintains, it is true that Germany, Russia and Turkey are drawing closer together toward a common understanding, but France is driving them on that course."

Mr. Hitchcock's colleague, Senator Norris, an original irreconcilable, declared that the repudiation of the Versailles Treaty by the voters should settle the question brought up by the "Tiger."

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, who was recently in Europe and came home with a story to tell that was distinctly anti-French, denied that conditions in Europe are such as Clemenceau painted them to be.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, head of the bi-partisan farm bloc, connected the "Tiger's" plea with the debt situation, saying:

"At the bottom of it all is the desire of Europe to get more of our money. I do not believe this country should go to war to settle the problems of Europe. And I do not think we will give Europe any more money until the nations over there, who are in debt to us, show a disposition to pay back some of the money they owe us."

"Not in Good Taste."

Senator Edge, of New Jersey, raised the question of the propriety of Clemenceau's plea, declaring:

"The appeal made by M. Clemenceau for assistance from the United States, with the threat of a new war as the alternative, is not in good taste and will accomplish nothing. America has shown in the past her willingness to aid France, and if the time comes when she needs further assistance it is not unlikely we will give it. But we will do it in our own way and in our own time, and not as France herself may dictate."

Mr. Ladd, the Republican Non-Partisan League Senator from North Dakota, observed that America's duty to Europe is a duty owed not only to the Allies, but also to the former enemies of the nation. He said we should give them moral support, but should never become a party of their "political jealousies and embroilments."

Other Senators, as a rule, were disinclined to comment. But, as stated, the general opinion of the Clemenceau speech seemed to be unfavorable. It was said to-night that Senator Borah may speak in the Senate to-morrow and that if he does he probably will have more to say regarding the utterances of the "Tiger."

Clemenceau is due in Washington on Thursday, Dec. 7, and while here, it is announced to-night, he will participate in a lecturers' conference on public opinion and world peace, which is to be held in Memorial Continental Hall on Dec. 7, 8 and 9. Clemenceau will speak before the conference on Dec. 8 and his subject will be "The Case of France."

President Harding is one of the honorary Presidents of the conference. Among those who will address the conference are Henry Morgenthau, Baron Shidehara of Japan, Ex-Secretary Redfield, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Major-General John F. O'Ryan of New York.

JOHN W. DAVIS OF COUNCIL ON FOREIGN RELATIONS IN EXPLANATION OF M. CLE IENCEAU'S VISIT.

John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain and President of the Council on Foreign Relations, on Nov. 23 issued the following statement concerning M. Clemenceau's visit to America, according to the New York "Times":

In one of the morning newspapers appears a report that United States Senator France of Maryland is "preparing a speech on the whole subject of foreign propaganda in the United States and will denounce the system which sends Clemenceau and others to America. He will reveal the source from which the propaganda emanates and tell how it is financed."

Lest Senator France and others should be led into misapprehension of the facts so far as M. Clemenceau and the Council on Foreign Relations, under whose auspices M. Clemenceau spoke at the Metropolitan Opera House, are concerned, it seems advisable that the facts should be stated.

Ever since the Peace Conference M. Clemenceau has frequently expressed a hope to visit the United States. Last summer he sent word to his friend Colonel E. M. House that he would like to come this fall and make half a dozen speeches. Colonel House thereupon suggested to the Council on Foreign Relations, an organization which includes men of all political parties, formed to foster discussion of America's foreign relations, but engaged in promoting no propaganda as to the form those relations should take, that it would be highly appropriate for M. Clemenceau to speak in New York under the auspices of the Council. The Council was very glad to embrace the suggestion and cabled an invitation to M. Clemenceau, which was accepted. It was also very glad to engage an auditorium in which M. Clemenceau could speak, and to invite its members and friends to give a courteous hearing to his message.

During the remainder of M. Clemenceau's tour he is in charge in Boston of a citizens' committee, of which F. L. Higginson Jr. is Chairman; at Chicago, Brigadier-General Dawes has charge of his arrangements, and he will speak there under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations of that city. He goes to St. Louis at the invitation of the city extended by its Mayor. At Washington he will be the guest of Henry White and will speak before the International Chautauqua Association, of which President Harding is the Honorary President. At Philadelphia arrangements are being made by Edward Bok, and he will speak at the Academy of Music Forum.

In advance of his coming M. Clemenceau stipulated that he should pay all of his own expenses. Being a man of modest income, he is said to be earning these expenses through writing newspaper articles. He also stipulated that the proceeds from any of his meetings at which there should be a charge for admission should be distributed to some Franco-American charitable enterprise to be named by him.

CLEMENCEAU ROUSES STORM OF ANGER AND DENIALS IN GERMANY.

The following, from the New York "Herald" of yesterday (Nov. 24) was in the nature of a copyright cablegram from Paris Nov. 23:

Germany is literally infuriated by Georges Clemenceau's onslaught upon her in New York. Official opinion, however, affects to regard the "Tiger's" speech as too far-fetched to be taken seriously, and the initial comment in the press follows the same line.

That the inter-Allied Control Commission had declared the accusations launched by M. Clemenceau quite unjustified by the facts in its possession became known this afternoon in Governmental circles and caused marked satisfaction. There was a spirit of frank indignation among some of the Commission members, who are inclined to regard the charge that the Germans are making hundreds of guns as a disagreeable reflection upon the activities of the control officers.

Chancellor William Cuno declined to make any comment upon or to permit his Cabinet associates to discuss Clemenceau's speech, on the ground that its full text had not yet been received here, and that, moreover, it voiced merely the views of a private French citizen. The New York "Herald" correspondent is authorized by the Foreign Office, however, to say that the German Government stamps the former French Premier's allegations about secret and illegal manufacture of war material as absolute invention, and that it feels that the existence of the Russo-German treaty to which he referred has been denied so often that further denial is unnecessary.

One of the first tasks of the new Foreign Minister, Von Rosenberg, was to cable the German Ambassador in Washington authorization to issue a formal refutation of M. Clemenceau's indictment, if such a step should seem expedient.

Bitter Feeling in Reichstag.

In the lobbies of the Reichstag extracts of the speech published in this morning's papers aroused bitter laughter. There is a strong feeling among the Deputies, however, that Clemenceau has hurt himself and France more than Germany by what are deemed here utterly baseless charges. "The 'Tiger' is biting himself," one of the party leaders exclaimed.

The only newspaper comment of note that has appeared thus far is the following in this evening's "Lokalanzeiger": "The whole character of this man, to whom in his lifetime monuments have been dedicated on French soil, is afflicted with all the symptoms of that morbid over-excitement which has to-day become distinctive of France. There is no more use analyzing the well-known misrepresentations which Clemenceau is formulating in America than there is reason for controverting the falsifications of the story whose design is to paint France as peace loving and Germany as thirsting for revenge and lusting for war. The impression he has produced thus far on the other side of the ocean with his lying phrases does not seem to be exactly overwhelming. His speech of yesterday was received very coldly in American Government circles. Apparently he is now trying to restore his menaced popularity by suddenly producing a letter threatening him with death."

Allied Board Issues Denial.

In the absence of Gen. Nollett, chief of the Interallied Control Commission, who was not at headquarters in Berlin to-day, the following statement was given the New York "Herald" correspondent by one of the Allied Generals attached to the Commission, and may be regarded as official:

"Unless every officer, without exception, in the French, Belgian and British groups is deceived it is absolutely untrue that there is a single instance of war materi ls being made in Germany. That is not only unlikely but ridiculous. We have men in every establishment in the country where arms—either cannon or military rifles—could be made, even supervision of the conversion of old arms plants to peace uses. It is true a limited number of sporting arms are made. Nobody can draw a line between sporting and military arms so far as being dangerous is concerned, but it is well known that the sporting rifles produced are not fit and not numerous enough for war. Morevoer there is not a pound of powder being made in Germany, except for mine blasting, which again is obviously useless in war."

The General made this statement in the most forcible language, pounding the table as he spoke. The French members, while loath to believe that Clemenceau had not qualified his statements in some manner, declared that the facts remained that no war material whatever was being made inside the borders of Germany.

A commission official also told "The New York Herald correspondent that while treaties were not in his province, there was no reason to believe a treaty between Russia, Germany and Turkey existed, as Clemenceau charged. He said, concerning M. Clemenceau s prediction of an uprising of monarchists, that all reports to the commission indicated that there was no real danger so long as labor held the weapon of a general strike in its hands.

Baron von Lersner, once the head of the German peace delegation to Versailles, and now a member of the Reichstag and foreign affairs expert for the People s party, Hugo Stinnes s group, gave "The New York Herald" correspondent the following comment upon M. Clemenceau s charges:

"I cannot believe that even such an ardent enemy as Clemenceau said such monstrosities, such colossal falsehoods. Can a man, even if he has but a smattering knowledge of German conditions, voice the possibility of Germany preparing for a war of revenge now? France has millions under arms—whites and blacks part of them on German soil. We have 100,000 soldiers—hardly enough to maintain order in Germany. We are accused of manufacturing cannon. What about the control commission that supervises our factories day and night?

"Clemenceau is reported to have said that German treaties with the Russians and the Turks are preparing for a war of revenge. Have we not made the Rapallo treaty openly, and does not everybody know its purport? But France and Poincare gave arms to Turkey three months ago and thereby fought England.

"The peace of Versailles was to be a peace of justice in operation. It is not, M. Clemenceau. Don t you remember your last speech as Premier before the French Chamber, when you said the treaty was a continuation of the war by other means? If Clemenceau does not lie—and I cannot believe it of a man like him—the report of his speech surely must be incorrect."

Hermann Mueller, President of the Socialist Party, observed: "A cannon cannot be manufactured unseen. A big factory is required, and in all the big factories there are workers' councils, who would object to such manufacture. Most of the workers are Socialists or Communists, but even those who are Democrats would oppose the construction of arms. You can hide cannon, but you cannot build one secretly in this age of telephone, telegraph and espionage. And what about the inter-Allied missions?

"As for our treaty with Russia, there is nothing secret about it. During the present period of shifting governments in Germany it is impossible to make secret treaties. For Germany to ally herself with Russia or Turkey for a war of revenge would make Germany a battlefield. No reasonable person can suppose that Germany wants to destroy herself."

CONGRESS CONVENED—MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT HARDING ON SHIP SUBSIDY—FARMERS' PROBLEMS TO BE PRESENTED SHORTLY.

In accordance with the call issued by President Harding on Nov. 9 (referred to in our issue of Nov. 11, page 2108), Congress assembled in special session on Monday last (Nov. 20). President Harding's message setting out his purpose in calling the Congress in special session, two weeks in advance of the regular session, was not presented until the following day, Nov. 21, both branches of Congress having adjourned shortly after convening—the House out of respect to the memory of Representative Nolan, and the Senate adjourning in memory of Senator Watson, both having died since Congress adjourned in September. President Harding personally appeared before Congress in joint session on Tuesday, the 21st, and read his message from manuscript. The President referred therein to his message of last February on the merchant marine (referred to in our issue of March 4 1922, page 904), stating that "other problems were pressing and other questions pending, and for one reason or another which need not be recited, the suggested legislation has not progressed beyond a favorable recommendation by the House Committee." He referred to the "divided opinion and determined opposition" which had developed against the proposals, and said "perhaps a more resolute hostility never was manifest before, and I am sure the need for decisive action—decisive, favorable action, never was so urgent before." Our immediate problem, he said, "is not to build and support a merchant shipping, . . . our problem is to deal with what we now possess. Our problem is to relieve the public Treasury of the drain it is already meeting." The President declared that "this problem cannot longer be ignored, its attempted solution cannot longer be postponed. The failure of Congress to act decisively will be no less disastrous than adverse action." Three courses of action are possible, said the President, who continued:

The first is constructive—enact the pending bill, under which I firmly believe an American merchant marine, privately owned and privately operated but serving all the people and always available to the Government in any emergency, may be established and maintained.

The second is obstructive—continue Government operation and attending Government losses and discourage private enterprise by Government competition, under which losses are met by the public Treasury, and witness the continued losses and deterioration until the colossal failure ends in sheer exhaustion.

The third is destructive—involving the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations and the confession of our impotence to the world in general and our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

The President stated that he knew "full well the hostility in the popular mind to the word 'subsidy' " and observed that " 'Government aid' would be a fairer term than 'subsidy' in defining what we are seeking to do for our merchant marine." He declared it his "firm belief that the combined savings of operating losses and the protection of the capital account through more advantageous sales of our war-built or war-seized ships, because of the favorable policy which the pending bill will establish, will more than pay every dollar expended in Government aid for twenty-five years to come." He also said:

The direct aid, with ocean carrying maintained at our present participation, will not reach twenty millions a year, and the maximum direct aid, if our shipping is so promoted that we carry one-half our deep seas commerce will not exceed thirty millions annually. At the very maximum of outlay we should be saving twenty millions of our present annual operating loss. If the maximum is ever reached the establishment of our merchant marine will have been definitely recorded and the Government-owned fleet fortunately liquidated.

From this point of view it is the simple, incontestible wisdom of business-like dealing to save all that is possible of the annual loss and avoid the millions sure to be lost to the Government's capital account in sacrificing our fleet. But there is a bigger, broader, more inspiring view-point, aye, a patriotic, viewpoint. I refer to the constructive action of to-day, which offers the only dependable promise of making our war-time inheritance of ships the foundation of a great agency of commerce in peace and an added guaranty of service when it is necessary to our National defense.

The President took occasion to refer in his message to the farmer, who, he said "is the chief sufferer from the cruel readjustments which follow war's inflations," and he added that "our credit systems, under Government provision and control, must be promptly and safely broadened to relieve our agriculatural distress. To this problem and such others of pressing importance as reasonably may be dealt with in the short session, I shall invite your attention at an early day." On Nov. 22 the House, by a vote of 200 to 110, adopted a resolution giving the Administration's shipping bill right of way, and providing for a final vote on the bill on Nov. 29. In reporting the reintroduction of the bill on the 20th inst. the New York "Times" Washington dispatch said:

The Ship Subsidy Bill was reintroduced in the House to-day with important changes following a conference of the Republican sub-committee charged with revising the measure. Among the new features are provisions for the payment of mail subsidies, extension of the powers of the Shipping Board over coastwise shipping and a requirement that the Board report annually on the administration of the subsidy and construction and loan funds. The subcommittee consisted of Representatives Edmonds of Pennsylvania, Lehlbach of New Jersey and Chindblom of Illinios.

The amendment allowing mail subsidies came as no surprise and was proposed by Representative Edmonds to offset the losses expected to arise through enforcement of prohibition on the high seas. Under it the sections of the bill requiring American ships receiving direct subsidies to transport the mails free are stricken out and the Postmaster-General is empowered to pay for the carriage of ocean mails.

If the mail subsidy is adopted it will give American ships, chiefly passenger vessels, more than $3,000,000 annually for mail service. Postmaster-General Work objected to the former arrangement. The American Steamship Owners' Association also petitioned the Shipping Board for the change.

The new section to empower the Board to fix minimum rates for coast traffic and to determine fair values for services rendered by industrial ships is partly an outgrowth of the recent rate war in the coast trade. The Board has power to fix maximum rates but cannot control minimum rates.

Amendments permitting the Shipping Board to write its own protective and indemnity insurance, and allowing the insurance of privately owned American vessels by the Government if foreign insurance rates are lower than American rates were inserted in the measure.

The committee rejected a proposal to amend the bill so as to fix $35,000,000 as the maximum sum that might be derived from the Treasury by taking 10% of the customs receipts. It was decided to leave this feature as originally worded—10% of the annual receipts.

Immediately after the action of the House, Democratic members agreed at a party caucus to stand up solidly against the measure.

Referring to President Harding's message and its reception by Congress, the "Times" in its issue of Nov. 22 said in part:

Have Knives Out for the Bill.

The La Follette and Capper groups in the Senate have their knives out for the bill, and there are certain mid-West Senators not in either group who are expected to oppose the measure.

After President Harding delivered his address to-day, Senator La Follette came out in a blast against a ship subsidy. He said that the losses which the Government is sustaining in operating a merchant fleet could be taken care of many times over by restoring the excess profits taxes and surtaxes, "which," he added, "the present Administration has repealed."

Anti-subsidy Senators plan to force an extra session of the next Congress if that course is necessary to kill the subsidy bill. They can force an extra session by filibustering against the annual supply bills which must be passed to carry on the Government in the next fiscal year. It is understood, however, that they will forego a filibuster if they can obtain assurances from Administration leaders in Congress that the subsidy measure will not be pressed to passage.

President Harding has indicated that he is opposed to calling an extra session of the next Congress prior to its regular assembling in December 1923, but certain radical and progressive groups in the Senate seem to be set on compelling him to convene Congress early next Spring.

The following is the President's message:

Late last February I reported to you relative to the American merchant marine, and recommended legislation which the Executive Branch of the Government deemed essential to promote our merchant marine and with it our national welfare. Other problems were pressing and other questions pending, and for one reason or another which need not be recited the suggested legislation has not progressed beyond a favorable recommendation by the House Committee. The Committee has given the question a full and painstaking inquiry and study, and I hope that its favorable report speedily will be given the force of law.

It will be helpful in clearing the atmosphere if we start with the frank recognition of divided opinion and determined opposition. It is no new experience. Like proposals have divided the Congress on various previous occasions. Perhaps a more resolute hostility never was manifest before, and I am very sure the need for decisive action—decisive, favorable action—never was so urgent before.

We are not now dealing with a policy founded on theory; we have a problem which is one of grim actuality. We are facing insistent conditions, out of which will come either additional and staggering Government losses and national impotence on the seas, or else the unfurling of the flag on a great American merchant marine commensurate with our commercial importance, to serve as carrier of our cargoes in peace and meet the necessities of our defense in war.

There is no thought here and now to magnify the relation of a merchant marine to our national defense. It is enough to recall that we entered the World War almost wholly dependent on our Allies for transportation by sea. We expended approximately three billions feverishly, extravagantly, wastefully and impractically. Out of our eagerness to make up for the omissions of peace and to meet the war emergency we builded and otherwise acquired the vast merchant fleet wh'ch the Government owns to-day.

In the s'mplest way I can say it, our immediate problem is not to build and support a merchant shipping, wh'ch I hold to be one of the highest and most worthy aspirations of any great people; our problem is to deal with what we now possess. Our problem is to relieve the public treasury of the drain it is already meeting.

Let us omit particulars about the frenzied wartime building. Possibly we did full as well as could have been done in the anxious circumstances. Let us pass for the moment the vital relationship between a merchant marine and a commercially aspiring nation. Aye, let us suppose for a moment the absurdity that with one $3,000,000,000 experience and with the incalculable costs in lives and tresaure which may be chargeable to our inability promptly to apply our potency—which God forefend happening again—let us momentarily ignore all of these and turn to note the mere business problem, the practical question of dollars and cents with which we are confronted.

The war construction, and the later completion of war contracts where completion was believed to be the greater economy to the public treasury, left us approximately 13,300,000 gross tonnage in ships. The figures are nearer 12,500,000 tons now, owing to the scrapping of the wooden fleet. More than half this tonnage is Government owned, and approximately 2,250,000 tons are under Government operation in one form or another. The net loss to the United States Treasury—sums actually taken there from this Government operation—averaged approximately $16,000,000 per month during the year prior to the assumption of responsibility by the present Administration. A constant warfare on this loss of public funds and the draft to service of capable business management and experienced operating directors have resulted in applied efficiency and enforced economies. It is very gratifying to report the diminution of the losses to $4,000,000 per month, or a total of $50,000,000 a year; but it is intolerable that the Government should continue a policy from which so enormous a Treasury loss is the inevitable outcome. This loss, moreover, attends operation of less than a third of the Government-owned fleet.

It is not, therefore, a question of adding new Treasury burdens to maintain our shipping; we are paying these burdens now. It is not a question of contracting an outlay to support our merchant shipping, because we are paying already. I am not asking your authorization of a new and added draft on the public treasury; I am appealing for a program to diminish the burden we are already bearing.

When your Executive Government knows of public expenditures aggregating fifty millions annually which it believes could be reduced by half through a change of policy, your Government would be unworthy of public trust if such a change were not commended—nay, if it were not insistently urged.

And the pity of it is that our present expenditure in losses is not constructive. It looks to no future attainments. It is utterly ineffective in the establishment of a dependable merchant marine, whereas the encouragement of private ownership and the application of individual initiative would make for a permanent creation, ready and answerable at all times to the needs of the nation.

But I have not properly portrayed all the current losses to the public treasury. We are wearing out our ships without any provision for replacement. We are having these losses through deterioration now, and are charging nothing against our capital account. But the losses are there, and regrettably larger under Government operation than under private control. Only a few years of continued losses on capital account will make these losses through depreciation alone to exceed the fifty millions a year now drawn to cover losses in operation.

The gloomy picutre of losses does not end even there. Notwithstanding the known war cost of three billions of dollars for the present tonnage, I will not venture to appraise its cash value to-day. It may be as well confessed now as at some later time that in the mad rush to build, in establishing shipyards wherever men would organize to expend Government money, when we made shipbuilders over night, quite without regard to previous occupations or pursuits, we builded poorly, often very poorly. Moreover, we constructed without any formulated program for a merchant marine. The war emergency impelled, and the cry was for ships, any kind of ships. The error is recalled in regret rather than criticism. The point is that our fleet, costing approximately three billions, is worth only a fraction of that cost to-day. Whatever that fraction may be, the truth remains that we have no market in which to sell the ships under our present policy, and a program of surrender and sactifices and the liquidation which is inevitable unless the pending legislation is sanctioned, will cost scores of millions more.

When the question is asked, Why the insistence for the Merchant Marine Act now? the answer is apparent. Waiving every inspiration which lies in a constructive plan for maintaining our flag on the commercial highways of the seas, waiving the prudence in safeguarding against another $3,000,000,000 madness if war ever again impels, we have the unavoidable task of wiping out a $50,000,000 annual loss in operation, and losses aggregating many hundreds of millions in wornout, sacrificed or scrapped shipping. Then the supreme humiliation, the admission that the United States—our America, once eminent among the maritime nations of the world—is incapable of asserting itself in the peace triumphs on the seas of the world. It would seem to me doubly humiliating when we own the ships and fail in the genius and capacity to turn their prows toward the marts of the world.

This problem cannot longer be ignored, its attempted solution cannot longer be postponed. The failure of Congress to act decisively will be no less disastrous than adverse action.

Three courses of action are possible, and the choice among them is no longer to be avoided.

The first is constructive—enact the pending bill, under which I firmly believe an American merchant marine, privately owned and privately operated, but serving all the people and always available to the Government in any emergency, may be established and maintained.

The second is obstructive—continue Government operations and attending Government losses and discourage private enterprise by Government competition, under which losses are met by the public treasury, and witness the continued losses and deterioration until the colossal failure ends in sheer exhaustion.

The third is destructive—involving the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations, and the confession of our impotence to the world in general and our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

A choice among the three is inevitable. It is unbelievable that the American people or the Congress which expresses their power will consent to surrender and destruction. It is equally unbelievable that our people and the Congress which translates their wishes into action will longer sustain a program of obstruction and attending losses to the Treasury.

I have come to urge the constructive alternative, to reassert an American "we will." I have come to ask you to relieve the responsible administrative branch of the Government from a program upon which failure and hopelessness and staggering losses are written for every page, and let us turn to a program of assured shipping to serve us in war and to give guaranty to our commercial independence in peace.

I know full well the hostility in the popular mind to the word "subsidy." It is stressed by the opposition and associated with "special privilege" by those who are unfailing advocates of Government aid whenever vast numbers are directly concerned. "Government aid" would be a fairer term than "subsidy" in defining what we are seeking to do for our merchant marine, and the interests are those of all the people, even though the aid goes to the few who serve.

If Government aid is a fair term—and I think it is—to apply to authorizations aggregating $75,000,000 to promote good roads for market highways, it is equally fit to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of American market highways on the salted seas. If Government aid is the proper designation for fifteen to forty millions annually expended to improve and maintain inland waterways in aid of commerce, it is a proper designation for a needed assistance to establish and maintain ocean highways where there is actual commerce to be carried.

But call it "subsidy," since there are those who prefer to appeal to mistaken prejudice rather than make frank and logical argument. We might so call the annual loss of fifty millions, which we are paying now without protest by those who most abhor it. We might as well call that a "subsidy." If so, I am proposing to cut it in half, approximately, and to the saving thus effected there would be added millions upon millions of further savings through ending losses on capital account—Government capital, out of the public treasury, also remember—and there would be at least the promise and the prospect of the permanent establishment of the needed merchant marine.

I challenge every insinuation of favored interests and the enrichment of the special few at the expense of the public treasury. I am, first of all, appealing to save the Treasury. Perhaps the unlimited bestowal of Government aid might justify the apprehension of special favoring, but the pending bill, the first ever proposed which carries such a provision, automatically guards against enrichment or perpetuated bestowal. It provides that shipping lines receiving Government aid must have their actual investment and their operating expenses audited by the Government, that Government aid will only be paid until the shipping enterprise earns 10% on actual capital employed and immediately that when more than 10% earning is reached half of the excess earnings must be applied to the repayment of the Government aid which has been previously advanced. Thus the possible earnings are limited to a very reasonable amount if capital is to be risked and management is to be attracted. If success attends, as we hope it will, the Government outlay is returned, the inspiration of opportunity to earn remains, and American transportation by sea is established.

Though differing in detail, it is not more in proportion to their population and capacity than other great nations have done in aiding the establishment of their merchant marines, and it is timely to recall that we gave them our commerce to aid in their upbuilding, while the American task now is to upbuild and establish in the face of their most active competition. Indeed, the American development will have to overcome every obstacle which may be put in our path, except as international comity forbids.

Concern about our policy is not limited to our own domain, though the interest abroad is of very differing character, I hope it is seemly to say it, because it must be said, the maritime nations of the world are in complete accord with the opposition here to the pending measure. They have a perfect right to such an attitude. When we look from their viewpoints we can understand. But I wish to stress the American viewpoint. Ours should be the viewpoint from which one sees American carriers at sea, the dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war. Some of the costly lessons of war must be learned again and again, but our shipping lesson in the World War was much too costly to be effaced from the memory of this or future generations.

Not so many months ago the head of a company operating a fleet of ships under our flag called at the Executive offices to discuss a permit to transfer his fleet of cargo vessels to a foreign flag, though he meant to continue them in a distinctly American service. He based his request for transfer on the allegation that by such a transfer he could reduce his labor costs alone sufficiently to provide a profit on capital invested.

I do not vouch for the accuracy of the statement nor mean to discuss it. The allusion is made to recall that in good conscience Congress has created by law conditions surrounding labor on American ships which shipping men the world over declare result in higher costs of operation under our flag. I frankly rejoice if higher standards for labor on American ships have been established. Merest justice suggests that when Congress fixes these standards, it is fair to extend Government aid in maintaining them until world competition is brought to the same high level, or until our shipping lines are so firmly established that they can face world competition alone.

Having discussed in detail the policy and provisions of the pending bill when previously addressing you, I forbear a repetition now. In individual exchanges of opinion not a few in House or Senate have expressed personal sympathy with the purposes of the bill, and then uttered a discouraging doubt about the sentiment of their constituencies. It would be most discouraging if a measure of such transcending national importance must have its fate depend on geographical, occupational, professional or partisan objections. Frankly, I think it loftier statesmanship to support and commend a policy designed to effect the larger good to the nation than merely to record the too hasty imprssions of a constituency.

Out of the harmonized aspirations, the fully informed convictions and the united efforts of all the people will come the greater Republic. Commercial eminence on the seas, ample agencies for the promotion and carrying of our foreign commerce, are of no less importance to the people of Mississippi and the Missouri Valley, the Great Northwest and the Rocky Mountain States, than to the seaboard States and industrial communities building inland a thousand miles or more. It is a common cause, with its benefits commonly shared. When people fail in the national viewpoint and live in the confines of community selfishness or narrowness, the sun of this Republic will have passed its meridian and our larger aspirations will shrivel in the approaching twilight.

But let us momentarily put aside the aspiring and inspiring viewpoint. The blunt, indisputable fact of the loss of fifty millions a year under Government operation remains; likewise the fast diminishing capital account, the enormous war expenditure, to which we were forced because we had not fittingly encouraged and builded as our commerce expanded in peace. Here are facts to deal with, not fancies wrought out of our political and economic disputes. The abolition of the annual loss and the best salvage of the capital account are of concern to all the people.

It is my firm belief that the combined savings of operating losses and the protection of the capital account through more advantageous sales of our war-built or war-seized ships, because of the favorable policy which the pending bill will establish, will more than pay every dollar expended in Government aid for twenty-five years to come.

It should be kept in mind that the approximate sum of five millions annually paid for the transport of ocean mails is no new expenditure. It should be kept in mind that the loan fund to encourage building is not new; it is the law already, enacted by the essentially unanimous vote of Congress. It is only included in the pending bill in order to amend so as to assure the exaction of a minimum interest rate by the Government, whereas the existing law leaves the grant of building loans subject to any whim of favoritism.

It should be kept in mind, also, that there are assured limitations of the Government aid proposed. The direct aid, with ocean carrying maintained at our present participation, will not reach twenty millions a year, and the maximium drect aid, if our shipping is so promoted that we carry one-half our deep seas commerce, will not exceed thirty millions annually. At the very maximum of outlay we should be saving twenty millions of our present annual operating loss. If the maximum is ever reached, the establishment of our merchant marine will have been definitely recorded and the Government-owned fleet fortunately liquidated.

From this point of view it is the simple incontestable wisdom of business-like dealing to save all that is possible of the annual loss and avoid the millions sure to be lost to the Government's capital account in sacrificing our fleet. But there is a bigger, broader, more inspiring viewpoint, aye, a patriotic viewpoint. I refer to the constructive action of to-day, which offers the only dependable promise of making our wartime inheritance of ships the foundation of a great agency of commerce in peace and an added guaranty of service when it is necessary to our national defense.

Thus far I have been urging Government aid to American shipping, having in mind every interest of our producing population, whether of mine, factory or farm, because expanding commerce, is the foremost thought of every nation in the world to-day.

I believe in Government aid becomingly bestowed. We have aided industry through our tariffs. We have aided railway transportation in land grants and loans. We have aided the construction of market roads and the improvement of inland waterways. We have aided reclamation and irrigation and the development of water power. We have loaned for seed grains in anticipation of harvests. We have expended millions in investigation and experimentation to promote a common benefit, though a limited few are the direct beneficiaries. We have loaned hundreds of millions to promote the marketing of American goods. It has all been commendable and highly worth while.

At the present moment the American farmer is the chief sufferer from the cruel readjustments which follow war's inflations, and befitting Government aid to our farmers is highly essential to our national welfare. No people may safely boast a good fortune which the farmer does not share.

Already this Congress and the Administrative Branch of the Government have given willing ear to the agricultural plea for post-war relief, and much has been done which has proved helpful. Admittedly, it is not enough. Our credit systems, under Government provision and control, must be promptly and safely broadened to relieve our agricultural distress.

To this problem and such others of pressing importance as reasonably may be dealt with in the short session, I shall invite your attention at an early day.

I have chosen to confine myself to the specific problem of dealing with our merchant marine because I have asked you to assemble two weeks in advance of the regularly appointed time to expedite its consideration. The Executive Branch of the Government would feel itself remiss to contemplate our yearly losses and attending failure to accomplish if the conditions were not pressed for your decision. More, I would feel myself lacking in concern for America's future if I failed to stress the beckoning opportunity to equip the United States to assume a befitting place among the nations of the world whose commerce is inseparable from the good fortune to which rightfully all peoples aspire.

IMPEACHMENT CHARGES AGAINST ATTORNEY-GENERAL DAUGHERTY FOR FAILURE TO PROSECUTE PROFITEERS TO BE PUSHED.

A joint statement was issued on Nov. 19 by Representatives Keller of Minnesota and Woodruff of Michigan announcing that plans to bring before the House Judiciary Committee for hearing the impeachment charges made against Attorney-General Daugherty will be pushed to a conclusion. Congressman Keller preferred the charges against the Attorney-General in the late session of Congress, but it was then decided to postpone the formal hearing until the regular session. In their joint statement issued on Nov. 19, Congressmen Keller and Woodruff said:

We intend to vigorously push the impeachment proceedings against the Attorney-General. The election results demonstrate that the people are determined that graft and corruption shall be eliminated from the Federal Government. The fitness of Mr. Daugherty to hold office was one of the main issues of the campaign in many States. This issue was emphasized by speeches and in the platforms of successful candidates for both Houses of Congress, and wherever Daughertyism was an issue those candidates were elected regardless of their party affiliations. By their vote the people have demanded that the office of Attorney-General of the United States be filled by a man of unquestioned integrity.

Four years ago the great war came to an end. Even while we were engaged in the struggle charges of graft and corruption on a gigantic scale were made. As far back as two years ago, before the present Administration came into power, some of these charges were investigated by the present Secretary of State, Hon. Charles E. Hughes, by the Thomas Committee in the Senate and by the Graham Committee in the House. The findings of these committees were presented to the Attorney-General, and in addition the War Department turned over to the Department of Justice for action a number of cases of fraud against the Government. Criminal prosecutions and civil actions for the recovery of stolen money were recommended. In the opinion of experienced prosecutors, the evidence presented was sufficient to secure indictments and convictions and to recover for the people billions of dollars.

The Harding victory of 1920 resulted from popular indignation at the conditions disclosed and the pledge of the Republican Party to prosecute the war grafters immediately it came into power. Notwithstanding this pledge, the present Attorney-General not only has done virtually nothing to bring to justice those who robbed the American people during the war, but in many cases proceedings against war profiteers have been smothered in his department. Not until after charges against him were made on the floor of the House, on April 11 1922, more than a year after he had been in office, did he move in any way to bring other than the pettiest of grafters to book. Seven months have elapsed since that storm of criticism broke over his head, and during that time he has secured indictments in only two war fraud cases, and has not brought a single important case to trial.

This inactivity on the part of Mr. Daugherty is not due to lack of evidence. Experienced prosecutors have declared that in many cases the evidence is sufficient to proceed to trial without further investigation. We have obtained proof that Mr. Daugherty himself, more than a year ago, officially stated that he was in possession of evidence sufficient to establish criminal conspiracy in a case involving millions of dollars. Attorney-General Daugherty has not yet presented this case to a Grand Jury or instituted civil suit for the recovery of stolen money.

From time to time Mr. Daugherty has widely proclaimed his intention to take action against the war grafters. Whenever public indignation has flared up because of his inaction he has attempted to cool it off with more promises. Such promises were made after his impeachment in the House on Sept. 11. Since that time there has been another season of promises in the Department of Justice, and, now that Congress is about to reassemble we may expect soon to be regaled with a great noise and hubbub from the Department of Justice as to how many war grafters have been, or are about to be, brought to justice. Such tactics will mislead only the uninitiated or those who wish to be misled.

No red herring drawn across the trail by Mr. Daugherty or his friends can smother the evidence in our possession of culpable inaction in numerous war graft cases, in which evidence sufficient to secure convictions has been ready for months. In many cases Mr. Daugherty has neglected to act, and in others has defensibly "compromised" cases by abandoning altogether the interests of the United States in favor of those whom the records disclose had defrauded and cheated the Government.

In addition to his culpable neglect to prosecute war grafters Mr. Daugherty has altogether failed and neglected to prosecute powerful combinations in restraint of trade, although ample evidence was gathered by the Lockwood committee of New York and by the Federal Trade Commission to prove that the burden of high prices under which the people have been groaning since the war is directly is directly traceable to such criminal combinations.

In these cases, likewise, the evidence has been ready for more than a year. and was sufficient to secure convictions where the State of New York had jurisdiction. But, although the Lockwood Committee transmitted to Mr. Daugherty the evidence in cases that crossed States lines and were there-

In these cases, likewise, the evidence has been ready for more than a year, and was sufficient to secure convictions where the State of New York had jurisdiction. But, although the Lockwood Committee transmitted to Mr. Daugherty the evidence in cases that crossed State lines and were, therefore, crimes against the Federal Government, no action has been taken. We demand to know what sinister influences, working through the office of the Attorney-General of the United States, are protecting those who rob the Treasury through war graft and the pockets of the people through criminal combinations.

We will not deterred from our insistence that the Judiciary Committee act upon the resolution to enable the impeachment of Mr. Daugherty to proceed to a trial before the Senate. We demand that the Judiciary Committee hear the evidence against Daugherty or state openly that it refuses to let the country know how he has conducted himself in office.

Attorney-General Daugherty before the November election stated that he would insist on the Judiciary Committee hearing the impeachment charges. He reiterated his position in a letter on Nov. 19 sent to Representative Volstead. The letter follows:

Hon. A. J. Volstead, Chairman, Judiciary Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Ny Dear Mr. Chairman:—When I was personally engaged in the trial and argument of an important Government case in the Federal Court in Chicago, I learned through the press that there had been referred to your committee a resolution offered by a member of the House suggesting grounds for my impeachment as Attorney-General.

Before I was able to conclude this case in Chicago and return to Washington Congress had adjourned.

I am advised that your committee has fixed Dec. 4 to hear any testimony offered in support of such resolution, and I am writing to say that I shall be glad to furnish the committee all data and information which it may request.

It is needless to say that a matter of this character should be disposed of as promptly as possible, both in justice to the Government and to me as Attorney-General.

Not having received from your committee a copy of the charges referred to, I respectively request that you forward me a copy thereof. Very truly yours.

H. M. DAUGHERTY.

The House Judiciary Committee adopted a resolution on Nov. 23 calling on Representative Keller to present by Dec. 1 a statement of facts showing the alleged act or acts for which he has asked for the impeachment of Attorney-General Daugherty. He was further requested to name as far as possible "the persons involved in each transaction, the time and place thereof, and the witnesses by which such facts can be established."

LLOYD GEORGE SEES LESSON TO BRITAIN IN RESULTS OF GENERAL ELECTION—PRESENT SYSTEM, HE SAYS, SHOULD BE REVISED.

Great Britain's former Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, in an article released simultaneously for publication on Nov. 22 in several of the principal cities of the world discussed the significance of the recent general election in Britain which brought Andrew Bonar Law and the Conservative Party into power. The article, copyright in the United States by the New York "Times," was cabled to that paper and published in full in its issue of the 22d. One of the main contentions advanced by Mr. Lloyd George in his discussion and analysis of the election results is that the Conservative Party although securing a majority in the new Parliament did so through a "very definite minority of electors." This situation, in the opinion of the ex-Premier, indicates a fundamental weakness in the present British electoral system, and he therefore urges a modification to make a repetition of such results impossible. He dwells on the danger of the Labor Party securing a majority by a minority of electors. Salient excerpts of his article are reprinted herewith:

The result of the elections has fully justified those who maintained that no party standing alone could hope to secure the measure of public support which will guarantee stable government. It is true that the Conservatives have succeeded in obtaining the return of a majority of the members to the new Parliament, but the most notable feature of the elections is the return of a decisive majority of members by a very definite minority of electors.

I observe that the Prime Minister in returning thanks to the nation claims that he has received a vote of confidence from the people of the country. Out of a total poll of 15,000,000, his candidates secured less than 6,000,000 votes. Making full allowance for uncontested seats, this figure cannot be stretched out to a height much above 6,000,000. That means that only two-fifths of the electorate voted confidence in the Administration, while three-fifths voted confidence in other leaders or groups.

Denies It Is Vote of Confidence.

A minority of 3,000,000 in the national referendum could hardly be claimed as a vote of confidence. It is the first time, certainly, since the Reform Act, when a pronounced minority of the electorate has succeeded in securing control of the Parliament and the Government of the country. It will be idle to pretend that in a democratic country like ours, thoroughly imbued with the spirit of representative government, this does not weaken the moral authority of the Government of the day.

Unless representative government is to be discredited altogether the present Parliament ought at once to devote its mind and direct its energies to the discovery of some method and machinery which will avert the danger which undoubtedly arises from the working of the present system. The Parliament of 1918 undoubtedly gave a larger majority to the Government than the figures warranted, but the majority of the votes cast for Government candidates was so overwhelming that under any system of counting there would have been a larger working majority for the Government than that which the present Government can command. So when trouble arose it was not open to any section of the community to object that the Government had no authority because it did not represent the electorate of this country.

We are faced with a new danger to constitutional Government. What has happened at this election may be repeated at the next, but not necessarily in favor of the same party. If we are to be governed by a succession of administrations who rule in spite of the protest of a majority of the people, the authority of the Government will be weakened beyond repair.

The luck of the electoral table has this time favored the Conservatives. Next time it may turn in favor of the Labor Party. They have secured many seats this time by a minority of votes. This time the votes cast for them have attained the gigantic aggregate of four millions and a quarter. Conditions were in many respects against them. Their funds were exhausted by a prolonged period of heavy unemployment. The Trade Union Movement was passing through the ebb-tide in its prosperity both in funds and in members. There was a good deal of discontent with the trade union leaders. Many workmen felt they had been let down badly by some of their activities in industrial disputes.

Intimates Labor Might Win Next Time.

Moreover, labor has been committed by visionaries to a rash experiment which handicapped it severely in the election.

The next time may be the springtide of labor. They have learned their lesson at the polls and are not likely to repeat the blunder of November 1922. Supposing under those conditions they add another two millions to their poll. Although groups may secure between them nine millions of votes, Labor may have the same luck as the Conservatives at the last election and be placed in power by a decisive majority of members elected by a minority of votes.

CHANCELLOR CUNO FORMS NEW CABINET IN GERMANY.

Wilhelm Cuno, Managing Director of the former Hamburg-American Steamship lines, and one of Germany's foremost commercial leaders, who was charged with forming a new Ministry when the Government of Chancellor Wirth fell recently, announced Nov. 20 that he had succeeded in "patching up" a Cabinet. The new Cabinet, of which Chancellor Cuno is the head, is made up entirely of non-Socialists. Germany's fifteenth Chancellor, Wilhelm Cuno, is said to be the first non-partisan, non-parliamentary holder of that office in the new Republic. The new German Cabinet has been constituted as follows:

Chancellor—Wilhelm Cuno.
Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Justice—Dr. Carl Cheinze.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Baron Von Rosenberg.
Minister of the Interior—Rudolph Oeser.
Minister of Finance—Andreas Hermes.
Minister of Economics—Johannes Becker.
Ministry of the Treasury—Dr. Heinrich Albert.
Minister of Transportation—General Wilhelm Groener.
Minister of Posts and Telegraphs—Herr Stingl.
Minister of Food—Herman Mueller.
Minister of Defense—Dr. O. Gessler.
Minister of Labor—Dr. Heinrich Braun.

With regard to the political complexion of the new Ministry, Associated Press dispatches say:

Baron von Rosenberg, at present German Minister to Denmark, served as departmental chief in the Foreign Office before and during the war.

Drs. Heinze and Becker of the German People's Party served in the Fehrenbach Cabinet.

Henrich Albert, former Secretary of the Chnacellery, was German Commercial Agent in the United States at the time of the breaking off of relations between the two cojntries.

Rudolph Oeser, Democratic member of the Prussian Diet, is a well-known economist.

Herr Stingl up to the present has been chief of the Bavarian section of the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs.

Herr Mueller, new Food Controller, is Director of the Rhenish Agricultural Chamber.

The Ministers holding over from the Wirth Cabinet are Hermes and Braun, Clericals, and Gessler and Groener, Democrats.

Only seven active parliamentarians are representated in the new Ministry, the Democrats supplying three, the Clericals two and the German People's Party two. Baron von Rosenberg, Herr Stingl and Herman Mueller are regarded as non-partisans, while the new Secretary of the Chancellery, Eduard Hamm, who was Bavarian Minister of Commerce and Industry, is a Democratic member of the Reichstag. Dr. Albert, the Minister of the Treasury, is a member of a group party, but it not active politically.

BENITO MUSSOLINI, NEW ITALIAN PREMIER, GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies on Nov. 17 gave a vote of confidence by 306 to 116 to the Government of Benito Mussolini, the Fascista Premier. The minority vote came from Socialist, Communist and Republican Deputies and a few adherents of former Premier Nitti. The debate which preceded the vote was punctuated by some interesting incidents, a summary of these being given in Associated Press dispatches from Rome, which had the following to say:

Prior to the debate it had been announced by Mussolini that he would allow eleven Deputies—one from each group—to address the Chamber. Fifty-three members had desired to be heard. Hardly had the eleventh man concluded when the Premier sprang to his feet and began replying to interpellators.

The Premier took the rostrum immediately after Signor Daragona, President of the Italian Labor Federation, had spoken on behalf of the workingmen and requested the Premier not to curtail the funds appropriated by the previous Government to aid unemployment, which was likely to become greater during the winter.

"Have these men a right to live"? queried Daragona as he took his seat.

"I come from the proletariat and have known the hardships and the near starvation of the poor emigrant," the Premier said. "Yes, Daragona, your workingmen will live. Never fear. But the Labor Federation must free itself from the influence of the various Socialist parties. The proletariat headquarters needs to open its window wide and let in a draft of fresh air to dispel the pestilential atmosphere within.

"We do not intend to follow a policy of servitude to the bourgeoisie, either. But we shall draw a sharp distinction between the bourgeoisie which works and produces, which we cannot yet do without, and the parasite bourgeoisie."

The Government, during debate, met with violent attacks from several of the deputies, notably Signor Turati, leader of the Intransigeant Socialists; Signor Conti, head of the Republicans, and Signor Nicolussi, head of the German group. To all their verbal thrusts, however, Mussolini was equal, replying sharply and to the point.

When Turati spoke of the abominable manner in which Mussolini had treated the Chamber the Premier replied testily, "I treated the Chamber the way it deserved to be treated."

"For the first time in the history of Parliaments," Turati continued, "the Government has not presented itself before the Chamber, but the Chamber has been summoned before the Government to give its reasons for being alive. We prefer death to life by the grace of Mussolini."

"Petty resentment because I wouldn't let you in the Government," replied Mussolini contemptuously.

CROWN PRINCE ABDUL MEDJID ELECTED CALIPHATE OF TURKEY.

The Angora Assembly has elected Crown Prince Abdul Medjid to the Caliphate, having given him 148 votes. Prince Selim received three votes and Ameer of Afghanistan two. Abdul, who is 53 years old, and a cousin of the Sultan, announced that he had accepted the Caliphate, which is the office of the successor of Mohammed as temporal and spiritual ruler of Turkey. Meanwhile the Sultan fled from Constantinople on the British dreadnought Malaya, arriving in Malta on Nov. 20, accompanied by his 10-year-old son and three officials. He will stay at Fort Tigne, it is stated, this place having been specially prepared for his reception.

CONFERENCE ON NEAR EASTERN QUESTIONS OPENS IN LAUSANNE.

The conference on Near Eastern questions called by the principal Allied Powers chiefly for the purpose of framing a new treaty of peace with Turkey to replace the discredited Treaty of Sevres, opened on Nov. 20 at Lausanne, Switzerland. Many statesmen who have figured prominently in Continental politics since the war were present at the opening in the Lausanne Casino. Two sessions of the conference were held on Nov. 21, the second day. At the first the organization of three commissions was arranged, the first on political and military matters, with an English chairman; the second on economics, finance and public health, with a French chairman, and the third on capitulations, minority populations and similar questions, under an Italian chairman. Ismet Pasha, the Turkish representative at the Near Eastern conference, was told flatly at the outset by the Allies that he could not preside at any of the meetings. The Allies decided the presidency must alternate among the British, French and Italians, despite the Turkish claim that they are a victorious nation. The first day's session was devoted largely to organization.

With regard to the first day's session, Associated Press advices said:

The Near East Peace Conference here was formally opened at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon. President Haab of Switzerland, the presiding officer of the opening session, entered the hall at that hour and read his welcoming address, to which Marquis Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, replied.

First of the leading delegates to arrive was former Premier Venizelos of Greece. He was followed shortly by Premier Mussolini of Italy, wearing the Fascisti tricolor in his buttonhole; Premier Poincare of France, and immediately by Lord Curzon of England and Emile Barrere of the French delegation. The conference adjourned to reassemble at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning in the Hotel du Chateau, at Ouchy.

During the proceedings Ismet Pasha, chief Turkish delegate, read a prepared address in a confident tone.

He declared that his country was totally deprived of the benefits of the World War peace and had been obliged to see the inanity of her pacific demands, which had never brought her peace. In the recent defense of her rights, Turks of every age and condition, as well as women and children, had contributed to her war of defense.

He could not refrain from emphasizing, he said, the attacks and sufferings to which the Turkish nation had been exposed since 1918—attacks which had been absolutely unjustifiable—nor from laynig stress upon the systematic devastation wrought without military necessity and in a spirit of extermination in the richest and most prosperous parts of Turkey. After asserting that 1,000,000 Turks were now homeless and hungry, he affirmed that the Turkish nation had won its place in civilized humanity, with every right of existence and independence inherent in nations capable of vigorous vitality. The goal of the Nationalist Turkish Assembly was to conserve and consolidate this position.

Turks There in Good-Will.

"Humanity has accepted the dogma that peace and general tranquillity can be realized only if the nations mutually respect their rights and liberty," he said. "I hope that the remembrance of past events will constitute a guaranty of peace and stability for the future. I hope that the Turkish delegation, which is animated by the maximum possible good-will, will find among the other delegations this same good-will, and that this conference will attain satisfactory results."

Ismet paid a glowing tribute to Switzerland in concluding his speech.

Lord Curzon, replying for the Allies, said that he wanted Lausanne to make "a final peace of all." He pledged England's wholesouled support in this cause.

Richard Washburn Child, American Ambassador to Italy, and Joseph H. Crew, Minister to Switzerland, the two principal American representatives, were seated prominently in the front row of the auditorium beside Premier Poincare of France, and received a warm welcome from the delegations from other lands.

The prospects of American activity in the conference, which many of the foreigners appeared to interpret as the launching of a new American policy in Europe, and the presence of a strong delegation from far away Japan, gave world-wide significance to the conclave which every one remarked upon.

It is announced that the establishment of a complete accord between Premier Poincare, Lord Curzon and Premier Mussolini on all matters coming up in the conference would be celebrated to-night by an Entente dinner of sixty covers, which M. Poincare and the French delegation tendered to the British and Italian representatives.

The United States played a brief part in the Near Eastern peace conference on Nov. 22, Richard Washburn Child, American Ambassador to Italy, making a declaration before the assembled delegates of the position of the official observers representing America. American participation in the conference, he said, will consist of joining in the discussions and safeguarding as far as possible rights which the United States feels must be protected in the interest of America and the rest of the world. The American observers will not vote or act as members of any of the commissions.

FURTHER DECLINE IN STRUCTURAL SALES.

A marked seasonal decline in the sales of fabricated structural steel in October was announced by the Department of Commerce on Nov. 20 from reports made to the Bureau of the Census. October sales amounted to 54.9% of shop capacity, compared with 61.6% in September. The Department says:

Reports received from 140 identical firms from April through October, with a shop capacity of 221,790 tons per month, show the following actual tonnages booked each month and the percentage of shop capacity represented by these bookings. A revision of these capacities in accordance with a uniform standard is now being undertaken by the Bureau of the Census but the results are not yet complete.

| | Tonnage Booked. | Per cent of Capacity.* |
| April | 191,805 | 86.5 |
| May | 172,260 | 77.7 |
| June | 153,278 | 69.1 |
| July | 141,907 | 64.0 |
| August | 143,515 | 64.7 |
| September | 136,587 | 61.6 |
| October | *a*121,763 | 54.9 |

* The inclusion of additional firms this month has made slight revisions in the per cent of capacity reported previously.

a October sales prorated for one firm which failed to report and represented about 1% of the total.

UNITED GRAIN GROWERS, LTD., OF CANADA TO OMIT CUSTOMARY DIVIDEND.

For the first time since its formation, it is announced, the United Grain Growers, Ltd., of Winnipeg, Canada, will this year omit the payment of its 6% dividend. The Toronto "Globe" of Nov. 6 in a Canadian Press dispatch from Winnipeg says:

No dividend is to be paid its shareholders by the United Grain Growers, Ltd., for the financial year ended Aug. 31, it is stated in a letter addressed by E. J. Fream, Secretary of the company, "to all shareholders," and published on Saturday in the Winnipeg "Tribune."

"Your directors," it is said in the letter, "have been unable to declare a dividend for the current year, which is the first interruption in the payment of dividends since the company commenced operations in the year 1916. The reserves of the company will be drawn on to make good the losses."

It is added that the financial position of the company "is still very strong and we have experienced no difficulty in arranging the necessary credits to carry on our business for the year," and that the shareholders "have every reason to look forward with confidence to the future of the company."

No intimation is given of the extent of the losses incurred on the year's business. Shareholders are told that balance sheets will be sent them in due course. The annual meeting of the company, of which Hon. T. A. Crerar is President, will be held in Calgary on Nov. 23.

How Losses Are Explained.

Explaining the cause of the losses, Mr. Fream reminds the shareholders that many of the company's shareholders and company eelvators are located in districts "where the crops were especially poor last year."

"Substantial losses," it is added, "were incurred in the machinery and supplies departments. The machinery has been revalued on a low basis, and no further losses in that department are anticipated."

From Calgary, Nov. 5, the same paper reports the following advices:

Many important subjects will be under consideration at the annual meeting ing of the United Grain Growers, Ltd., opening here on Nov. 23. One—if not two—of its principal officers will tender his resignation. President Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressive Party, may resign his position as head of the organization to devote his whole time to politics, while E. J. Fream, Secretary, has definitely signified his intention of doing so in order to become a member of the Alberta Public Utilities Board.

Improvement of live stock marketing conditions will be a feature of the meeting. Preliminary to the regular sessions, a conference to which representatives from shippers' asociations, individual shippers and delegates of the U. G. G. have been invited has been called for Nov. 22, when the subject will be fully discused.

Want Better Cattle Prices.

A plan whereby cattle consigned to Winnipeg, Edmonton and Calgary will be sold there only when those markets pay a fair price, otherwise they will be sorted out and taken on to the best available market at the time, has been prepared by the United Grain Growers, and if the company can get support for it from the shippers it will be put into effect, according to a statement issued by the organization.

To do this, however, it is pointed out that cattle could not be shipped in mixed loads, but would have to be sorted. It will mean grading all cattle so consigned, pooling all returns over a certain period on cattle so handled, and a distribution of profits made on a patronage dividend or participation certificate basis.

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION IN CHICAGO DEC .2-9.

The International Live Stock Exposition will be held in Chicago Dec. 2 to 9 1922. Every year this exposition visualizes progress over the previous year, and each year it is becoming more firmly fixed as an essential and integral part of the industry. Every stockman who can possibly, as well as every banker and business man who has the best interests of his community at heart, is urged by S. T. Kiddo, President of the Live Stock Exchange National Bank of Chicago to attend the exposition.

EGYPT HAS LARGER COTTON CROP—THE PROSPECT IN MEXICO AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

The final estimate of the cotton production in Egypt for 1922 is placed at 830,000 bales of 478 pounds net, according to a cablegram received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The corresponding official estimate for 1921 was 684,000 bales, but receipts indicate, the Department says, that the crop probably exceeded 800,000 bales. The area this year is estimated at 1,521,000 acres, against 1,339,000 acres last year.

In Mexico the warm weather during October in Lower California has improved the crop prospects in that State and the former estimate of about 95,000 bales may be reached, says the Department. In the Laguna District the crop is practically picked, but estimates of production for this district are conflicting, ranging from 15,000 to 35,000 bales. On the basis of these estimates, 120,000 bales is regarded as a reasonable rough estimate for the two districts which produce practically the whole Mexican crop.

In India the condition of the crop during September is reported as having been generally good. Weather conditions during September were generally favorable, heavy rains having benefited the crop in most localities. In Bengal districts, however, rain caused serious damage. Typhoons in China are reported to have taken place in the middle of September, causing serious damage to the cotton crop in the east of China and the Yangtze River Valley. No recent information for Peru is available. At the end of August a normal crop was reported.

WIDE INTEREST IN FEDERAL WOOL GRADES.

Great interest in the United States wool grades was manifested by forty representatives of the wool trade and wool manufacturing industry at a public hearing held by the United States Department of Agriculture at Boston on Nov. 21. A few changes in the grades were suggested which will have the careful consideration of the Department's wool standardization experts before the grades are promulgated as official standards. Similar hearings were held at Philadelphia on Nov. 23 and will be held at Chicago on Dec. 6, and at Washington at a date to be announced later, following which official wool grades will be fixed by the Department.

The present wool grades not only embody representative trade customs but have met with hearty approval on the part of producers. The tentative grades have been in use by various members of the industry for more than two years and the trade is familiar with them. During this time the grades have been exhibited all over the United States in the Department's campaigns looking toward the education of producers as to the desirability of standards as a basis of trading, and are now in use by many of the wool pools in the United States. The standards as now constituted include seven grades: Grade 1 (Fine); Grade 2 (½ Blood); Grade 3 (⅜ Blood); Grade 4 (¼ Blood); Grade 5 (Low ¼ Blood); Grade 6 (Common), and Grade 7 (Braid). The first five grades are each subdivided under the three designations, Strictly Combing, French Combing, and Clothing. Grades 6 and 7 are not subdivided. The work of the Department leading up to the formation of the tentative grades was discussed and illustrated by actual exhibits at the hearing, and the proposed grades were explained by the specialists in charge.

INCREASE IN WHOLESALE PRICES IN OCTOBER.

Wholesale prices of commodities averaged higher in October than in the month before, according to information gathered in representative markets by the U. S. Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Bureau, under date of Nov. 18, says:

Measured by the Bureau's weighted index number, which includes 404 commodities or price series, the increase in the general price level was approximately ¾ of 1%.

Farm products again showed large increases, due to advances in grains, cotton, hay, eggs and hides. In this group prices in October averaged 3¾% higher than in September. In the group of miscellaneous commodities, including among others, such important articles as bran and mill feed, cottonseed and linseed meal, leather, newsprint and wrapping paper, manila hemp, jute, and rubber, the increase was 3½%. Food articles advanced 1½% and cloths and clothing advanced 2¼% in average price from September to October. Building materials and housefurnishing goods showed an increase approximating 1¼%, while metals and metal products increased less than 1%.

Continued decreases took place in the group of fuel and lighting materials, bituminous coal and coke declining rapidly in the face of increased production. No change in the general price level was reported for the group of chemicals and drugs.

Of the 404 commodities or series of quotations for which comparable data for September and October were obtained, increases were shown in 216 instances and decreases in 79 instances. In 109 instances no change in prices was reported.

Fuel and lighting materials show the largest increase, 19½%, with building materials and metals coming next with increases of more than 15%. Farm products increased 11¼% and cloths and clothing increased 4½% in average price in the year. A slight increase is shown for the group of miscellaneous commodities. No change in the general level is shown for foods, while housefurnishing goods and chemicals and drugs were cheaper than in October last year.

INCREASE IN RETAIL FOOD PRICES IN OCTOBER.

The retail food index issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, through the Bureau of Labor Statistics, shows that there was an increase of 2% in the retail cost of food to the average family in October as compared with September. Prices of 43 food articles reported to the Bureau of Labor Statistics each month by retail dealers in 51 important cities. In addition prices on storage eggs are secured only for five months of the year. From these prices average prices are made for each article. The average prices of the 43 articles on which prices are secured each month are then "weighted" according to the quantity of each article consumed in the average workingman's family. From January 1913 to December 1920 22 articles of food were used in this index, but from January 1921 43 articles are included in the index number. The changes for one year, one month and since October 1913 are summarized as follows in the Department's statement made public Nov. 20:

Changes in One Month.

During the month from Sept. 15 1922 to Oct. 15 1922, 14 articles on which monthly prices are secured increased in price as follows: Strictly fresh eggs, 21%; rolled oats, 10%; butter, 9%; cheese, 6%; bananas, 5%; evaporated milk, 4%; plate beef, fresh milk and lard, 2%; pork chops, bacon and crisco, 1%. Nut margarine and coffee showed an increase of less than five-tenths of 1%.

Nineteen articles decreased in price as follows: Onions, 14%; navy beans, raisins and oranges, 6%; cabbage, 5%; potatoes, 4%; canned tomatoes, 3%; flour, 2%; sirloin steak, round steak, chuck roast, ham, corn flakes, baked beans, canned peas and prunes, 1%. Rib roast, hens and canned salmon decreased less than five-tenths of 1%.

Prices remained unchanged for 10 commodities: Leg of lamb, oleomargarine, bread, cornmeal, cream of wheat, macaroni, rice, canned corn, granulated sugar and tea.

Changes in One Year.

For the year period, Oct. 15 1921 to Oct. 15 1922, the percentage decrease in all articles of food combined was 6%. Twenty-nine articles decreased in price during the year as follows: Potatoes, 37%; onions, 32%; cabbage, 27%; raisins, 24%; cornflakes, 19%; evaporated milk, 16%; cream of wheat, 14%; storage eggs, 12%; flour, 11%; canned salmon and cornmeal, 9%; oleomargarine, strictly fresh eggs, bread and bananas, 8%; hens, fresh milk and baked beans, 6%; nut margarine and canned corn, 5%; butter, 4%; plate beef, macaroni and canned peas, 3%; rolled oats and canned tomatoes, 2%; bacon, ham and tea, 1%.

Fourteen articles increased in price as follows: Navy beans, 23%; leg of lamb, 20%; granulated sugar, 14%; crisco, prunes and oranges, 8%; cheese, 4%; rice, 3%; sirloin steak, pork chops, lard and coffee, 2%; round steak and rib roast, 1%. The price for chuck roast remained unchanged during the year.

Changes Since October 1913.

For the 9-year period, Oct. 15 1913 to Oct. 15 1922, the increase in all articles of food, combined, was 37%. The articles named showed increases as follows: Leg of lamb, 95%; ham, 73%; hens, 64%; pork chops, 62%; bread, 55%; cheese, 52%; sirloin steak, 49%; fresh milk, 48%; bacon, 47%; flour, 45%; granulated sugar, 44%; round steak, 43%; rib roast, 40%; butter, 33%; strictly fresh eggs, 31%; cornmeal, 26%; tea, 25%; potatoes and coffee, 22%; chuck roast, 21%; rice, 10%; lard, 9%, and plate beef, 4%.

The index numbers based on 1913 as 100, were 140 in September and 143 in October 1922.

EMPLOYMENT IN SELECTED INDUSTRIES IN OCTOBER.

The monthy statement of the U. S. Department of Labor dealing with employment conditions in October shows that as compared with the preceding month (September) there were increases in October in the number of employees in 29 of 43 representative manufacturing industries and decreases in 14, while comparative data in the case of 13 manufacturing industries for October 1921 and October 1922 shows that the number of employees increased in 7 of the industries during October this year and decreased in 6. The following is the Bureau's statement made public Nov. 22:

The U. S. Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics here presents reports concerning the volume of employment in October 1922 from 3,064 representative establishments in 43 manufacturing industries, covering 1,525,785 employees, who received $47,051,229 in wages. Comparing the figures for October 1922 with those for identical establishments for September 1922, there were increases in the number of employees in 29 of the 43 industries and decreases in the remaining 14 industries. As a further result of the resumption of work in car building and repairing, that industry, as in September, shows the greatest increase in employment, 13.7%. Glass, foundry and machine shops, woolen manufacturing, iron and steel and chemicals show increases ranging from 5.9% to 4.6%. Strikes in the pottery industry caused a decrease in employment in that industry of 30.9%. Fertilizers show a decrease of 6.8% and automobiles a decrease of 5.9%.

Thirty-four of the 43 industries show increases in the total amount of the pay-rolls in October as compared with September, while only 9 show decreases. Car building and repairing, glass, flour and pianos show the greatest increases, all about 14%, while iron and steel, chemicals, carpets and hosiery and knit goods show increases ranging from 9.8% to 8%. The greatest decrease (35.3%) in amount of total pay-rolls is of course shown in the pottery industry, while fertilizers, a seasonal industry, show a decrease of 11.3%. and men's clothing a decrease of 6.8%.

Car building and repairing, iron and steel and automobiles each show increased employment of approximately 25%, while cotton manufacturing, men's clothing and silk show decreased employment of 16.4%, 15.4% and 11.1%, respectively.

The total amount of the pay-rolls likewise increased in 7 of the industries and decreased in 6, but hosiery and knit goods and woolens changed places in the two lists as to employees and amount of pay-roll.

Iron and steel pay-rolls increased 65.2% in the year considered, automobiles pay-rolls increased 41% and leather pay-rolls increased 21.8%.

The largely decreased pay-rolls were those of men's clothing, 17.9%; cotton manufacturing, 13.8%, and silk, 13.3%.

INCREASED AUTOMOBILE PRODUCTION IN OCTOBER.

Figures received by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of the Census show a marked increase in the production of both passenger automobiles and trucks in October, compared with September. The total production of passenger cars in October was 217,098, compared with 187,128 in September, while truck production in October amounted to 21,416, as against only 18,656 in September. In October 1921 production totaled only, it seems, 134,734 passenger cars and 12,813 trucks. The low figures for September this year were partly, although not entirely, accounted for by the closing of the Ford factories for a part of the month. The following table, furnished by the Department of Commerce, gives the total production for each of the last four months, with corresponding figures for the same months of last year. With a few exceptions the reports each month, it is stated, are from identical firms and include approximately 90 passenger car and 80 truck manufacturers. October figures are subject to slight revision when all reports have been received.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY'S UNFILLED ORDERS EXCEED ALL RECORDS.

The "Wall Street Journal" in its issue of Nov. 23 publishes a dispatch from Detroit saying that the Ford unfilled orders are the largest in history and the Lincoln plant is booked for two years ahead. This plant under Ford management, it is stated, is making money for the first time and its product has been improved. Lincoln earnings are now at the rate of $1,000,000 annually. The dispatch then proceeds as follows:

Full response to the Ford price cut did not come for several days after the reduction, when orders rolled in as a flood. Mr. Ford is inclined, however, to ascribe a large portion of the increase to improved economic conditions. Business from the South has been especially encouraging and the whole country is responsive. On the whole, farmers' purchases are sagging below the 40% average of the last few years. Being accustomed to operation of machinery, farmers are large buyers of the cheapest Ford touring car without starter or demountable rims.

Indicating his confidence in the future, Mr. Ford anticipates production next spring may mount at times to between 7,000 and 8,000 cars daily, compared with a previous high of 5,380. The Ford policy will be to make principally cars in the second and third quarters of 1923, as those months represent the peak of motor sales. In the first and last quarters attention will be given largely to the manufacture of parts for stock and replacement use.

This expansion program is accompanied by renewed indications of the Ford intention of manufacturing every unit used in their product and of placing their buisness on a basis of increased self-sufficiency. An indication of this is the purchase of the Dexcar coal mine within the week. The two demands, coming simultaneously with the unofficial but expected electrification and partial double tracking of the Detroit Toledo & Ironton, foretell heavy drains on even the Ford cash resources.

The Ford company is now obtaining coal for blast furnaces at the mines at an average of $4, less than half what the organization believes would have been the charge had not the plant been closed for four days in the fall. A proportionate saving is made on steam coal.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION TO PROCEED AGAINST PHOTO-ENGRAVERS FOR FIXING PRICES.

Whether photo-engraving plates are "commodities" in a legal sense is the pivotal question in a case of unfair competition before the Federal Trade Commission. Photo-engraving is the common name for many processes by which plates for use in a printing press can be produced through the medium of photography. If the products are not commodities they are, of course, not the subject of interstate commerce and acts done in connection with photo-engraving could not be reviewed by Federal agency. In the pending case, the Commission was asked to review certain alleged agreements between the Photo-Engravers' Board of Trade of New York, Inc., and the New York Photo-Engravers' Union No. 1, to adopt and maintain a scale of uniform prices for photo-engraving products. After preliminary inquiry, the Commission finds reason to believe that the subject matter of these agreements—photo-engraving products—are commodities within its jurisdiction, and in order to properly bring before it the parties involved, has caused a complaint to issue, citing the officers and members of both the Board of Trade and the Union to appear and make answer respecting matters set out in the complaint. A date of hearing will be fixed later. The statement regarding the case issued by the Commission proceeds as follows:

The Photo-Engravers' Board of Trade of New York, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of New York in 1914, whose members are engaged in manufacturing and selling photo-engraving products. Members of the Board to receive notice of the citation are: Charles Sherman, President; Adolph Schuetz, Vice-President; William Blossfeld, Secretary; and William Huffman, Treasurer, which said officers, together with Albert W. Morley Jr., Albert Weber, Charles A. Grotz, Bernard C. Eggers and Hans A. Obst, constitute the Board of Directors.

The New York Photo-Engravers' Union No. 1 is an unincorporated association, of members employed in any process of photo-engraving, and is a branch of the International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America. Members of the Union to receive notice of the citation are: Edward J. Volz, President; Frederick E. Katsch, First Vice-President; Albert L. Armitage, Second Vice-President; John T. Flynn, Recording Secretary; Richard F. Lee, Financial Secretary; Ed. White, Treasurer; Thomas P. McDermott, Corresponding Secretary, and William Doerr, Business Agent, and the following acting members of the Executive Board: Edward J. Volz, Frederick E. Katsch, Richard F. Lee, Thomas P. McDermott, William Doerr, Edward Fischer, Andrew Franssen, Henry Hilbert, Benjamin Hines, Michael Nicholson, Frederick Scheid, and Ed. F. White.

In a like case involving the Photo-Engravers' Club of Chicago, the Commission did not make the local Union a party to the proceedings in the first instance, but later, upon motion of its counsel, Frank P. Walsh, the Chicago Photo-Engravers' Union No. 5 was allowed to intervene and become a party at interest. In the New York case the Union is named as a party in the first instance.

The complaint in the New York case recites an agreement between the Board and the Union to adopt and maintain a scale of uniform prices, below which no members of the Board will sell photo-engraving products. A joint commission of the Board and Union, the complaint states, sees that the agreement is carried out.

The Union, in pursuance of this agreement, it is alleged, requires its members to cease working for any member of the Board who fails to maintain the prices agreed upon, and in order to readily ascertain such prices, the Union has prepared a chart designated as "Maximum Selling Base for Photo-Engravings," for use by manufacturers of photo-engraving products. Further it is alleged, the Union agrees to work only for members of the Board, but requests the Board to admit all photo-engraving firms to its membership.

The Board, in pursuance of the agreement, it is alleged, follows the Union's chart of prices, employs only members of the Union, and acquiesces in the Union's request as to the admission of firms to the Board's membership.

The result of this, according to the complaint, is that practically all manufacturers of photo-engraving products in the City of New York have been compelled to join the Photo-Engravers' Board of Trade of New York, Inc., giving the members of that Board a monopoly of the business and enabling them to maintain agreed prices and eliminate competition. This, it is alleged, amounts to unfair competition to the prejudice of the public.

ANTHRACITE OPERATORS REPLY TO COAL FACT FINDING COMMISSION—MINERS MAKE REPLY ON STANDARDIZATION.

Declaring that "human beings cannot be standardized," the committee of anthracite operators sent to the President's Coal Fact Finding Commission on Nov. 20 a communication setting forth their views on the scope of the Commission's inquiry and on some important issues which affect the welfare of the industry. Simultaneously the United Mine Workers made public the unions' conclusions submitted to the Commission and touching upon some of the points which were treated in the operators' letter. On one important point, arising from the Commission's requests for views as to the possibility of standardizing mine wages and units of output from workers, both communications agreed in rejecting the proposals as impracticable.

They were also in substantial agreement in treating a second proposal of the Commission, regarding the possibility of closing down high cost mines, to maintain production from more economic mines. The anthracite employers declared the general scarcity of anthracite required continuation of operations in every mine which could afford output, while the miners said normal competition could be trusted to regulate the whole subject and to close down the more expensive operations.

The operators' letter contends emphatically that the anthracite industry should be considered as "separate and autonomous" from the bituminous industry, to prevent it from becoming, "as it has in the past, the victim of labor disputes with which it is in no way concerned." Signed by S. D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., and five other employers, it reserved answers on a number of queries propounded by the Commission to give more study to them, but dealt specifically with labor situations as of most immediate importance. The operators' letter in full is as follows:

GENERAL COMMITTEE OF ANTHRACITE OPERATORS.

Hon. John Hays Hammond, Chairman, United States Coal Commission, Washington, D. C.

Sir: This is a preliminary reply to your communication of Oct. 26. We have under consideration detailed replies on a number of topics with respect to which the Commission desires information. This information will have to be collected, compiled and verified, and it is hoped that instructions as to its character and manner of presentation will issue from the Commission. Until the necessary facts have been collected, it is not practicable to make any useful reply to that part of your letter which seeks our "carefully formulated views as to what efficient policy, if any, could or should be adopted by the Government relative to the coal industry, having proper regard to the interests of the mine workers, the mine operators, and the public."

The Committee of Anthracite Operators will co-operate with the Commission to the fullest extent of its ability in securing information that the Commission may desire. We suggest that a questionnaire be prepared for submission to each operators. If the Commission desires, our Committee will collaborate with it in the preparation of this questionnaire. We believe that all information submitted should be verified by the Commission or its agents whenever verification is deemed necessary.

With respect to paragraphs (e) and (f) of your letter, which refer to the "acknowledged demoralization" of the coal industry and measures for eliminating elements responsible for this condition, we understand from you that this is not intended to apply to the anthracite industry, where regular employment and a supply of domestic size coal commensurate with, but rarely exceeding, the public's requirements is, and for many years has been, the unvarying condition except when production is suspended by strikes.

We now deal seriatim with the list of 19 topics accompanying your letter:

I. Ownership and Titles of the Mines.—Information on this subject can be obtained by questionnaire in the manner already suggested.

II. Prices of Coal.—We assume that the inquiry with respect to prices will comprehend ascertainment of the price at the mine and the price paid by the consumer. Mine prices of coal for any period the Commission may care to investigate are obtainable from the operators, while the retail prices of coal may be ascertained by inquiry in the various localities where it is consumed.

It may be properly mentioned in this connection that the producer of anthracite generally sells his product at the mine. One of the many sources of misunderstanding with respect to anthracite prices is the great difference between the mine price and the consumers' price, the latter including, in addition t othe mine price, expense of transportation and the charges of middlemen and retail dealers, over which the operators have no control. Naturally, the Commission will investigate all of these items.

III. The Organizations and Persons Connected with the Coal Industry.—Data with respect to this subject may be obtained by the suggested questionnaire.

IV. Cost of Production.—This subject is, of course, one of the most difficult with which the Commission will have to deal. Anthracite operations vary widely with respect to cost of production. They differ not only by districts, but as to operations in the same district, and even in immediately adjoining properties. A great many considerations, geographical, physical and economic, affect the cost of production. Generally speaking, the so-called company operations are upon owned lands, while many of the "individual" producers operate under short leases requiring more rapid amortization of the investment. Some leases require royalties in excess of $1 per ton on the "prepared" or domestic sizes, and an extreme case exceeds $2 per ton at the present time. This subject may well receive the consideration of your Commission.

Differences in the relative proportions of the "prepared" and "steam" sizes produced (the latter being sold below the cost of production), and the resulting realization on their sales, represent another important factor in the anthracite problem.

These factors are mentioned not as inclusive, but as typical of the many considerations that must be taken into account in arriving at conclusions on the cost of production and the prices obtained for anthracite.

V. Profits Realized by Operators or Owners of Said Mines During the Last Ten Years.—In this connection it is suggested that the work of the Commission may be facilitated by recourse to the information furnished by certain companies to the Federal Trade Commission covering the period from January 1913 to December 31 1918, and by the analytical study of costs and profits made by the engineers of the United States Fuel Administration.

Supplementary information to bring these data down to date can be obtained by the questionnaire method.

VI. Profits of Other Persons or Corporations Having to Do with Production, Distribution or Sale of Coal.—With respect to this subject the operators can be of little assistance to the Commission, except in so far as coal producing companies perform the functions of sale and distribution or have relations with other companies that perform these functions.

VII. Labor Costs.—All of the producers of anthracite are in a position to supply the Commission with the labor costs of producing coal. These costs are kept in such manner as to be obtainable through the questionnaire.

VIII. Wages Paid.—The wage rates paid in the anthracite industry have for many years been fixed by agreement. The rates of pay, as well as the daily, monthly and yearly earnings of the miners and other mine workers in the anthracite field have been carefully tabulated by the operators and are matters of record, ascertainable by the Commission. All supporting data, compiled by the anthracite companies is open to the Commission. In addition, surveys of anthracite wages and earnings have been made by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and the National Industrial Conference Board. The results of these surveys are a matter of public record.*

IX. Wage Contracts.—This Committee will be pleased to supply your Commission with printed copies of all agreements with the anthracite mine workers since 1902, as well as decisions of the Board of Conciliation interpreting these agreements.

X. Irregular Production.—There is little irregularity of production in the anthracite industry, except such irregularity as may be occasioned by holidays, legal and otherwise, strikes or accidental stoppages. The number of colliery starts is perhaps the best index to the regularity of anthracite production, and the figures with regard to operations are available with respect to all companies.

XI and XII. Waste of Coal, and Suggestions as to the Remedy for the Same.—This subject might, in a larger sense, comprehend the whole problem of the production and utilization of fuel and the production and transmission of power. We assume, however, that the Commission is interested only in such waste of coal as may be under the control of the producers. We believe that the waste of coal in the mining of anthracite is negligible and not of sufficient moment to warrant investigation. Modern methods developed through engineering and technical skill in mining, reclamation and preparation have reduced waste to such an extent that the term "waste" no longer applies, except in such instances as are occasioned by burdensome legislation, notably the Kohler and Fowler mine cave acts recently enacted by the Pennsylvania Legislature, whereby otherwise available fuel has been rendered unavailable.

XIII. The Conditions, Generally, Under Which Coal is Produced.—Before making suggestions as to the method of investigating this topic, we should like to have the Commission's interpretation of this heading.

XIV. Distribution.—With respect to this question there is, we think, the opportunity for an investigation which will develop whether improvements and economies can be effected in the present methods of distribution. The distribution problem is not uniform in different localities and seasons, and the demand for the different sizes of coal varies. The investigation to be useful must be comprehensive.

XV. The Causes Which From Time to Time Induce Strikes, Thereby Depriving Interstate Carriers of Their Fuel Supply and Otherwise Interrupting the Flow of Interstate Commerce.—At a later date the operators will submit to the Commission a special memorandum upon this subject. While the immediate cause of general strikes is obviously a dispute between the employers and the employees as to rates of wages and conditions of employment, there are conditions especially affecting the anthracite industry, and differentiating it from the bituminous industry, of which the Commission should be fully advised.

In order that the labor problems which induce strikes may be considered on their respective merits, it is absolutely necessary that the anthracite industry be regarded as separate and autonomous, otherwise it will in the future, as it has in the past, become the victim of conditions and disputes with which it is in no way concerned.

XVI. All Facts, Circumstances or Conditions Which Would Be Deemed Helpful in Determining and Establishing a Wise and Efficient Policy by the Government Relative to Said Industry.—This subject has not, as yet, had the consideration which would warrant us in submitting our reply to you at this time.

XVII. Standardizing the Mines Upon the Basis of Their Economic Productive Capacity and Regarding the Closing Down of Mines Which by Reason of Their Natural Limitations, or Other Conditions, Fall Below the Standard.—As pointed out above, there are considerable differences between the costs of production in various anthracite operations. It should be said in this connection, however, that there is rarely in any one year a surplus of domestic anthracite, and that it is necessary not only to permit but, in emergencies such as at present exist, to encourage production by those operations which are relatively high cost.

XVIII. Ascertaining and Standardizing the Cost of Living for Mine Workers and the Living Conditions Which Must Be Supplied or Afforded in Order to Surround the Workmen with Reasonable Comforts and Standardizing Also as Far as Practicable the Amount of Work a Man Shall Perform for a Reasonable Wage, Recognizing the Value and Effect of Such Surroundings in Respect to Their Efficiency.—We are unconvinced of the wisdom of practicability of attempting to standardize the cost of living for individual workers, or of standardizing the amount of work they are to perform, since such standardization would necessarily ignore individual abilities and requirements. Human beings cannot be standardized.

Neither the wages of mine workers nor of any other groups of workers can be considered independently of other wages. At the present time mine workers are receiving a scale of wages far above that paid in other industries, with the result that the workers in these other industries are paying tribute to the mine workers. Continuation of such a condition cannot fail to have disastrous results upon the anthracite industry, and therefore upon those employed in it.

XIX.—Standardizing a Basis of Arriving at the Overhead Cost of Producing and Distributing the Coal, Including Delivery at the Door of the Consumer, Recognizing in This Compilation that the Standardized Cost of Living to the Miners Should Be the First and Irreducible Item of Expense.—Since this heading groups unrelated matters, we request more definite information from the Commission as to its wishes.

Additional Suggestions.—We understand that the law contemplates, in its investigation of the anthracite industry special and independent consideration of the relationships between the mine operators and the mine workers, thereby recognizing our conviction that the condition in the anthracite industry in this respect differ from the bituminous industry and call for separate treatment. The labor problem of the industry is one of the most important to be considered and especially so by reason of the serious loss and inconvenience to the public which has been caused by the cessation of mining during five months of the present year.

For 20 years prior to 1922 the producers of anthracite have dealt upon an established basis with their employees and the organization representing them, through the medium of conference and agreements. A Board of Conciliation, established by the Roosevelt Commission of 1902, has been continuously in existence, and has been exceedingly helpful in mediating grievances arising under the agreements.

We suggest that the Commission should ascertain the labor policy of the operators and should likewise ascertain the labor policy of the United Mine Workers with respect to the anthracite industry, including their fundamental aims, the methods pursued by them and the extent, if any, to which the policy of either is detrimental to the industry and therefore to the interest of the public.

It is earnestly hoped that the Commission's investigation of the labor problem shall be of such a searching character, and its final report and recommendations so definite and constructive, that a new agreement and policy may be reached by which a repetition of the cessation of mining may be avoided, with justice alike to the industry, to the mine workers and to the public.

The above summary reply to your inquiry will, we trust, be taken as an earnest of our desire to co-operate with the Commission to the fullest extent within our power. Some of the subjects to be investigated by the Commission are of such a character as to require lengthy study, and in connection with these matters, the Committee of Anthracite Operators will be pleased to hold itself at the command of the Commission at such time and in such manner as the Commission may desire.

Very respectfully,

(Signed)

The miners in their letter said:

Competition would itself eliminate the high cost mines, because they would be unable to compete in price for their product with those mines in which the cost of producing coal is lower. We believe this idea, properly applied and fairly carried out, would not only reduce the number of mines and the number of mines in this country, but it would also give the American public assurance of cheaper coal, because the coal would be produced by those mines whose output is produced at a low cost per ton.

In addition to keeping down the price of coal to the consumer, because it comes from low-cost mines, such competition would close many high-cost mines and thus conserve their resources for the future. We believe conservation of our coal resources is one of the most important propositions to which the American people should give their attention.

The mine workers expressed the belief that it would be unconstitutional for the Government to attempt to eliminate coal mines from operation by any sort of selective process. Improved transportation facilities were suggested as one of the practical means of encouraging competition. Railroads should be equipped with sufficient coal cars and locomotives to move coal from the mine to the consumer readily, and equitable freight rates should be provided. The miners said:

We do believe, however, and we recommend to this Commission that some means or method should be found to prevent the opening of any new mines in the United States, at least for a considerable period of time. There are too many mines in this country now. If the mines now in operation or that are ready for operation were run to their capacity, they would produce at least 40% more coal than is needed to meet all demands of domestic and export trade. There is no need for any more new mines. Because a set of men own a railroad is no good reason why, under such conditions as exist to-day in the industry, they should be permitted to open up a lot of new mines merely to supply business and revenue to their railroad. This is what happens continually, and it accounts for much of the dislocation and confusion that exists in the coal business.

Taking up living costs, the workers held that any effort to standardize the cost of living would fail because of the varying prices of commodities in different sections. They suggested that it was important for the Commission to ascertain the cost of living for mine workers and that this could best be done by the employment of women investigators, saying:

Let these investigators go directly to the miner and his wife and learn from them the actual facts about their cost of living. They are the ones who spend the money and they are the ones who know what it costs them to live. We do not believe the Commission should rely too heavily upon any showing that might be made by company stores as to the cost of living of mine workers.

Standardizing the amount of work a man should perform was held by the miners to be impracticable. In discussing organization and persons connected with the coal industry, the communication stressed absentee ownership and said:

We believe the cold-blooded commercialism involved in absentee ownership is such a serious evil in the coal industry that, if this Commission uncovers it and tells the public just how the selling price of coal is affected by it, the Commission will lay bare a factor that helps keep prices of coal to the consumer at a higher figure than would be the case under any other circumstances. The public wishes to know why it is required to pay outrageous prices for coal. We suggest that a study of absentee ownership will disclose one of the causes of this gouge.

The workers offered any information that the Commission might call for and asked that in return no association of coal operators be permitted to withhold anything from the Commission. They added:

It will be recalled that when on previous occasions Governmental agencies attempted to investigate certain phases of the coal business certain coal mining companies rushed off to a court and obtained injunctions preventing the Government from ascertaining the desired information. We do not know what these coal companies were so anxious to hide and keep from the Government and the public, but apparently they feared to have the light of publicity turned on their affairs. We suggest that this Commission be constantly on the lookout for any similar move on the part of any coal operator in the present instance.

BITUMINOUS MINERS AND OPERATORS CONFER ON BASIS FOR WAGE NEGOTIATIONS.

A joint conference of bituminous coal operators and miners' representatives in session at Chicago in an effort to arrive at some basis for conducting wage negotiations next January, without arriving at an agreement voted on Nov. 17 to adjourn until Dec. 6.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, and P. H. Penna of Terre Haute, Ind., an operator who acted as Chairman of the conference, issued the following joint statement when the meeting adjourned:

The joint commission of operators and miners has devoted itself diligently to the matters for which the convention was called. Some substantial progress has been made and there are grounds for believing that at a later date a definite program can be agreed upon by representatives of the operators and miners. In order to give additional consideration to the matter in hand the committee has unanimously agreed to take a recess until Wednesday, Dec. 6, when we will convene again in this city.

The conference, which had been in progress for four days, considered half a dozen suggestions for a basis for wage negotiations to be started in January. These included national agreements, district agreements, negotiations on the old central competitive field basis, and negotiations on the central competitive field plan with the addition of Western Kentucky, Central Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

U. S. RAILROAD LABOR BOARD RULES AGAINST CONTRACTING OUT WORK ON WESTERN MARYLAND RAILWAY.

Another decision on the question of "contracting out" by railroads of shop work was announced on Nov. 21 by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board, when the Board ruled against this practice on the Western Maryland Railway lines, upholding the contention of the shopmen, who were on strike. By finding for the shopmen and against the Western Maryland Railway, the Railroad Labor Board for the first time deviated from its previous decisions that employees by striking remove themselves from the jurisdiction of the Transporation Act. With respect to the ruling of the Railroad Labor Board, press dispatches from Chicago had the following to say:

The board construed the contracting out of shop work as an attempt to remove the employees from the application of the act and directed the carrier to take up reinstatement with the employees.

The Western Maryland shopmen struck on March 25 last, after the road had contracted out of shop work in Maryland, West Virginia and Peennsylvania, the contractors canceling working rules and rates of pay established by the Labor Board. The road held that the shopmen were not its employees but those of the contractors and that, by virtue of their strike, they had failed to comply with the rules and decisions of the Labor Board and had thus withdrawn from the Board's jurisdiction.

The Board's opinion stated that "these contracts were merely subterfuges by which the carrier arbitrarily changed the wages and working conditions o these employees without compliance with the provisions of the law" and that by taking steps to close its shops, transfer its employees to a new employer, remove them from the application of the Transportation act and obliterate their wage and rule agreements, their action "was equivalent to a lock-out."

PRESIDENT HARDING FAVORS AMENDMENT TO FEDERAL COAL COMMISSION ACT TO AID COMMISSION IN OBTAINING DATA.

President Harding recommended on Nov. 23 at a conference in the White House that the Federal Coal Commission Act be amended at the earliest possible date to aid the Commission in its work. He called Senator Borah and Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, authors of the bill, into a conference and urged that steps be taken in Congress to provide drastic penalties so as to compel interested parties to furnish such information as is required in the inquiry into the coal industry. A second change would permit persons to submit written instead of oral testimony when, in the opinion of the Commission, such information is needed. The President strongly urged, it is said, that Congress make it possible for Judge Alschuler, Illinois, to retain his Federal Judgeship and serve on the Coal Fact Finding Commission at the same time.

AGREEMENTS REACHED BY COLLECTIVE BARGAINING MUST BE ADHERED TO, UNITED STATES RAILROAD LABOR BOARD RULES.

Agreements reached by collective bargaining between union leaders and railroad executives must be carried out by both parties, the United States Railroad Labor Board ruled in a decision handed down on Nov. 24 at Chicago. In two decisions, of far reaching effect, the Board demanded that both roads and workers live up to agreements made by their representatives. The Board decided that the shops of the New York Central at Elkhart, Ind., must remain on a piece-work basis. With regard to the decision of the Board press dispatches said:

Officers of the Railway Carmen of America, in conference recently with officials of the New York Central, agreed that a vote should be taken among the men in the Elkhart shops on the question whether they should be paid by the day or by the piece. The vote favored piece work.

Other union leaders complained and took their case to the Railroad Labor Board. They said the carmen's officers had no right to agree to abide by the decision of the vote.

The majority opinion of the Board was that the union officers were the chosen representatives of the men and were put forth by the organization for the purpose of making contracts and handling negotiations, and they would have to be complied with.

Two labor members of the Board—A. O. Wharton and Albert Phillips—dissented from the opinion of the majority in the Elkhart case.

The second decision, in a comparatively minor case, was against the railroads, but upheld the same principle, that agreements reached by collective bargaining must be followed out.

The Great Northern Railroad had reached an agreement with heads of the telegraphers' union that the men should work from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. with an hour for lunch. John Poelfsema, in charge of a small station for the road, was required to work from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m., the union complained, in order that the railroad might escape paying him one hour's overtime. The Board ordered that whenever he was forced to work hours other than those provided for by the agreement, he must be paid overtime after 6 p. m.

BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY CLERKS, FREIGHT HANDLERS AND STATION EMPLOYEES ASK 20% WAGE INCREASE.

E. D. Fitzgerald, President of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, appeared before the U. S. Railroad Labor Board at Chicago on Nov. 23 in support of an application for an increase in wages on forty-one railroads, affecting 271,000 men. He based his argument on the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics which placed the minimum for a family of five at $1,956 88 a year, whereas now "the average yearly wages of the three classes of railway clerks is $1,397 76." The increase of approximately 20% granted in 1920 virtually has been wiped out by the reductions of July 1921 and July 1922, he argued. He charged the railroad managements with concealing a large part of their earnings.

PRESIDENT PEARSON OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD GIVES REASON FOR RECENT EMBARGO—PROMPT UNLOADING OF CARS A NECESSITY.

President E. J. Pearson of the New York New Haven & Hartford Railroad on Nov. 21 issued the following statement for the information of the public served by the New Haven System:

On June 30, immediately prior to the shopmen's strike, the general condition of locomotives, as indicated by the larger number of engines in good condition which were stored in white lead for service, the smaller number in and awaiting shops, and the character of the service by those in use, was more favorable than for the preceding period of several years.

On July 1 the withdrawal of forces from the locomotive shops and engine terminals was complete. The gradual filling of the ranks occupied about three months. The period of recruiting was one of exceeding operating difficulty. The load was carried largely by the supervisory staff. There was not only an undue burden of work devolving upon the limited forces, but the situation was still further aggravated, and seriously, by intimidation and sabotage. During the time, however, normal service was rendered, that is, it did not become necessary to withdraw trains or restrict the handling of freight, and all trains were run. At that time, however, and also at present, the service was not normal as to the character of performance, delays, &c. The patience and assistance of the public during this trying period was invaluable to those who were doing their utmost under these difficulties.

With the completion of this period the condition of power was worn down much below the standard, both as to the number of engines out of service for heavy repairs and the increasingly worn condition of those in service. With the change in conditions about this time it became possible to increase the amount of work that could be arranged for in outside shops, which was immediately arranged

The qualifications now being displayed by the new forces are excellent. They are well handling not only the present current requirements but in addition are assisting in overcoming the very large amount of maintenance that necessarily fell behind during the first few months. In addition, and for the purpose of recovering not only the former condition of power but of reaching a still better standard essential for the high character of service it is the purpose of the management to afford, contracts are in effect with twelve outside shops which are now working on the entire re-conditioning of 56 locomotives, and on boilers of 44 additional locomotives. Through this program for all outside assistance that is practicable, the best possible rate of progress will be brought about in fully recovering from the aftermath of the strike, and the overcoming of continuing causes for unsatisfactory service, which are of keen regrest to the officers of the road and of irritation to its patrons, whose further good will and patience must be asked.

Occasional statements on the part of former employees relating to failures in service undertake to reflect on the competency of the present forces. Such reflections, however, are far from the fact. The present forces and supervisory staff have demonstrated their competency during the active months of the strike in keeping the service moving and avoiding the necessity of withdrawing trains. The requirements of safety are carefully observed. Engine failures increase when their general condition is worn down and they are without that higher degree of maintenance which affords the factor of safety against breakdowns and delays. Those who went on strike brought this condition about. It can only be remedied by the performance and as quickly as practicable of the unduly large amount of repair work that has accrued. In the interest of the public which is entitled to the best service that can be operated, the expense is being undertaken without delay, and full outside aid utilized.

For the handling of the very heavy football travel of Saturday the 25th, the heavy passenger travel around Thanksgiving, and against the possibility of early and severe winter adversity, some 75 locomotives are now receiving special shop attention. After Thanksgiving they will drop back into regular passenger and freight service. Three hundred sixty-nine added passenger-carrying cars will be used for football and Thanksgiving travel. The partial embargo of Oct. 31 does not affect coal and other important commodities which are moving in large volume. The management has undertaken heretofore to bring the capacity of the property to a point where it would carry peak requirements in excess of previous periods of heavy traffic, and to fully meet the needs of patrons at all times. The fact that this has been practically accomplished is evidenced by the cars that have been promptly taken from connections, the avoidance of undue congestion at most of the unloading destinations, and the ability of classification yards to operate more rapidly than road movement. Delays commenced to occur and cars increased because of the amount of power temporarily out of service. Nevertheless, the better facilities even with the limited power have enabled a movement substantially equivalent to that of former periods of heavy traffic.

The car situation preceding and subsequent to the partial embargo is indicated by the following from the weekly records commencing in March. The increases commenced in September:

|---|---|---|---|
| Mar. 4 1922 | 44,124 | 8,570 | 4,033 |
| Aug. 5 1922 | 43,589 | 8,157 | 4,076 |
| Sept. 2 1922 | 44,899 | 7,948 | 4,158 |
| Oct. 7 1922 | 49,646 | 9,687 | 4,583 |

That no other course than the partial embargo was practicable is shown by the continuing increases subsequently notwithstanding the embargo. As of Nov. 11 cars on the line averaged 32% in excess of the average during the six preceding months. Cars placed at destination increased 24%. The average cars unloaded increased but 15%. The high mark was on Nov. 7, with 58,066 cars on line. On Nov. 15 this was reduced to 56,970, and is diminishing daily. The real solution of the situation is in the number of cars unloaded daily. The endeavors of consignees and the improvement in this regard is a matter of appreciation and is a feature in which it is hoped, in view of the large number at destination, there will be a still further increase.

Since the placing of the embargo, 1,916 permits covering 3,054 cars have been issued, the majority originating in the South and West. The necessity for again using the permit system is regretted, but pending the disposition and release of the large number of loads on the line and the heavy run still reported enroute, it is hoped that requests for permits will not be made except for the more pressing necessities which it is the purpose to protect to the end that actual requirements, temporarily on a minimum basis, are safeguarded.

It is the purpose to continue, as the road is financially able, to add improvements and power fully consistent with the demand of traffic, and to use every practicable aid in recovering the condition of power as rapidly as possible, and in reinstating the character of service which will be in conformity with the needs of the public.

WM.H. BARR, OF NATIONAL FOUNDERS' ASSOCIATION PROPOSES INQUIRY BY CONGRESS INTO TRADE UNIONS.

According to William H. Barr, President of the National Founders' Association, "the time has arrived when Congress should determine what value, if any, the trade unions are to the public." Mr. Barr's suggestion, embodying a number of questions for the consideration of Congress, was contained in his report to the Association at its twenty-sixth annual convention held at the Hotel Astor, this city, on Nov. 22 and 23. Treating of the labor problem and the open shop issue, Mr. Barr said in part:

We have passed through a year of industrial readjustment and conflict, the upward progress of which is complicated; not only by social chaos throughout the world, but also by two national utility calamities involving public deprivation, heavy financial losses and violent death.

And while the establishment of open shop conditions on the railroads and in the coal mines were not wholly successful, nevertheless, substantial improvement in operating conditions was made. Great credit is due to many executives and mine operators for their fearlessness in refusing, under heavy pressure, to waver from the path of conscientious public duty.

In discussions relative thereto, I frequently hear various expressions from employers concerning fundamental rights granted them under the Constitution, but which under the operation of practical politics in the United States, are very often curtailed, and, in some cases, eliminated. This is partly due to the fact that another organization with an excellent publicity staff makes a greater impression than the actual facts presented to, or the oath of office taken by, the public servant. It is not surprising, therefore, that from time to time privileges are granted to special classes, which coincidentally become a limitation of the rights of others.

But there is no reason why a manufacturer should feel that he must subordinate himself to the demands of other groups. Neither should he regard his Representative in Congress or in the State Legislature as being less interested in him than of another; but the fact remains, that, due to his own inexcusable indifference to ordinary courtesy, the employer often has unnecessary penalties imposed on him.

But although laboring under many legislative handicaps we must never forget that the manufacturer has definite duties and responsibilities—not less paramount than his rights—and must arrange his relations with his employees according to the highest standards of integrity and humanity.

The modern employer who takes the point of view that his wokrers are chattels is not entitled to inclusion in an association of intelligent employers; nor has he a place in any community of good citizenship. It is true that, to-day, there are few unintelligent employers who seek to exploit their workers; but these should be eliminated, and thereby would be destroyed the antagonism which still exists, to some degree, in the public mind against employers generally.

There can be no set rule for prescribing the duties of an employer, but, above all, he must recognize that the treatment of employees should inspire that desire for individual accomplishment, that pride in the job, which the labor unions have almost completely destroyed.

No Definite Solution of the Labor Problem.

There is no definite solution of the labor problem, for human desire will always reach out for changed, if not always improved, conditions, as it is the natural desire of every man to make his path through life, and that of his family, apparently easier.

Therefore, we should so regulate our conduct towards our workers that we will furnish an object lesson in common honesty and in good citizenship. The man who treats his workers properly will receive a fair day's work for a fair day's pay; he will be better understood as their friend, and will at once make a sharp contrast with the union labor agitator who never is a real friend of any but himself.

An employer must not make a mental reservation that he will give only what he thinks he must, for that is merely applied dishonesty. He must understand that whatever is done for the comfort, the health, and the better living of his employees, is just as truly being done for his country and himself. The employer who is negligent in the protection of his own rights and indignant when they are violated, is usually the one who is also inattentive to his worker's just needs, but not at all dissatisfied with himself should they resent his neglect.

The National Founders' Association is militant for the rights of employers, but it is equally insistent or the rights of those independent moulders, coremakers and helpers who, after all, are the backbone of our industry. We know that to-day many members will testify to the conscientious effort of their employees, and we can in turn submit that this friendly spirit is greatly inspired by the rightful attitude of the members of this Association.

Ten years or more ago there were many who credited the National Founders' Association with having radical tendencies. To thinking men, however, it was as clear then as it is to-day that we were merely the advance guard of the present tremendous national open shop movement, which has indeed advanced beyond what was once termed "our radicalism," and we are with difficulty viewing the coat tails of those who, a few years ago, were regarded as conservative and who viewed our attitude askance. Many men who are to-day in the forefront of the open shop movement then knew nothing of its principles, and cared less. To-day they are expressing great wonder because so comparatively few people yet realize that even justice of open shop principles as applied to the treatment of unions. It is now clearly evident to these gentlemen that if we do not defend certain economic and fundamental manufacturing principles, that these rights will be appropriated by others as privileges for themselves.

Investigation of Labor Unions.

During the past few years our railways, public service and other corporations have been repeatedly attacked, investigated and restricted by over-energetic politicians. Many industries are, as a result, so closely supervised by either State or Federal commissions that industrial life has become a burden and the earning of a reasonable profit for the stockholders almost an impossibility.

In this connection does it ever occur to you that there is little discussion of any dependable, unbiased investigation of the trade unions? Perhaps because it has not been politically desirable to do so. But the time has arrived when Congress should determine what value, if any, the trade unions are to the public;

What values they are to the members;

Who are the chief beneficiaries of unionism, and show by comparision the average financial standing of the union worker in a given district as compared with the free American Plan worker.

Why are all unions controlled commodities more expensive, and to what extent has restriction of output contributed to the increased cost of living?

Congress might also determine what rules of efficiency, if any, governmembership in the trade union.

Why is the training of apprentices limited, and the resulting trade education of our American boys stifled?

How are strike votes taken. and what is the average percentage of the membership voting?

Who counts the votes, and where?

What is the total income of the International unions in America for the last year?

How is it spent?

What percentage goes for salaries of officers and agitators, and what per centage actually returns in the form of benefits to the members?

Why is one.man permitted to determine why fifty or one hundred thousand mechanics willing to work under fair conditions may not do so?

Why are the public utility unions directed by a few men permitted with startling regularity to secure a strangle hold on the prosperity and comfort of our people?

Why is the incorporation of unions and correlative financial responsibility not made compulsory?

Why is it that when the railroad brotherheods elected that the word "violence" be included in a given contract, that "assault and battery" is not regarded by.them as a form of violence?

Why is it that the murder of sixty men by union members and sympathizers in the State of Illinois evokes no voice of protest, and no question as to why the murders were committed?

Why should the unions not clearly define their opposition to every form of public police protection?

Why union members are required under oath to place their union sympathies above their obligations as citizens.

There are many other questions which, if correctly answered, will illuminate an obscure condition which has become a national menace.

How many of our citizens understand that the total union income per annum is approximately one hundred million dollars? How many know that, in 1921, the bituminous miners alone collected seventeen million dollars in dues, most of it provided for them by the operators through the check-off system? Has that one hundred million dollar fund been used to promote the prosperity of the union or any other workers? to restore the industrial normality of the country? to stimulate the betterment of working conditions? or has it been used to promote the personal interests and advancement of union leaders and their associates?

For there is no relationship between the fundamental principles of the Constitution and the working principles of unionism. The latter is directed and controlled by only a smaller portion of a small class. Should they continue unchecked, personal freedom would be threatened and the Declaration of Independence woudl be relegated to the archives.

If confirmation of this statement is needed, note well the attacks on the Supreme Court of the United States; the attempts to change and limit its power by constitutional amendment; the effort to control Congress and the State Legislatures; the imposition of certain restrictive legislation of all except the unions, and the partial success of the unions in absolving themselves from certain laws.

We need a complete exposure of the intent of this privileged class. We must know what the spirit is which animates it, and the people must understand that what they tolerate to-day may, to-morrow, be a force for the disruption of our national institutions.

True Meaning of the Open Shop.

The American Federation of Labor imagines that a conspiracy against its existence has been developed among the large proportion of the American people who approve of the open shop. These plots are detailed from time to time in public utterances of Unionist leaders, and nothing but an overtaxed imagination could conceive of the minute details thus given. For there is no plot against the unions except in the minds of those who have for years conspired against industry, and who have utilized the machinery of the unions and the subordination of their members in order to promote these activities.

The open shop is a vivid expression of the determination of the American people to compel in industry the same general rights, privileges and freedom which the people enjoy under our form of government. For unionism, as practiced, is a nullification of the Constitution. It is a form of slavery thinly disguised, yet not always fully recognized by the members of the unions. The open shop, on the contrary, recognizes the responsibility of the citizen and his right to work, as well as his desire to give and receive equitable treatment. It eliminates brutal control of the worker. It emphasizes him as an individual. It permits the fullest recognition of his ambition. It helps him to capitalize his intelligence and his energies. It justifies him in recognizing in his employer an associate in the work that is being done, and above all, it maintains the self-respect of both. It eliminates trickery and sabotage. It puts every man squarely on his own feet, to do his own work and meet his own problems.

The failure of unionism is not so much in its forgotten principles, but in its practice; not wholly in its inspiration, but in its leadership; not altogether in the protective policy it enunciates, but in the destructive policy it follows. There should be only expressions of sympathy for the men who have sold themselves into unionism for the benefit of that protection which is so completely lacking. We commiserate with those members who permit subordination of all that is fine in human instincts to the will of men who are not fit to lead.

Discussing immigration and the labor shortage, Mr. Barr said:

I venture to predict that a period of genuine prosperity during the coming year will be limited and checked by an unskilled labor shortage, a situation which is due largely to the workings of the present immigration law. It seems to be impossible, however, to convince our lawmakers of this fact. There were certain social conditions which, two years ago, made it desirable to restrict immigration, but instead of enforcing the then existing law which amply protected us, or putting into effect a selective system effective at the point of embarkation, we adopted the present unintelligent method of a three per cent quota under which the lucky ones traveling in the first ship to arrive are sure of admission, while the competent and effective immigrant coming in a little later may be turned back. We also have so-called literacy tests, the intent of which is to deprive us of the unskilled labor which represents in a large degree the honest, hard working, conscientious immigrant. He is shut out, for absurd reasons, although we need him most, and in a few years he would make one of our most desirable citizens.

As a nation, what are we to do about this immigration question? Is our policy to be dictated by our labor unions? Why turn away the industrial immigrant that we need and admit those educated but undesirable disturbers who are inimical to our peaceful pursuits? For every three immigrants who come to our shore, approximately one and a half leave, and it is the opinion of those who study the arrivals and departures that those going out are a much higher average type. Day by day, therefore, the labor situation becomes more serious even before we have advanced into any position of material prosperity. Cannot this problem of immigration be solved by facilitating the development of the country, rather than by conceding the restrictive and destructive point of view? It is a question for this Administration and we urge immediate relief.

INCOME TAX—FARMERS NOT REQUIRED TO KEEP BOOKS OF RECORD.

A ruling of the Treasury Department exempting farmers from the requirement of keeping permanent books of accounts or records for the purpose of recording income tax information was announced as follows on the 2nd inst. by the Department:

(T. D. 3408.)

To Collectors of Internal Revenue and Others Concerned:

Every taxpayer carrying on the business of producing, manufacturing, purchasing, or selling any commodities or merchandise, except the business of growing and selling products of the soil, shall for the purpose of determining the amount of income under the Revenue Act of 1921, keep such permanent books of account or records, including inventories, as are necessary to establish the amount of gross income and deductions, credits and other information required by an income tax return (Sec. 1300 and 1303). of the Revenue Act of 1921). The taxpayer shall produce such books of accounts or records for the inspection of revenue officers duly authorized by law to inspect the same, at such time and in the manner provided by law. (Secs. 253 and 1308 of the Revenue Act of 1921.)

D. H. BLAIR,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Approved November 2 1922:
A. W. MELLON, Secretary of the Treasury.

H. Ely Goldsmith, an income tax expert, in commenting on the decision on the 10th inst., was reported in the New York "Times" as stating:

The Treasury decision is a sound exercise of the power vested in the Commissioner to make rules and regulations to carry out the intent of the Revenue Act, except that there is no provision in the law which authorizes the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to except the farmer. Other business men are put to a distinct and unwarranted disadvantage by the regulation which allows the farmer to escape investigation of his tax liability while the manufacturer and other business men are kept to a strict accountability.

INCOME TAX—INVENTORIES OF LIVE STOCK RAISERS AND OTHER FARMERS.

Regulations whereby farmers and live stock raisers may change the basis of their returns from that of receipts and disbursements to that of an inventory basis, were announced as follows by the Treasury Department at Washington on Oct. 7:

INCOME TAX—INVENTORIES OF LIVE-STOCK RAISERS AND OTHER FARMERS.

Articles 1586 of Regulations No. 45 (1920 edition) and Regulations No. 62 amended—T. D. 3296 of March 3 1922, modified.

Washington, D. C.

To Collectors of Internal Revenue and Others Concerned:

Article 1586 of Regulations No. 45 (1920 edition) and Article 1586 of Regulations No. 62 are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Art. 1586. Inventories of live-stock raisers and other farmers.—(1) Farmers may change the basis of their returns from that of receipts and disbursements to that of an inventory basis provided adjustments are made in accordance with one of the two methods outlined in (A) and (B) below. It is optional with the taxpayer which method is used, but having elected one method the option so exercised will be binding upon the taxpayer and he will be precluded from filing amended returns upon the basis of the other method.

(A) Opening and closing inventories shall be used for the year in which the change is made. There should be included in the opening inventory all farm products (including live-stock) purchased or raised which were on hand at the date of the inventory and there must he submitted with the return for the current taxable year an adjustment sheet for the preceding taxable year based on the inventory method, upon the amount of which adjustment the tax shall be assessed and paid (if any be due) at the rate of tax in effect for that year. Ordinarily an adjustment sheet for the preceding year will be sufficient but if, in the opinion of the Commissioner, such adjustment is not sufficient to clearly reflect income, adjustments for earlier years may be accepted or required. Where it is impossible to render complete inventories for the preceding year or years, the Department will accept estimates which, in its opinion, substantially reflect the imcome on the inventory basis for such preceding year or years; but inventories must not include real estate, buildings, permanent improvements, or any other assets subject to depreciation.

"(B) No adjustment sheets will be required, but the net income for the taxable year in which the change is made must be computed without deducting from the sum of the closing inventory and the sales and other receipts, the inventory of live-stock, crops, and products at the beginning of the year; provided, however,

"(a) That if any live stock, grain, or other property on hand at the beginning of the taxable year has been purchased and the cost thereof not charged to expense, only the difference between the cost and the selling price should be reported as income for the year in which sold;

"(b) But if the cost of such property has been charged to expense for a previous year, the entire amount received must be reported as income for the year in which sold.

"(2) Because of the difficulty of ascertaining actual cost of live stock and other farm products, farmers who render their returns upon an inventory basis may at their option value their inventories for the current taxable year according to the 'farm-price' method,' which provides for the valuation of inventories at market price less cost of marketing. If the use of the 'farm-price method' of valuing inventories for any taxable year involves a change in method of pricing inventories from that employed in prior years, the opening inventory for the taxable year in which the charge is made should be brought in at the same value as the closing inventory for the preceding taxable year. If such valuation of the opening inventory for the taxable year in which the change is made results in an abnormally large income for that year, there may be submitted with the return for such taxable year an adjustment statement for the preceding year based on the 'farm-price method' of valuing inventories, upon the amount of which adjustments the tax, if any be due, shall be assessed and paid at the rate of tax in effect for such preceding year. If an adjustment for the preceding year is not, in the opinion of the Commissioner, sufficient to clearly reflect income, adjustment sheets for prior years may be accepted or required.

"Where returns have been made in which the taxable net income has been computed upon incomplete inventories, the abnormality should be corrected by submitting with the return for the current taxable year a statement for the preceding year in which such adjustments shall be made as are necessary to bring the closing inventory for the preceding year into agreement with the opening complete inventory for the current taxable year. If necessary to clearly reflect income, similar adjustments may be made as at the beginning of the preceding year or years and the tax, if any be due, shall be assessed at the rate of tax in effect for such year or years."

T. D. 3296 is hereby superseded in so far as it is inconsistent with the provisions of this Treasury decision.

D. H. BLAIR, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Approved Oct. 7 1922:
A. W. MELLON, Secretary of the Treasury.

INTEREST ON FOREIGN BONDS PLACED IN THIS COUNTRY NOT SUBJECT TO INCOME TAX WHEN HELD BY NON-RESIDENT ALIENS.

As a result of cable inquiries from European correspondents of banking institutions and investment houses in this country, as to the intention of the Treasury Department to interpret the regulations relative to the income tax as calling for the withholding of tax on interest on bonds of foreign countries and foreign corporations placed in this country, when owned by non-resident aliens, the Committee on Taxation of the Investment Bankers Association of America has been in communication with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue regarding the matter. with the result that the Commissioner has denied that there is any intention on the part of the Department to so interpret the regulations, and he holds that the interest received by a non-resident alien upon obligations of foreign Governments or foreign corporations not doing business in the United States, is not income received from sources in the United States even though the bonds are held in the United States and interest upon them is remitted to the non-resident alien.

ITEMS ABOUT BANKS, TRUST COMPANIES, ETC.

Reports from London on Nov. 20 to the effect that J. P. Morgan was indisposed at his home at Watford, a suburb of London, were followed on the 21st by a press cablegram stating that he was on that day at the office of Morgan, Grenfell & Co., and that he had been suffering only from a slight cold.

N. D. Jay, of Morgan, Harjes & Co., of Paris, is in New York. He will make his headquarters at the offfice of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The stockholders of the Corn Exchange Bank of this city ratified on Nov. 23 the proposal to increase the capital from $8,250,000 to $9,075,000. Reference to the plan to increase the capital appeared in our Nov. 4 issue, page 2014. As stated therein, the new stock will be offered to shareholders of record Dec. 9 1922 at $100 per share, the subscription privilege being at the rate of 10% of their holdings at the time. Subscriptions to the increase of the stock are required to be deposited with the bank and to be paid for on or before Jan. 3 1923.

At the regular weekly meeting of the board of directors of the National City Bank on Tuesday, James A. Jackson, formerly an Assistant Vice-President of the National City Bank of New York, was elected a Vice-President. Mr. Jackson came to the City Bank in 1917, starting as a representative, with headquarters in Kansas City, and covering the Southwestern territory. In 1918 he was made an Assistant Cashier, in 1920 he was brought to the head office in New York, and in 1921 was made an Assistant Vice-President. From 1910 to 1914 he was associated with the Gate City National Bank of Kansas City, and from 1915 to 1917 with one of the oldest firms in the farm mortgage business, with headquarters in Fort Worth, Tex. Mr. Jackson has an extensive acquaintance throughout the Southwest, especially in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. His father, up to the time of his death several years ago, was the leading banker in Troy, Mo.

The new uptown office of the Bank of New York & Trust Co., at East 63rd Street and Madison Avenue, was opened on Monday, Nov. 20. The banking office has been at 48 Wall Street since 1797, and its trust office at 52 Wall Street since 1830. Ernest H. Cook, Vice-President and Manager, is in charge of the new uptown office. Ralph M. Johnson is Assistant Manager, and Owen H. Smith, Assistant Secretary. Mr. Cook has been engaged in the banking business in the uptown district for more than 30 years. The trust company now has three offices, at 48 Wall Street, at 52 Wall Street, and Madison Avenue at 63rd Street. The new office is housed in an attractive new building of Colonial type architecture, in red brick and white marble, resembling a home or a club. Particular provision has been made for the comfort and convenience of women patrons of the institution. Modern and improved safe deposit vaults have been installed which will be operated by the Parish Safe Deposit Co., the latter corporation being owned and controlled by the Bank of New York & Trust Co. The latest statement of the Bank of New York & Trust Co., of which Edwin G. Merrill is President, shows capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $15,000,000, and aggregate deposits in excess of $75,000,000.

The condensed statement or condition of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York as of Nov. 15 1922, issued Nov. 24, shows deposits of $466,217,734 39 and total resources of $571,109,957 23. Surplus and undivided profits total $17,654,620 14.

Substantial increases in trust company resources, both for the State and the country, are shown by "Trust Companies of the United States," the annual publication of the United States Mortgage & Trust Co. of New York, just issued for 1922. The figures are of exceptional interest in that 1922 marks the 100th year of trust company service in the United States. The total resources for the year ending June 30 were $12,739,620,733, against $12,323,430,513 last year, and aggregate deposits for the first time exceeded $10,000,000,000. New York State reported a total of $3,556,356,518, or a gain of over $227,000,000. The States showing the largest gains for the year are, in order: New York, $227,757,000; Illinois, $109,000,000; California, $77,292,000; New Jersey, $53,331,000; Maryland, $34,222,000; Massachusetts, $33,214,000; Rhode Island, $15,257,000; Virginia, $15,254,000. The North Atlantic and North Central States showed the largest sectional gains. President John W. Platten of the United States Mortgage & Trust Co., in commenting on the year's progress, says:

> This, the twentieth annual edition of "Trust Companies of the United States," is published during the centennial year of trust company activities in this country, the first grant of fiduciary powers to a corporation having been made in 1822.
> The position of the trust companies, considered in the light of their development since that time, gives every promise that their influence will continue in increasing degree during the new century.
> Trust company resources in the United States for the year ending June 30 1922 were $12,739,620,733, thus establishing a new high record and effectually offsetting the loss shown in 1921 compared with 1920. The total exceeds that of last year by over $416,000,000 and is greater by $287,743,000 than the previous high mark of 1920.

We take occasion to report what we have stated in previous references to this yearly publication, that it is not limited to trust companies per se, but embodies statistics of all companies with the word "trust" in their titles, actively engaged in business in the United States and territories, coming under the jurisdiction of the State Banking Commissioner, Auditor, &c., and doing either a trust or banking business or both and those banks, banking associations or institutions acting in a fiduciary capacity without the word "trust" in their titles, but supervised as above and commonly classed as trust companies by the State officials to whom they are amenable.

Edmund D. Fisher, Chairman of the organization committee, made public on Nov. 20 for the first time the personnel of the board of directors of the new Hamilton National Bank of this city and affiliated companies, which is expected to open for business the latter part of next month in the Bush Terminal Building on Forty-second Street. The tentative list of directors follows:

Henry J. Davenport—President, Home Title Insurance Co.; Vice-President, Midwood Trust Co.; Trustee, Flatbush Savings Bank.

Edmund D. Fisher, President—Vice-President and Manager, Bank of Detroit, 1918-21; Deputy Comptroller (Finance), City of New York, 1910-18; Secretary and Manager, Flatbush Trust Co., 1900-10; member, Preliminary Organization Committee Federal Reserve Banks, 1914.

Leonard A. Hockstader, of L. F. Rothschild & Co.

John Markle—President, Jeddo-Highland Coal Co.; President, Industrial Finance Corporation.

Charles Miner—Vice-President, Benjamin, Hastings & Miner, Inc.

Homer W. Orvis, of Orvis Brothers & Co.

Frederick W. Prentice—Treasurer, H. L. Judd Co.; member, Advisory Board Shoe & Leather Branch, Chase National Bank.

Elmer A. Sperry—President, the Sperry Gyroscope Co.; Trustee, The Engineering Foundation; member, Naval Consulting Board.

Frank D. Waller—Vice-President, John Firth & Co., Inc.

Archibald R. Watson—President, Balbach Smelting & Refining Co.

L. E. Williams, Vice-President and Cashier—With Lee, Higginson & Co.; New York, 1920-22; Major, Motor Transport Corps, A.E.F., 1917-20; Cashier, St. Louis Union Bank, 1892-1917.

H. Parker Willis—First Secretary, Federal Reserve Board; Editor, New York "Journal of Commerce."

The officers of the new bank as at present constituted are Edmund D. Fisher, President; Lewis E. Williams, Vice-President and Cashier, and Stanley J. Lathrop, Assistant Cashier. Mr. Fisher, who is to head the new bank, gained his initial banking experience with the Brooklyn Trust Co., and he successively managed the Flatbush Trust Co. and the Bank of Detroit. He served the City of New York as Deputy Comptroller in charge of financing from 1910 to 1918 and as Chairman of the Commission on Standardization. Mr. Fisher is known in the banking world as a member of the Council of Administration of the New York State Bankers' Association and as Chairman of its Legislative Committee during the period of banking reform in this State. He was appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury as a member of the organization committee that laid out the physical plan of the Federal Reserve Banks while a member of the Currency Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce. He was recently appointed a member of the Paraguay Group, Inter-American High Commission. Mr. Williams, who is to be Vice-President of the bank, was with the Commercial National Bank of Detroit and later was Cashier of the St. Louis Union Bank, now the First National Bank. He has latterly been with Lee, Higginson & Co. Mr. Lathrop, the Assistant Cashier, has had both a business and banking experience, the latter being particularly with Wells, Fargo & Co. and the National City Bank of New York. The women's department will be in charge of Miss Anne Seward, recently in the Paris office of the Park Union Corporation and formerly with the Bankers Trust Co. and the Federal Reserve Board.

The affiliated companies are the New York Hamilton Corporation and the Hamilton Safe Deposit Co. The bank, the corporation which will handle the security end of the business, and the Safe Deposit Co. will be located in quarters which are now being prepared in the Bush Terminal Building on Forty-second Street, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway. Mr. Fisher states that the bank will be opened for business as soon as the alterations have been completed and the fixtures installed, which will probably be some time the latter part of next month. The Hamilton National Bank will have a capital of $1,000,000 and surplus of $500,000. The Hamilton Corporation has an authorized capital of $200,000 divided in 10,000 shares (no par value). Each subscriber to a share of the stock of the Hamilton National Bank is entitled to one share of the stock of the Corporation and to a share of stock of the Hamilton Safe Deposit Co. which is to have a capital of $100,000, the shares of which will have a par value of $10 each. As to the plan of subscription, a pamphlet regarding the new corporation's says:

Plan of Subscription.

It is inherent in the general plan of the relation between the bank, the corporation and the safe deposit company that the stock of all should be retained as a unit and subscriptions made and transfers effected with this principle in mind. The subscription price of the stock of the corporation is $20—that of the safe deposit company $10—that of the bank $150, making $180 for the unit of 3 shares. The Allotment Committee must necessarily consider the value of a broad distribution of stock. Such a policy develops more depositors and gives the bank a wider influence. Right is therefore reserved to allot a lesser number of shares than the amount subscribed. The method of payment for these shares as illustrated by a single subscription of $180 for one unit follows:

| Payments— | Unit. | Amount. |
| When making subscription | 5% of $180 | $9 |
| When called by Board of Organization | 25% " " | 45 |
| Monthly thereafter | 10% " " | 18 |
| " " | 10% " " | 18 |

The proceeds of the initial payment will be applied to the capital of the New York Hamilton Corporation, which can thus immediately function, engage quarters and assist as may be necessary in the preliminary organization of its associate corporations. In the second and subsequent payments preference will be given to the capital of the bank, which can commence business when 50% of its capital or $500,000 is paid in.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Mutual Bank of this city will be held on Dec. 12 to act on the proposal to increase the Capital from $200,000 to $500,000 through the declaration of a stock dividend. The following notice has been issued in the matter by President Charles A. Sackett:

THE MUTUAL BANK.
49 West 33rd Street,
New York, N. Y.

November 23, 1922.

To the Stockholders of the Mutual Bank:

The present capital of the Bank is $200,000 its surplus $600,000, and its undivided profits approximately $300,000. At a meeting of the Board held on Nov. 23 1922, your directors recommended that the capital be increased from $200,000 to $500,000 and that immediately after such increase of Capital stock becomes effective, the additional shares be distributed as a stock dividend to stockholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 11 1922. Each stockholder of record will thus receive an amount of new stock equal to 150% of his present holdings.

After the payment of the proposed stock dividend, the Bank will have a capital of $500,000, a surplus of $400,000 and undivided profits of approximately $200,000.

A special meeting of the stockholders has been called to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 12 1922 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to consider the recommendations of the Board. Such of you as do not expect to attend the meeting are requested to sign the proxy sent herewith and return it promptly in the stamped and addressed envelope enclosed for the purpose.

Animated as he was by the highest ideals, his character was one of outstanding integrity combined with personal qualities which deeply endeared him to all of his friends and associates.

In paying this tribute to our late director we extend heartfelt sympathy to his family in the severe bereavement they have been called upon to bear, and direct that this minute be placed upon the records of the company and a copy of the same forwarded to Mr. Cuyler's family.

Following a run on the Security State Bank of Fort Worth, Tex., on Thursday morning, Nov. 9, the institution was ordered closed by T. P. Priddle, Deputy State Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, according to a special dispatch from Fort Worth to the Dallas "News" on that date. Later in the day, it is said Mr. Priddle issued the following statement:

Due to a run on the bank this morning which reached rather large proportions, it was necessary for the Banking Department to take charge of the affairs of the Security State Bank of Fort Worth. This run had been to some extent expected and banking officials and the Fort Worth Clearing House Association were working with representatives of the Banking Department trying to formulate definite plans either for continuation of the institution or to have some good strong Fort Worth bank take it over.

On account of the withdrawals, sufficient time was not allowed to perfect these plans and efforts now are being made either to reorganize the bank or have it taken over by some good institution. This cannot be perfected, however, until the true condition of affairs of the bank is arrived at.

If either of these plans is not perfected it will be necessary for the Department of Banking to liquidate the institution, in which event the guarantee fund will pay non-interest bearing and unsecured deposits in full and other depositors and creditors will share pro rata in dividends as the bank is liquidated.

All depositors and creditors will be notified in due course of the proper procedure and in 60 or 90 days all non-interest and unsecured depositors who have made the proper application will be paid. The guarantee fund is in excellent condition for such emergencies with cash and exchange on hand in the sum of $3,000,000 and resources of $8,000,000.

The exact cause of uneasiness here is not known, nor is the true condition of the bank at this time.

Accordingly in the above the last day of the week has in all cases had to be estimated.

In the elaborate detailed statement, however, which we present further below, we are able to give final and complete results for the week previous—the week ending Nov. 18. For that week the increase is 9.2%, the 1922 aggregate of the clearings being $8,286,267,474 and the 1921 aggregate $7,588,550,146. Outside of this city the increase is 20.5%, the bank exchanges at this centre having recorded a gain of only 0.6%. We group the cities now according to the Federal Reserve districts in which they are located, and the noteworthy feature of the return is that every one of these Federal Reserve districts records an increase as compared with the corresponding week last year. The Boston Reserve District shows an improvement of 9.0%; the New York Reserve District (including this city), 0.8%, and the Philadelphia Reserve District 29.1%. The Cleveland Reserve District has bettered its last year's total by 17.0%; the Richmond Reserve District by 27.3%, and the Atlanta Reserve District by 37.7%. In the Chicago Reserve District the increase is 15.8%, in the St. Louis Reserve District 42.1%, and in the Minneapolis Reserve District 24.1%. For the Kansas City Reserve District the gain is 12.7%, for the Dallas Reserve District 29.6%, and for the San Francisco Reserve District 23.6%.

In the following we furnish a summary by Federal Reserve districts:

THE ENGLISH GOLD AND SILVER MARKETS.

We reprint the following from the weekly circular of Samuel Montagu & Co. of London, written under date of Nov. 9 1922:

GOLD.

The Bank of England gold reserve against its note issue is £125,605,350, as compared with £125,602,400 last week.

The fair amount of gold on offer was absorbed mainly on account of the United States of America, India being only a small buyer.

The "Times" states that the output of the gold mines of Ontario, Canada, for September was $1,855,000—a fresh record.

CURRENCY.

Finland is actively engaged in providing for a nickel currency. The forthcoming budget is to provide funds for suitable machinery, and some 50,000,000 nickel coins are said to have been acquired in England and Denmark.

Others beside the Shade of Shakespeare may take interest in the announcement that Czechoslovakia intends as a preparatory measure to promulgate a bill authorizing the mintage of gold coins bearing the time-honored appellation of ducats.

SILVER.

Under the influence of continued sales on China account, prices have been subject to considerable depression. The weakness was aggravated by the fact that the Indian Bazaars received substantial offers of silver from China direct, and therefore resold some purchases made here, and also practically ceased to support this market. The Continent furnished part of the supplies and America has been a good seller. As most of the silver required for the December settlement in Bombay seems now to have been secured, the outlook is not very bright, for absorption of offerings can only be met at the moment by bears covering, and, conditions being in their favor, great eagerness to cover can hardly be expected. The weak tendency may continue until it is checked by China; in that event trade relations of that country with world markets in food and other raw products will have to alter materially, otherwise a still lower level of prices may be touched.

It is reported from Washington, under date of Oct. 25, last, that the total silver purchases under the Pittman Act amounted to 138,645,576 ounces, including 1,500,000 ounces purchased on that day.

We referred last week to the suggestion that the Indian Treasury should sell some portion of its large silver reserve against notes. The "Times of India" has a carefully reasoned article in its issue of Oct. 21, dealing with this matter. The writer considered that "India will never again require an immense mass of token rupees. . . . American producers are reported to be desperately anxious to sell as much silver as possible before the support given by the Pittman Act vanishes, and the anticipated break in prices occurs. The Government of India is advised not to allow all this advantage to go to America, but to secure some of it for the benefit of their own reserves. For, it is said, even should the unexpected happen, and the Government of India need to replenish its silver reserves, it will be able to do so at prices below the present level." He adds, however, that "the major argument against the proposal is that it involves speculating with the Paper Currency Reserve, and that is not desirable, even though it should lead to an immediate profit. There is only one way of treating such reserves; it is to treat them as sacrosanct, save for their liberal employment for the purpose for which they were created."

The conclusion seems to be sound; failing an effective attachment to the gold standard (as officially fixed at 10 rupees to the sovereign), any step which would tend to place the Indian currency more upon a fiduciary basis is to be deprecated. The circumstance, however, that such a step as the partial demonetization of the rupee should be even mooted by the natives of India is a remarkable sign of the times, and cannot breed confidence in the future of silver as a material for currency. It is a very satisfactory circumstance that the people of India should prefer notes to silver coin to such a degree that metal rupees should flow continuously into the Indian Treasury, although, as indicated in the last return below, the note circulation has actually been reduced.

CURRENT NOTICES.

—West & Co., members New York and Philadelphia Stock Exchanges, 36 Wall Street, New York, and 1511 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, have issued an instructive booklet entitled "Stock Dividends." This booklet is designed to bring out some interesting points relative to stock dividends, i. e., what they accomplish, their effect on the market, and how they benefit shareholders, inasmuch as there appears to be a general misconception as to the nature of stock dividends and as to just what they accomplish. Copies are available for free distribution.

WEEKLY RETURN FOR THE MEMBER BANKS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

Following is the weekly statement issued by the Federal Reserve Board, giving the principal items of the resources and liabilities of the 785 member banks, from which weekly returns are obtained. These figures are always a week behind those for the Reserve Banks themselves. Definitions of the different items in the statement were given in the statement of Oct. 18 1917, published in the "Chronicle" Dec. 29 1917, page 2523. The comment of the Reserve Board upon the figures for the latest week appear in our Department of "Current Events and Discussions" on page 2319.

Railroad and Miscellaneus Stocks.—On a greatly reduced volume of business the security markets have again been irregular and for the most part weak. On at least two days only a trifle more than 600,000 shares were traded in, and the transaction in bonds were similarly restricted.

Owing to a general advance in prices during Saturday's short session business opened with the market strong on Monday and on that day the highest prices of the week were in most cases recorded. Day by day since Monday practically all the issues have fluctuated widely, and closed lower.

Under these conditions a continuously upward movement in the foreign exchanges has attracted attention. Sterling reached within a fraction of $4 50, the highest quotation since June, and Continental exchange made a similar record.

It is not easy to explain either movement except on the ground that both markets are still largely in the hands of the speculative element—which has been conspicuously active of late and more or less daring in its operations.

There seems no valid reason, for instance, why the better class of railway shares should have this week added from 2 to 6 points to their previous decline, or why the steel and locomotive stocks should have dropped from 3 to 5 points.

Denver & Rio Grande Western RR. Co.

(Report for Year ended Dec. 31 1921.)

Alvin W. Krech, Chairman, Sept. 1 wrote in brief:

The operation of the lines of railway formerly belonging to the Denver & Rio Grande RR. were transferred to this corporation Aug. 1 1921.

The operations from Jan. 1 1921 to July 31 1921 were conducted by the receiver; from Aug. 1 1921 to Dec. 31 1921 by this corporation, which acquired the property through judicial sale consummated by conveyance on Aug. 1 1921.

This corporation has issued 300,000 shares of capital stock of no par value which represents the excess of all assets of the company over liabilities of the company and mortgage liens charged upon the property held by the company. The company has assumed none of the mortgage debts of the old Denver & Rio Grande RR. or its predecessors, though these debts are charged on some but not on all of the property held by this corporation.

The books of this corporation have been opened in accordance with the regulations of the I.-S. C. Commission; the assets acquired through the sale being carried upon the books of this company at the same figures as those at which they were carried on the books of its predecessor.

[This company was incorporated in Delaware Nov. 15 1920 as successor of the old Denver & Rio Grande RR., acquired through judicial sale consummated in Aug. 1921. Early in 1922 a plan of reorganization (V. 114, p. 519) was proposed by the Western Pacific interests. This plan was opposed by the committee for the Adjustment Mtge. bondholders (Richard Sutro, Chairman), and by a committee for the First & Ref. Mtge. bondholders (James H. Perkins, Chairman). The plan has been withdrawn (V. 115, p. 644). In July 1922 Joseph H. Young, President, was appointed receiver (V. 115, p. 542).]

The American Cotton Oil Co., New York.

(Report for Fiscal Year Ended Aug. 31 1922.)

President Lyman N. Hine, Nov. 9, wrote in brief:

The inventory has been taken at actual cost or market, whichever lower.

The properties of the company continue free from mortgage or other lien and have been maintained in efficient operating condition. Ample reserves for depreciation have been taken. During the year substantial progress has been made in disposing of the dormant and discarded properties of the company, resulting in a decrease in the permanent investment account and the accumulated depreciation reserve. This policy will be continued.

The sales of the company's soaps and washing powders showed a substantial increase in volume over the previous year, and the profits from these sales were satisfactory.

On the other hand, there have been heavy losses in the cottonseed crushing industry and in the cottonseed oil and compound lard business, consequent upon conditions prevailing in those industries. The management is actively concerning itself with adapting the company's operations and policies to meet the existing conditions.

Canadian Connecticut Cotton Mills, Ltd.

Samuel R. Fuller, Oct. 24, wrote in substance:

Attention is invited to the improvement in the company's financial position during the fiscal year just closed. During this period current liabilities have been decreased to the extent of $1,510,486, while current assets were reduced only $514,234. On Sept. 10 1921 loans at the banks amounted to $988,523. This entire amount was paid off during the year and on Sept. 9 1922 company owed the banks no money whatever, and has not since found it necessary to borrow.

A comparison of the relation of current assets to current liabilities in the period from Sept. 10 1921 to Sept. 9 1922 may be of further interest. The ratios were as follows on the dates given below: Sept. 10 1921, 1.3 to 1; March 11 1922, 3.7 to 1; Sept. 9 1922, 6.1 to 1.

The profit shown in the profit and loss statement is mainly accounted for by the acceptance of deliveries by customers under high priced contracts made during prior fiscal years, which deliveries had been postponed from the year before. The high priced contracts have now been practically completed. Orders on books are at current prices, which are very low, especially for the export trade, as they are governed to a large extent by prices prevailing for similar products in the United States where the trade likewise has been greatly depressed. These low prices have been prevalent throughout the past year and still continue. At the same time it has been impossible to reduce costs in proportion to the reduction in selling prices necessary to obtain volume.

Under the circumstances the directors have considered it prudent to conserve assets and maintain a strong financial position. Few capital expenditures have been undertaken and these only when made necessary by changing conditions, such as the purchase of a few additional twisters for the manufacture of cord fabric. The physical condition of the property, however, has not been allowed to deteriorate and the plant at present is in excellent condition.

There is evidence that the volume of business during the forthcoming fiscal year will be at least fair. However, unless there is a material improvement in prices, it is believed that the company's interest will best be served by a continuance of its present conservation policy, and in order to maintain a good cash position dividends on the Preferred stock have been deferred. [Six quarterly dividends on the Preferred stock have now accrued and voting rights are thus vested in the Preferred stockholders.]

Crops in Canada this year are good and with the advent of better times and the improvement of tire fabric prices in the United States company should prosper proportionately.

United Rys. of The Havana & Regla Warehouses, Ltd.

(Report for Year Ended June 30 1922.)

London Manager and Secretary W. J. Maslen, Nov. 3 wrote in substance:

Results.—The results of the working of the railways for the year as compared with the previous year are as follows: Receipts, £3,893,949 (against £6,329,669 in 1921); expenses, £2,729,956 (against £4,848,142 in 1921); balance, £1,163,993 (against £1,481,527 in 1921); ratio of expenses to receipts, 70.11% (against 76.59% in 1921).

To this balance of £1,163,993 there has to be added the profit on the working of the Regla Warehouses and other properties, the gain in exchange, &c., and to be deducted the payment in respect of the Marianao Ry. leased to this company. These adjustments having been made, there remains a total of £1,442,435.

After payment of interest on debentures and debenture stocks, sinking fund contributions, dividend on preference stock, providing for British and Cuban taxation, stamp duties, &c., and adding interest and dividends on investments, the value of the coupons on the bonds of the Havana Central RR. Co., and the amount brought forward from last account, there remains an available balance of net revenue of £574,355, as follows:

| Transferred to a special account to provide for deferred maintenance | £105,000 |
| The board recommends a dividend of 4% (less income tax at 5s. 9d. in the £) on the £6,556,837 ordinary stock and shares, absorbing | 262,274 |
| Carrying forward | £207,081 |

Reserves, &c.—The Reserve account amounts to £1,000,000. The general renewals reserve account amounts to £244,207. The equalization of dividend account amounts to £300,000; the insurance account amounts to £80,000; the pension account amounts to £219,617.

Tariffs and Wages.—In Dec. 1921 the Government of Cuba passed a law re-establishing the tariffs ruling prior to Dec. 1920. This represented a reduction in this company's rates of 20% during the latter half of the year, which adversely affected the earnings during the crop period. In some instances further reductions in rates have been voluntarily made in order to stimulate business, or to meet competition from road or sea transport.

As most of the increases in tariffs in force up to Dec. 1920 were granted by the Cuban Government to meet the higher wages which the company had to pay to obtain the necessary labor during the boom period, it became necessary when a portion of those increases was rescinded to make some reductions in wages and these reductions, together with other economies which have been effected, have materially assisted in meeting the situation created by the falling off in business.

Fuel Oil.—The policy of converting the loconotives to consume fuel oil has continued to prove satisfactory and has resulted in a substantial saving in the cost of fuel.

Extracts from the General Manager's Report, Dated Havana, Sept. 2.

Receipts.—Total receipts show reduction of £2,435,720, or 38%, under 1921, due to the very large decrease in tonnage and number of passengers carried, owing to the depressed commercial conditions, and to the 20% reduction which our tariffs suffered by the new tariff law which came into effect on Jan. 1, and which thus affected the movement of the whole of the crop season. There was a decrease of 3,398,325, or 47.84%, in the number of main line passengers carried, and a decrease of 4,398,440, or 27.66%, in the tons moved.

Sugar Cane and Products.—This group supplied 85.11% (9,465.772 tons) of the total tonnage (11,121,953 tons), but only 54.81% of the total freight revenue.

The tonnage of sugar moved over the company's lines represents 37.48% of the total production of the island, compared with 41.9% last year. Of the estimated amount of cane, namely, 12,675,000 metric tons, required to produce the sugar made on our lines, we carried 7,601,326 tons, or 59.97%, compared with 67.20% last year.

Agricultural.—With the exception of refined sugar and native fresh fruit and vegetables, all the items in this group show a considerable decrease in the tonnage transported (191,811 tons, against 258,640 tons in 1921), due in general terms to the economic crisis of the previous year.

Forest Products.—(Tons moved, 179,690, against 377,855 in 1921.) Native hard woods are used chiefly for building purposes, especially in the interior of the island, and the large decrease is due to the almost complete paralyzation of building construction due to the economic conditions. The reduction in the tonnage of firewood is due to the increasing use of oil fuel and also to the fall in the price of coal. The decrease in charcoal is due to the increasing use of gas for domestic purposes in Havana.

Building Materials.—(Tons moved, 177,743, against 516,859 in 1921.) The slump in the building trade throughout the island continues, except Havana, where there has been considerable activity. Havana, however, draws most of its bricks and sand from kilns and deposits in the vicinity and it is here that road competition is most severely felt. The paralyzation of nearly all public works and road making accounts for the decrease in stone.

Coal and Oil.—(Tonnage in 1922, 396,255, against 561,399 in 1921.) The decrease in both coal and oil is chiefly due to the decrease in sugar production in our zone.

General Merchandise.—(Tonnage in 1922, 710,682, against 1,723,855 in 1921.) The decrease, which is distributed throughout the twelve classes, reflects the financial difficulties through which the country has been passing.

Expenditure.—Conditions ruling in the labor world and the fall in the price of materials enabled us to reduce our expenditure in even larger proportion than our drop in receipts, the total expenditure amounting to £2,729,956, a reduction of £2,118,186, or 43.69%, under 1921. The reduction made in the expenses of operation shows a larger comparative decrease than the expenses of maintenance—the relative proportion being 46.61% reduction in operating charges and 43.37% in the cost of maintenance. The chief features in bringing about this reduction were the large decrease in the number of men employed, and in their salaries and wages, and the almost complete conversion of the locomotives to the consumption of oil fuel.

Labor.—High wages with which we entered the financial year, were considerably reduced. A reduction of from 10 to 15% was made on July 1 1921, a further general reduction of 10% was made in Nov., a third reduction of from 10 to 15% necessitated by the reduction in our tariffs was effected on Jan. 1, and a fourth reduction of 10% in the workshops, where increases had formerly been granted on a more liberal scale, was made on June 26. These reductions in the case of the majority of employees have totaled from 40 to 50% under last year's rates, but we are still from 20 to 30% higher than the rates ruling in 1916. The employees, realizing the critical situation, not only of this company but of the whole country, loyally co-operated in these reductions, and with the exception of the last occasion when there was a slight protest, they were accepted without a strike, and without the stoppage of a single main line train.

Pensions.—A law granting pensions to all railway employees was passed by Congress on Nov. 26 1921, and came into effect on May 26 1922. Practically the only revenue accruing to the pension fund is the 3% monthly deduction from employees' pay, while the benefits provided are on an exceptionally lavish scale. Doubtless the defects of the law will be amended by Congress as they become more evident in practice, and a satisfactory pension scheme will be evolved that will be of substantial benefit to employees and will link them still more closely with the interests of the company they serve.

Future Prospects.—The future of the country's staple industry may certainly be regarded with more certainty to-day than was possible at this time last year. The absorption of 5,300,000 tons of Cuban sugars in the world's markets since January last, and the steady rise in the price of sugar to over 3½ cents per pound, have served to place the sugar industry on a much sounder footing than it has experienced for some time past.

This fortunate relief from the embarrassments of the last two years is due in a large measure to the far-sighted policy adopted by the foreign banks operating in the island. Their staunch support of the local sugar planters and producers throughout one of their darkest periods has made possible the production of nearly 4,000,000 tons of sugar last year, and the replanting and cultivation of the cane fields on an extensive scale during the present dead season. The summer rains have been exceptionally favorable, and the cane in our zone—though somewhat reduced in quantity, owing to the last two years' neglect—is now in excellent condition, and it seems probable that another crop in excess of 3,500,000 tons will be produced in the coming year.

Our weekly receipts continue to show a decline as compared with the similar periods of the previous year, owing to our present tariffs being 20% lower than they were for the first six months of the company's year 1921-22. We are, however, constantly decreasing our monthly expenditure, and I can see no immediate reason why the current year's operations should not terminate with results no less favorable than those of the year now under review.

Guantanamo & Western RR.

Pres. Gabriel Juve, N. Y., Nov. 6, reports in substance:

Financial Status Sound.—The physical condition of the road, in its entirety, is very satisfactory and the financial status of the company is good and sound, especially considering that it had to overcome the great struggle during the anomalous economic situation which Cuba continued to experience while still undergoing the worldwide movement of readjustment.

Loan of $100,000.—Company had to surmount an extraordinarily difficult financial period and, though it was perfectly solvent, there were times at the beginning of the fiscal year that the burden of the matured interest on the unfunded debt, the decrease in the revenues, &c., created such a precarious condition that the only hope was to negotiate a loan of $100,000 through the Columbia Trust Co., trustee, with the aid of sugar collateral and other guarantees.

Improvements.—The physical condition of the road has been improved during the year by an expenditure for maintenance, addition of sidings and spur tracks, station buildings, fuel and water stations, and the replacement of 60-lb. rails with 80-lb. rails, aggregating the sum of $433,208, of which amount $159,991 has been charged to operations.

Operating Income.—The operating income for the year, before deducting interest, bond discount and taxes, and after reserving $211,548 for depreciation, is $401,025, as compared with $269,616 for 1920-21. However, during the year 1920-21 depreciation was reserved in the total amount of $364,013, as compared with $211,548 this year.

The net income from railway operations shows an increase of $154,606. This increase obtains with a decrease in total revenue from railway operations of $91,460, which evidences clearly the large reduction made in railway operating expenses. These expenses amounted to $886,426 during the year, as compared with $1,132,492 for 1920-21, a reduction of $246,066.

Passenger Traffic.—The number of passengers carried during the year under review was 268,637, as compared with 485,536 last year; but the average ticket price increased from 90.33 to 98.55.

Expenditures.—The expenditure for maintenance represents an average of $1,096 per kilometer of track in operation, as compared with $1,162 expended in the previous year.

The average train and car kilometer costs for transportation expense for the year was: Cost per car kilometer, 9.18 cents, and cost per train kilometer 55.90 cents, against 6.8 cents and 48.7 cents, respectively, for the last year. This increase is due to net increase of transportation expense on locomotives and cars this year, and the decrease in number of kilometers covered.

Boqueron Terminal.—Operations show a net increase in the profits of $17,308. Wharfing and stevedoring, as well as miscellaneous, showing a large increase, and dispatch money earned on steamers a slight decrease.

Earnings Sufficient to Meet All Charges.—The earnings not only have been sufficient to take care of all its fixed charges—interest and amortization of its mortgage debt—and to improve its physical condition during the present year, but also to materially reduce its current debt to such an extent that it is now what should be considered normal for an organization of its nature. It has also permitted the increase of the reserve fund sufficiently to take care of our tax obligations and pending claims and to adjust accounts receivable.

Cash.—The cash funds at New York and Guantanamo at June 30 1922 amounted to over $200,000 in banks and on hand; also had over $130,000 in promissory notes, together with 2,645 bags of sugar—the latter two items having been received from sugar mills in liquidation for services rendered by the railroad.

The company enjoys a good credit standing in this country, as well as in Cuba.

Car Loadings.—Loading of revenue freight Nov. 11 totaled 953,909 cars, increase 198,132 cars, compared with the corresponding week last year, and an increase of 26,323 cars compared with the corresponding week in 1920. The total, however, was a decrease of 40,918 cars compared with the preceding week, due to Election Day and the observance of Armistice Day throughout the country, both of which took place during the week of Nov. 11.

Principal changes compared with week ended Nov. 4 were: Grain and grain products, 52,501 cars, increase 589; live stock, 38,001 cars, decrease 1,730; coal loading, 188,312 cars, decrease 5,765; coke, 12,273 cars, increase 632; forest products, 60,392 cars, increase 379; ore, 39,383 cars, decrease 7,663; loading of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, which includes manufactured products, 563,047 cars, decrease 27,360.

Locomotive Repairs.—The railroad shops repaired during the period from Oct. 15 to Nov. 1 last the largest number of locomotives for any semi-monthly period in approximately the last two years.

During that period, 13,490 locomotives were repaired, exceeding by 2,086 the number turned out of the shops from Oct. 1 to Oct. 15 last.

Locomotives in need of repair on Nov. 1 totaled 18,366, or 28.5% of the number on line. This was a decrease of 865 since Oct. 15, at which time 19,231, or 29.8%, were in need of repairs.

Of the total number on Nov. 1 last, 15,101 were in need of repairs requiring more than 24 hours. This was a decrease since Oct. 15 of 834 locomotives in the number needing heavy repairs. The remaining 3,265 represented locomotives in need of light repairs, which was a decrease of 31 within the same period.

Reports filed by the carriers show that on Nov. 1 the railroads had 46,096 serviceable locomotives, an increase of 909 over the number on Oct. 15.

Car Shortage.—The demand for freight cars in excess of the current supply totaled 174,498 cars on Nov. 8, a decrease of 4,741 cars compared with the total on Oct. 31.

A lessening in the demand for all classes of freight equipment was shown. The shortage in box cars was 90,244, a decrease of 795 compared with that on Oct. 31; in coal cars, 45,529, a decrease of 1,744; in stock cars, 19,986, a decrease of 621 cars; in refrigerator cars, 10,783, a decrease of 304; in coke cars, 339 cars, or approximately half of what it was on Oct. 31.

At the same time there were 4,990 surplus freight cars in good repair throughout the country, an increase of 1,274 over the total surplus on Oct. 31. An increase within that period of 582 in the number of surplus box cars in good repair was reported, which brought the total to 847, while the number of surplus coal cars totaled 2,046, anincrease since Oct. 31 of 462 cars.

Ann Arbor RR.—Decision in Terminal Case.—The Ohio Supreme Court has declined to disturb the judgment of the Court of Appeals in favor of the company, holding that the contract for the use of its Toledo terminal by the Pere Marquette Ry., made about 30 years ago, was not assignable, and did not pass to it in the reorganization of 1916. The Pere Marquette will now be compelled to make a new contract involving increased rental or seek other terminal facilities.

The Pennsylvania RR. has entered into a contract for the use of certain Ann Arbor terminals in Toledo, effective Jan. 1 next, and it is stated that another railroad is negotiating for the use of some of its terminal facilities at that place.—V. 115, p. 987.

Atlanta Birmingham & Atlantic RR.—Receiver's Notes.—A petition asking permission to issue $80,000 receiver's certificates for repairing 450 wooden gondolas has been filed with the U. S. District Court at Atlanta by B. L. Bugg, receiver.—V. 115, p. 542, 307.

Baltimore & Ohio RR.—Resume of Year 1922 to Date—Outlook, &c.—New Directors.—At the annual meeting Nov. 20 President Daniel Willard presented a summary of the company's condition from the first of this year up to the present time and the prospects for the future. He said in part:

"At the beginning of the present year, 1922, a budget for the year was prepared, based upon an assumed business 5% in excess of the business handled in 1921, and also assuming a reduction in freight rates of 10%, with the continuance of the then existing rates of pay. The budget prepared at the beginning of the year contemplated a net railway operating income of $32,000,000 at the end of the year, which, with other income, would have provided, after deducting fixed charges, $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 surplus applicable to the Common stock after paying the Preferred dividend and providing for the $3,500,000 sinking fund.

"Notwithstanding the fact that more than three-fourths of all the coal mines located on the Baltimore & Ohio ceased production April 1, due to the coal strike, which of course affected very seriously the business of the company, we were able to show at the end of the first six months' period net operating revenue of more than $2,000,000 in excess of the amount set up in the budget for the same period, and there is every reason to believe that if conditions had continued as they then were, the company would have had not less than $8,000,000 surplus at the end of this year applicable to the Common stock.

"The total number of men employed in the Maintenance of Equipment Department on June 30 1922 was 21,150, of which 17,500 left the service, leaving about 3,500 at work. During the period of the strike 1,322 of the men who had left the service returned. On Sept. 15, when the settlement was reached, the Baltimore & Ohio had about 17,000 men working in its mechanical department, 4,634 being old employees of the company and 12,158 new men who had been hired. There were no unsettled matters of controversy between the company and its men who went on strike on July 1, and when the settlement was made it was on the basis of the men returning to work under the same rules and working conditions, and at the same rate of wages that were in effect on the date they stopped work.

"The result of the strike bore very heavily upon the company. During the month of June 1922 the net operating income of the company was $2,666,000, and during the month of October it was $3,000,000. Assuming, which may fairly be done, that the net operating income of July, August and September would have been equal to the average earned in the two months above mentioned, it seems clear that but for the strike the company would have earned during those months a net operating income of more than $8,000,000. On the contrary, however, because of reduced business and increased expenses, the result of the three months' operations was a net deficit of more than $2,000,000, indicating a clear loss to the company, in anticipated income during the three months mentioned, of between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000. This, of course, has very seriously affected the outlook for the company during the present year.

"There has been a very steady improvement in the condition of the company's property since the settlement of the strike, with a corresponding increase of business. This is quite clearly shown by the loaded car movement. During the first 15 days of September the average daily loaded movement by the company was approximately 18,000, while the average daily loaded movement for the first 10 days of the present month has been over 34,000, and in some daily instances has nearly reached 36,000. We are to-day handling practically as heavy a business as we ever handled at this time of the year and we hope to have our power in condition to meet the seasonable requirements of the situation during the winter months.

"The present outlook for business is encouraging and while the results from this year's operations will be disappointing, for the reasons which I have already mentioned, if conditions remain something like normal during the next 12 months—and by normal I do not mean the same degree of industrial activity that exists to-day, because we are probably above normal at the present time, but with a condition that might fairly be assumed to be normal, and with rates and wages remaining substantially as they now are—I feel confident that the result of next year's operations should be much more gratifying to the holders of our Common shares."

Henry Ruhlender and Richard H. Williams were elected directors, to take the places of James Speyer and L. F. Loree, who declined re-election because they could not consistently serve on the board under the provisions of the Inter-State Commerce Act, because of relations with other properties.—V. 115, p. 2045, 1938.

Barcelona Trac., Light & Power Co., Ltd.—Interest.—The holders of the 7% Prior Lien "A" bonds are notified that interest coupon No. 15, due and payable Dec. 1 1922, will be paid on and after that date at the Bank of Scotland, 30 Bishopsgate, London, England, and at the Canadian Bank of Commerce, 16 Exchange Pl., N. Y. City. Payment will be made in New York in U. S. currency at the current rate of exchange.—V. 115, p. 1941, 1428.

Black River (N. Y.) Traction Co.—Fares.—
The New York P. S. Commission has dismissed a complaint against the 10-cent rate charged by the company for carrying passengers from any point in Watertown to Brownville, established under a tariff filed in February. The complaint asked that the company be directed to continue a reduced round trip ticket rate of 15c.—V. 107, p. 2187.

Boston Elevated Ry.—Dividends—Decision.—
The trustees have declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1 50 a share on the Common stock and the regular semi-annual dividends of $4 a share on the First Preferred and of $3 50 a share on the Second Preferred, all payable Jan. 2 to holders of record Dec. 16.
The Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities has approved the company's petition for authority to permit the Massachusetts Street Ry. to operate cars on its tracks on Main St., Malden and Broadway, Everett, Mass.—V. 115, p. 2158, 2045.

Boston & Maine RR.—Bonds Approved.—
The stockholders Nov. 21 approved the $4,000,000 bond issue for the purpose of paying and refunding bonds due in the near future. (See offering in V. 115, p. 2158.) The I.-S. C. Commission has also approved the issue.
President H. Hustis at the annual meeting stated that the strike cost the road $2,000,000, but that fixed charges in 1922 will likely be earned and a small surplus left, compared with a $7,000,000 deficit in 1921.—V. 115, p. 2158, 1941.

Central Illinois Public Service Co.—Expansion, &c.—
Largely increased business of the company is indicated by the net gain in the first 9 months of 1922 of 4,926 electric, 330 gas and 1,720 water customers, or a gain of 6,976 for the three classes of service. In Sept. the company broke previous records for taking on new electric customers.
The company has purchased the municipal electric distribution system in Vermont, Ill., which can be served without additional investment for transmission line as the company has had a line through the village for a number of years.
The new 10,000 kilowatt unit now being installed in the Muddy power station will be ready for operation about Dec. 1. The Muddy plant is at present operating at full capacity on account of the heavy coal mining load in Southern Illinois.—V. 115, p. 1531.

Central RR. Co. of N. J.—Tax Valuations Upheld.—
The New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton handed down decisions Nov. 20 confirming a valuation of $28,554,482, made by the State Board of Taxes and Assessment on railroad property along the water front in Jersey City for the year 1920.
Assessments aggregating $31,343,540 were made on these properties by Jersey City and the companies appealed to the State Board asking that the assessments be reduced to $18,405,777. When the State Board fixes its valuation, the companies appealed to the Supreme Court, which upheld the action of the State Board. Appeals were then taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals from the State Board's valuations.
The valuations were made on what is known as third-class railroad property, which is property devoted to local uses, and the tax rate is the local rate, which in Jersey City in 1920 was $3,097.
Ten companies, all embraced in either the Central RR. of New Jersey, the Lehigh Valley RR. or the Pennsylvania RR. systems, made the fight against the assessments.
The Central RR. of N. J. system was assessed $16,145,595 by Jersey City, and the company asked that the assessment be reduced to $7,721,827. The judgment of the Board was that the assessment should be $14,645,595, and on an appeal to the Supreme Court this figure was upheld.
The assessments against the Lehigh Valley Co.'s system by Jersey City was $7,614,545, which the company asked to be reduced to $5,063,454. The State Board fixed this assessment at $6,330,487, which was upheld by the Supreme Court.
The assessment against the Pennsylvania RR. Co.'s system by Jersey City was $6,179,200, which the company sought to have reduced to $4,457,514. The State Board made this assessment $6,174,200 and the Supreme Court affirmed the State Board's judgment.—V. 115, p. 2266, 987.

Chicago & Alton RR.—Listing.—
The New York Stock Exchange has authorized the listing of certificates of deposit of New York Trust Co. for $45,350,000 of 3% Ref. 50-year Gold bonds, due Oct. 1 1949, on official notice of issuance therefor in exchange for outstanding bonds deposited.
The receivers have applied to Federal Judge Carpenter for authority to issue $2,000,000 receiver's certificates, of which $1,000,000 would be used to pay "pressing debts" and the remaining $1,000,000 to rehabilitate the roadbed and repair locomotives and other rolling stock.—V. 115, p. 2158, 1941.

Chicago Aurora & Elgin RR.—City Asks Fare Cut.—
The city of Elgin has filed a petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission asking that street car rates charged by the company be reduced.—V. 115, p. 2158, 1837.

Chicago Great Western RR.—Financing.—President Felton has issued a statement explaining the company's application to the I.-S. C. Commission for authority to issue $10,206,000 bonds and $3,580,000 preferred stock. He says:
The application has created a very serious misapprehension in the minds of the public and has evidently caused the recent depressin in the value of the securities quoted on the New York Stock Exchange.
The facts are that bonds and stock are to be issued for the purpose of merging the Mason City & Fort Dodge with the Chicago Great Western. The Mason City stock is owned by the Great Western. An agreement has been reached with a committee representing the bondholders of the Mason City to exchange their $12,000,000 outstanding bonds for Great Western bonds and preferred stock in the proportion of 75% of bonds and 25% of stock for 100% of Mason City bonds. This transaction, if approved by the Commission, when completed, will retire the $12,000,000 Mason City bonds and $13,635,752 preferred and $19,205,400 common Mason City stock, and will place the Great Western road in a much more favorable position that it has been heretofore, with reduced capitalization, reduced fixed charges and substantial economies in the operation of the property as one unified system.
The system will then have but $25,600 a mile of first mortgage bonds bearing interest at the rate of 4%, and no other important obligations outstanding beyond the funds borrowed from the Government for the purpose of restoring the property to its pre-war condition and two small car trusts.
The high operating expenses since the return of the property have been largely due to heavy charges for repairs and renewals of equipment and roadway, caused by the failure to maintain the property during Government control.
The payments by the Director-General, in settlement of the claims against the Railroad Administration, plus the money borrowed from the Government, will be sufficient to restore the property and place it in first-class operating condition.
As to the solvency of the company, it has a reserve invested in Treasury notes sufficient to meet its bond interest for a year to come, so it will be abundantly able to tide over the period of rehabilitation. See also V. 115, p. 2266.

The I.-S. C. Commission has authorized the company to issue, payable to the order of the Pullman Co., not exceeding $906,573 promissory notes, consisting of 40 notes of $22,664 each; said notes to be delivered to the Pullman Co. in the procurement of certain equipment. The report of the Commission says in substsnace:
"In order to meet its requirements for additional equipment, the applicant has arranged to procure 500 double-sheathed, steel-centre sill, 40-ton box cars at $1,850 each, making a total cost of $925,000.
"The applicant has entered into an agreement under date of Oct. 5 1922 with the Pullman Co. of Chicago, Ill., whereby it has leased such equipment from that company and agreed to make a cash payment of $231,250 to the lessor in respect thereof. The remainder of the purchase price is proposed to be represented by 40 promissory notes or lease warrants in equal amounts, which, when executed, will be delivered to and accepted by the Pullman Co. at their face value.
"Pursuant to this agreement the applicant proposes to execute the notes, payable to the order of the Pullman Co. at the Merchants Loan & Trust Co.'s Bank, Chicago, Ill. They will be dated Oct. 5 1922, and one note will mature quarterly from June 15 1923 to March 15 1933 incl. Each note is to be in the amount of $22,664, and if unpaid at maturity will bear interest thereafter at the rate of 5½% per annum. While the proposed notes will be non-interest bearing prior to their maturity, there will be included in the face of each note a proportionate amount of the unpaid purchase price and interest thereon computed at the rate of 5½% per annum.—V. 115, p. 2266, 2158.

From Oct. 1 to Nov. 14 in 1918 the loaded car movement was 124,292; in 1919, 112,717; in 1920, 96,086; in 1921, 93,134; and in 1922, 100,777. Georgia & Florida Ry.—Receiver's Report to Bondholders—Operating Deficit of $800,000 Converted into a Surplus of $230,000.—The protective committee for the First Mortgage Bonds, Franklin Q. Brown, Chairman, on Nov. 8, sent to the bondholders a report of the receiver covering operation of the road. The committee says in brief:
On July 24 1921 John Skelton Williams took charge as sole receiver of this railway, which has been in the hands of the court since 1915. The report submitted shows the results of operation for the past 16 months of Mr. Williams' administration as receiver.
The operating deficit of $818,700, or excess of purely operating expenses over operating revenue, which was shown for the 18 months immediately prior to July 1 1921, has been changed into a net operating revenue (exclusive of taxes, car mileage and receivers' interest) for the 16 months which have elapsed since July 1 1921, of approximately $230,000—an improvement in net results for the period of about $1,050,000.
Although the gross earnings of this property had never exceeded for any one year, $1,600,000, or $4,000 per mile, the actual deficit, or shortage, after operating expenses, taxes, &c., and receiver's interest had amounted, for the 12 months immediately preceding Mr. Williams' appointment as receiver, to $677,324, and many then regarded the situation desperate. For the past six months ending Oct. 31 1922, the road has earned a small surplus after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes and interest on receiver's certificate and on old underlying bonds.

Digest of Report of John Skelton Williams, Receiver, Nov. 3 1922.
Good Results Follow Changes in Operating Management.—After several months of close observation and indulgence of the old management the receiver decided that it would be impossible to obtain the best results for the property without a radical change in the personnel of the general management. A change was therefore made in April 1922, and H. W. Purvis, of the operating department of the Seaboard Air Line System, was installed as General Manager.
The situation which the receiver found when he took charge of the property in July 1921, and the earning record for the 18 months immediately preceding, were as follows:

| Gross earnings for the 18 months ending June 30 1921 had amounted to (about $123,000 per month) | $2,220,076 |
| Leaving out of consideration taxes, car mileage and all receiver's interest, the operating deficit or excess of purely operating expenses over gross operating revenue was, for the same period (average of $45,000 per month) | $18,700 |
| For the past 16 months from July 1 1921 to Oct. 31 1922, which embrace a period of business depression, during which time there has also been a radical cut in freight rates, the gross earnings of the road (October partly estimated) have amounted to (an average of $113,000 per month) | 1,810,131 |

The average monthly reduction in gross earnings for this period, owing to the causes stated, has been a little less than 10%.

$818,700 Operating Deficit Changed to $230,000 Net Revenue.—Notwithstanding reduced gross earnings it is gratifying to be able to report that in the past 16 months the operating deficit of $818,700 reported in the preceding 18 months has been entirely wiped out, and the road has obtained for the past 16 months a net revenue from operations (before charging taxes, car mileage and receiver's interest) of approximately (average about $14,000 per month) $230,000

| If the results of operations for the months of Nov. and Dec. come up to present estimates the net revenue from operations for the 18 months' period ending Dec. 31 1922 will approximate (average about $17,000 per month) | $300,000 |
| This compares with an operating deficit for the preceding 18 months of $818,700, being an improvement in operating results for the current 18 months as compared with the immediately preceding 18 months ending June 30 1921 of | $1,118,700 |

For the six months ending Nov. 1 1922 the road has made a slight surplus over and above operating expenses, car hire, taxes, interest on receiver's certificates and on old underlying divisional bonds.
In the 18 months immediately prior to July 1 1921, the monthly ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues for six of the months ranged from 150% to 211%, and in seven other months of that period the ratio ranged from 123% to 149%. In only one of those 18 months was the operating ratio less than 101%.
Operating Ratio Brought Down.—For Feb. 1922 the operating ratio has been reduced to 90% as compared with 211% in Feb. 1920. In March 1922 the ratio was reduced to 77% as compared with 138% for March1920. For April 1922 the operating ratio was 89% as compared with 151% in April 1920. In May 1922 the ratio was 78% against 149% in May 1920.
For June 1922 the ratio was gotten down to 73% as compared with 176% in June 1920. In July 1922 the ratio was 85%, which compares with 174% in July 1920; although the gross earnings in July 1920 exceeded by more than $30,000 the gross earnings for July 1922.

For August 1922 the operating ratio was 88% as compared with an operating ratio of 204% in August 1920, although gross earnings in August 1922 were $33,000 less than in August 1920.

During the entire period of 18 months ending June 30 1921 there was only one month in which there was not a deficit or in which the operating expenses, exclusive of taxes, car mileage, &c., did not exceed the road's total operating revenue.

In the past 16 months the situation has been so completely reversed that there has been only one month in which operating revenues have not, on the same basis of computation, exceeded the operating charges.

Net Revenue After Paying All Operating Charges and Receiver's Interest.—As the road for the past six months has been earning not only all expenses of operation and taxes but also the full amount of interest on receiver's certificates as well as on the old underlying bonds instead of an average deficit as in 1920 of over $83,000 monthly, it is obvious that if the net earnings can be still further increased, by the development of new business and economy and efficiency in operation, say, $20,000 more per month, or $240,000 per annum, the reorganization of the road will be possible on a basis which will restore a large part of the value of the company's First Mortgage bonds which were originally placed at 100 and interest with investors who have received no interest on their investment for nearly 10 years.

Over $5,000,000 Paid in Wages No Returns to Owners.—The amount of money which the road has paid out in wages in this period amounts to about $5,000,000 and the sum paid in taxes is approaching $1,000,000. The railway and its equipment represents, as the records show, a cash investment of over $8,000,000.

Extracts from Receiver's Report to the Court Submitted under Date of Oct. 17 1922.

Physical Condition of Property.—During the past year, notwithstanding the very great economies which have been put into effect in all departments of the service, the property has been well maintained, and is generally in good physical condition.

A large proportion of the shopmen at Douglas went on a strike in August 1921. We were subject to some loss and embarrassment for a while, but at this time we have an open shop,and the master mechanic considers that he is getting, at the present time, about 100% efficiency from his force.

Prospects for Increased Business in Local Territory.—The farmers in the territory traversed by the road have been much more successful than they were last year, and a distinct feeling of encouragement and hop^fulness is evident on all sides. The agricultural development in South Georgia is likely to increase steadily. The company, during the past year, opened up new gateways for the interchange of traffic which, it is believed, should result in a large increase in profitable tonnage.

Although gross revenues have been adversely effected by the general reduction of 10% in freight rates which went into effect July 1 1921; company expects to overcome this loss by the increase of through and local traffic.

Improvements Now Nearing Completion.—The completion of the work of revision in progress for many months past will be a distinct aid to our passenger business and will enable us to shorten materially passenger schedules now in force.

The work of regrading and realigning the road between Augusta and Keysville has been practically finished. Trains are already operating over most of the new work and the grade is now practically ready for track-laying on the last section from Melton across Spirit Creek. The work of regrading from Keysville, 4 miles south across the Briar and Brushy creeks, is also well under way and ought to be finished by Jan. 1 next.

The entire work of revision is being accomplished for materially less than the original estimated cost.

Over $1,000,000 Improvement Obtained in Net Operating Results.—For the 12 months ending March 1 1920, which closed the period of Federal operation, the road showed, after the payment of operating expenses, car mileage, and receiver's interest, a deficit of $666,925

For the 12 months ending Sept. 1 1920, which included six months of Federal operation and six months under company's management, the road showed, after paying operating expenses, car mileage, taxes and receiver's interest, a deficit of $1,003,766

For the 12 months ending June 30 1921 the road reported, after the payment of operating expenses, car mileage, taxes and receiver's interest, a deficit of $677,324

Better Prospects Encourage Hope for Successful Reorganization.—As a result of the united efforts of all concerned, the property is now on a more satisfactory basis than it has been for many years past, and the outlook for the future is encouraging.

If, with the advance in general business, the development of local territory, and with the economies resulting from betterment work now in progress, the road should make a further improvement in net income equal to only 20% of the $1,000,000 increase in net results which, n depressed times, and under unfavorable conditions, has already been effected since July 1 1921, the reorganization of the property will be entirely practicable on a basis which should give protection to the obligations of the receivership and yield a substantial value to the outstanding $6,000,000 first mortgage bonds.—V. 113, p. 532

Glady & Alpena RR.—Abandonment.—

It is the policy of the company to charge into operating expenses $717,386 annually for depreciation in accordance with the requirements of the Oregon P. S. Commission.—V. 115, p. 1838, 1429.

Public Service Corp., N. J.—Common Dividend Increased.—The directors have declared a quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the Common stock, placing it on an $8 annual basis. Previous quarterly payments have been $1 50 quarterly, the rate having been increased from $1 quarterly last March. Regular quarterly div. of $2 a share was also declared on the Pref. stock. All dividends are payable Dec. 30 to stock of record Dec. 15.

For the 12 months ended Oct. 31 1922, operating revenues of subsidiary companies was $77,692,962, compared with $75,423,643 the previous 12 months, an increase of $2,269,-319. Balance available for dividends amounted to $5,-416,693, against $2,939,074, an increase of $2,477,620.

President Thomas N. McCarter says in part:

The directors Nov. 21 voted to reduce the uniform electric lighting rate and the uniform electric retail power rate, effective with Dec. sales. Their action will result in a saving of at least $1,600,000 a year to the commercial lighting and retail power users served under these rates as at present constituted. More than 99% of all the customers of Public Service Electric Co. will be favorably affected by the voluntary reduction in prices. The new base rate will be 9 cents per k.w. hour instead of 10 cents, with similar cuts in the second, third and fourth steps of the lighting rate.

The directors also voted to pay a 2% quarterly dividend on the Common stock, thus restoring the dividend rate for that class of stock to an 8% annual basis, the same rate that prevailed before the United States became involved in the World War.

The directors also decided to recommend to the stockholders for approval two changes in the Preferred stock structure of the corporation as now existing. At present the authorized issue of Preferred stock is $50,000,000, carrying 8% Cumul. dividends, of which approximately $18,500,000 is outstanding. This stock is redeemable at 110. The directors felt that this redemption stipulation acts as an unnecessary bar to the proper market value of the stock in the hands of the stockholders and have therefore decided to recommend that the corporation give up its privilege of redemption.

The directors also felt that there would be times hereafter when it would be practicable for the corporation to sell 7% Preferred stock and have therefore decided to recommend to the stockholders for approval the alteration of the company's charter so that the $50,000,000 of authorized Preferred stock shall hereafter consist of $25,000,000 8% Preferred stock and $25,000,000 7% Preferred stock. This, together with the authorized stock still available for issue, will provide a flexible structure of which the corporation may avail itself as occasion may require. It is believed that the stockholders will approve of both of these suggested changes.

During the last year an unusually large number of new customers have been added to Public Service Electric Company's lines and the increase in the total volume of lighting and retail power business has been very gratifying. These facts, together with economies due to careful management, have brought to the Electric Co. a measure of prosperity, which, I am happy to say, the directors have voted to share with those who have made it possible—the company's customers.—V. 115, p. 2159, 1838.

Republic Ry. & Light Co.—New Control.—Eastman, Dillon & Co., New York, together with R. P. Stevens and John T. Harrington, Youngstown, O., have purchased from Harrison Williams and his associates their interest in the Republic Ry. & Light Co., which through its subsidiaries, the Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric Co. and Pennsylvania-Ohio Power & Light Co., owns and controls the entire electric light, power, local and interurban electric railway business in the industrial district lying midway between Pittsburgh and Cleveland and centering at Youngstown, O., and Sharon and New Castle, Pa.

Herbert L. Dillon, Henry L. Bogert Jr. and Walter H. Nash, New York, and John T. Harrington and John F. Fowland, Youngstown, have been elected directors, succeeding Harrison Williams, R. E. Breed, F. L. Dame, Edwin Gruhl and Robert Lindsay.—V. 114, p. 739.

St. Louis Southwestern Ry.—Dividends Resumed.—The directors have declared a semi-annual dividend of 2½% on the Preferred stock payable Dec. 20 to holders of record Dec. 15. This is the first dividend to be paid on the Preferred since April 15 1914, when ½ of 1% was paid.—V. 115, p. 2159.

Commission on Nov. 21 began consideration of the application of the company for authority to acquire by lease and stock ownership the Central Pacific Ry. A number of shippers' associations asked for leave to intervene and to file petitions opposing the application. Fred H. Wood, General Counsel for the company, made no objection to these requests until one was received from the California Producers' & Shippers' Association, when he declared that "we shall at the proper time move to strike this petition from the files on the ground that it is not made in good faith, the organization being nothing more than the Union Pacific RR. under an alias, adopted for the usual purpose for which an alias is adopted."—V. 115, p. 2268, 2159.

Tennessee Electric Power Co.—New Plant.—According to Chairman C. M. Clark, construction of the new 16,000 h. p. auxiliary steam power plant will start early next year. United Traction Co., Albany.—Wage Scale Extended.—General Manager A. E. Reynolds announces that the present wage scale which terminated Nov. 1 1922, will remain in force for another six months, or until May 1 1923. ## INDUSTRIAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

The following brief items touch the most important developments in the industrial world during the past week, together with a summary of similar news published in full detail in last week's "Chronicle" either under "Editorial Comment" or "Current Events and Discussions."

Steel and Iron Production, Prices, &c.

The "Iron Age" Nov. 23 said in brief:

"With operations well sustained at the high rate recently reached, which is but little under 80%, consumption of steel keeps close step with production. New buying is still slack in view of the uncertainties as to prices for the first quarter of 1923.

Prices.—"The week's developments point to the continuance of the 3.35c. basis for black sheets and of $4 75 per base box for tin plate, though no announcement has been made by the Steel Corporation to date.

"The testing out of the 2c. price for plates, shapes and bars shows that supply and demand are just now nearer an equilibrium in finished steel than in pig iron. Some mills have gone $1 to $2 a ton below the 2c. level, car material in particular showing concessions.

"Some weakness has developed in hoops, bands and hot-rolled strip steel, as indicated by sales at 2.75c. as against 2.90c. recently. Wire and tubular products show more activity and more firmness than other lines.

"Pig iron markets continue weak and declines of $1 to $2 on foundry and basic grades are noted in important Northern centres. But it is significant that large melters are quietly sounding the market and the buying of considerable tonnages at no distant date would not be surprising. The Pennsylvania RR. has bought from 6,000 to 8,000 tons of foundry iron and the Steel Corporation has closed in the East for 6,000 tons of basic for its Pencoyd plant. This last purchase is due to car shortage, preventing delivery of pig iron from Steel Corporation furnaces in the Pittsburgh district.

"Ups and downs in blast furnace coke are being registered week by week and are keeping buyers on the alert. After selling as low as $6 50 late last week, standard beehive coke has strengthened to $7 25 and a contract for 23,000 tons, delivery to the end of the year, was put through at $7 50.

Production.—"Mills still have overdue deliveries of considerable volume and are counting on operating at the present rate well into the first quarter, barring winter blockades. Car shortages continue, but mills in the Pittsburgh and nearby districts, where congestion has been greatest, have not been obliged to add to their piled-up product.

"The river barge shipments of finished steel from Carnegie Steel Co. mills, started this week, are expected to grow in importance.

RR. Orders.—"The inquiries of the railroads have added from 175 to 225 locomotives and nearly 7,000 cars to the pending lists. Actual purchases include 50 locomotives but not much over 500 cars.

Other Orders.—"Activity in fabricated steel work is still of unusual promise, involving awards of 21,000 tons in sizable projects and new inquiries of 37,000 tons. Three-fourths of the latter are covered by the Philadelphia-Camden bridge, a Missouri River bridge at St. Charles, and a public service power station at Chicago. Bureau of Census figures for bookings in October were 122,000 tons, or 15% less than the average of the last four months.

"Automobile companies are still liberal buyers of steel bars, though deliveries on some of this business will not be made until late in the first quarter. Demand has sprung up also in the implement trade for steel bars and steel specialties.

"Germany got the 5,250 tons of rails placed last week by the Imperial Government Railways of Japan at about $8 per ton less than the American bid. For the first time since the war it was given out by Japan that German bids would be entertained. This week 7,000 tons of 100-lb. rails will be bought for Korea by the South Manchuria Ry. Co. British mills expect the 21,370 tons of rails pending for Manchuria to go to the Continent.

"The Standard Oil Co. has bought 150,000 boxes of tin plate in Wales for use in its foreign trade. At low prices Welsh mills have regained from the United States all their tin plate trade on Canada's Pacific Coast."

Coal Production, Prices, &c.

The "Coal Trade Journal" Nov. 22 reported market conditions as follows:

"Changes the past week favored the consumers, both in the matter of supplies and prices. While transportation disabilities continue the chief drawback on production, there has been some improvement on this score. West of the Mississippi River, however, these gains have been offset by increasing 'no market' losses.

"Changes in spot quotations were numerous last week. Compared with the figures for the week preceding, only 37.2% of the prices held, while 72.7% of the changes registered represented reductions. These ranged from 10 cents to $1 15 per ton and averaged 34.2 cents. Advances ranged from 5 cents to $2 (the latter being due to the disappearance of low spot quotations on smokeless coal) and averaged 42.3 cents. Inasmuch as there has been little, if any, smokeless tonnage available at the $3 50-$4 50 range in recent weeks, the $2 advance in minimum quotations on that coal is nominal. The average minimum price for all coals quoted was $3 49 per ton, against $3 63 the preceding week, while the average maximum dropped from $4 53 to $4 07.

"Outside of the zone of Lake coal trading, steam business in the Eastern markets showed no particular snap. There was a steady stream of buying, but it moved so regularly that it created little stir, although failing car supply, notably in central Pennsylvania, caused some tightening in prices.

Baltimore and Boston led in surface indifference towards conditions with respect to supply, with Buffalo and Detroit continuing their attitude of watchful waiting. In the Middle West the greatest improvement appeared in the Chicago market. In the Southeast domestic demand was keen, but steam trade was inclined to drag.

"Lake dumpings up to the morning of Nov. 13 totaled 15,835,628 tons, as compared with 21,623,964 tons for the same period last year, 20,579,513 tons in 1920 and 21,222,535 tons in 1919. The Lake movement is entering into its last stages. The present outlook is that the Northwest will be compelled to draw heavily upon Illinois and Indiana for all-rail supplies.

"Anthracite operations, which were rapidly recovering from Election and Armistice Day losses, estimated at 300,000 tons, are now suffering from the drought in the regions. Demand for domestic sizes continues as keen as ever. The coke trade is still moving upward on the production side, but prices are very unsettled."

The U. S. Geological Survey Nov. 18 reported in brief as follows:

"Preliminary estimates on coal production last week (Nov. 6-11), as revised by later reports, reflecting the curtailed output because of Election Day and Armistice Day put the total coal raised at 11,939,000 net tons. Early returns on car loadings at mines this week (Nov. 13-18) indicate 13,200,000 net tons, comprising 11,100,000 tons of soft coal and 2,100,000 tons of anthracite.

"Working time in the bituminous coal fields last week counted for approximately 5.5 days, and on that basis the rate of daily output was higher than in preceding weeks. The indicated rate of production this week assuming full-time operation, shows a further increase.

"The estimated cumulative production of bituminous coal this year to Nov. 11 inclusive stands at 332,668,000 tons, which is 21,541,000 tons, or 6% less than in the corresponding period of 1921; 137,385,000 tons, or 29% less than in 1920; 77,734,000 tons, or 19% less than in 1919; 177,534,000 tons, or 35% less than in 1918, and 143,856,000 tons, or 30% less than in 1917.

Gross earnings for the 12 months ended Oct. 31 1922 were $5,511,267 and the net income was $716,825, or an increase of more than 87% as compared with the 12 months ended Oct. 31 1921. Net income for the 12 months ending Oct. 31 1922, before deducting special amortization charges, was at the rate of 3.54% per annum on the outstanding Common stock.—V. 115, p. 1944, 1635.

Aetna Life Insurance Co.—New President.—

Morgan B. Brainard of Hartford, Conn., has been elected President of this company, the Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., and the Automobile Insurance Co. of Hartford to succeed the late Morgan G. Bulkeley.—V. 106, p. 819.

Albaugh-Dover Co.—Committee.—

Advices from Chicago state that a meeting of some of the larger creditors was held recently for the purpose of considering the financial situation of the company and appoonting a temporary committee to arrange for an audit of the books and an analysis of the company's affairs, this committee to later submit a definite plan to the creditors.

Members of the committee are E. W. Buck, A. E. George and E. M. Wallgren.—V. 112, p. 2539, 1743.

Alliance Realty Co.—25% Stock Dividend.—

American Bosch Magneto Corp.—To Prosecute Case.—

The special War Frauds Grand Jury setting at Washington, D. C., on Nov. 17, abandoned its investigation into the sale of the Bosch Magneto Co. The report of Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, states that "we, the Grand Jurors of the United States, in and for the District of Columbia, do find that a conspiracy existed in the case of the sale of the Bosch Magneto Co., but the overt act or acts having been committed outside of the District of Columbia, and therefore upon advice of the attorney representing the Government the Grand Jury is compelled to cease its further investigation."

The sale of the Bosch Magneto Co. was handled by A. Mitchell Palmer as Alien Property Custodian and Francis P. Garvan as Chief Investigator. Otto Heins, former Pres. of the company, contends that the plant was sold to Martin E. Kern and associates for about one-fourth its actual market value.

It is stated that the Government will proceed at once to bring requisite action in the case in whatever jurisdiction the alleged conspiracy was committed.—V. 115, p. 2049, 1841.

American Hominy Co.—Readjustment Plan.—The protective committee (E. C. King, Chairman) for the 1st Mtge. 7% Serial Gold bonds announces that it has negotiated an agreement for readjustment with the creditor banks and with the company. The plan for readjustment will be declared operative by the committee provided it is generally approved by the bondholders and if declared operative will become effective as of Jan. 1 1923. The committee says in part:

With the co-operation of the bondholders this plan can be put through promptly without the expenses incident to a receivership and foreclosure sale and without any expense whatever to bondholders.

We believe that this plan protects the interests of the bondholders and will prove a satisfactory adjustment for them. They are not called upon to sacrifice any of their present security and will receive a substantial cash payment toward the reduction of the debt and all without expense to them.

Further, the plan assures the friendly co-operation of the creditor banks since in their own interests as holders of a large unsecured funded debt we may confidently expect them to supply the funds required for the company's current operations provided the company's progress justifies their continued confidence.

Bondholders have the right within 30 days to withdraw their bonds upon the payment of their share of the expense of the committee to date.

The bonds now undeposited amount to approximately $700,000. If a receivership and a forced liquidation occurs this will be due to lack of co-operation by the holders of these bonds. If the plan is not declared operative on or before April 1 1923, or is amended in a manner materially affecting the rights of bondholders, you can withdraw bonds. However, with full co-operation on the part of the bondholders, we believe that the proposed plan of adjustment can not only be declared effective but substantially carried through before that date.

The time for deposit of bonds will expire on Dec. 20 1922. Depositaries are Bankers Trust Co., 14 Wall St., New York, and Merchants Loan & Trust Co., Chicago.

Brief Outline of Readjustment Plan Dated Nov. 10 1922.

Among other things the plan provides: (1) A cash payment of 20% on all bonds outstanding irrespective of maturity upon the payment of the insurance moneys due by reason of the fire loss at Terre Haute. This will reduce the amount secured by the mortgage from $2,500,000 to $2,000,000.

(2) The exchange of the remaining 80% of bonds outstanding for new 10-year 1st Mtge. 6% Gold bonds with the same security as the present issue, with provision that when the bonds mature or are called for payment they will be paid at such a premium as will net the holders the same rate of interest which the present bonds bear, viz., 7%.

The reason for this provision is to reduce the fixed charges as much as possible during the next few years, and since the banks are agreeing under a similar agreement to reduce the interest on their debt to be funded, which amounts to approximately $1,250,000, to 5%, the total reduction in int. charges will amount approximately to $32,500 per year, which will be a substantial factor in assisting the company to rehabilitate itself. The provisions of the present mortgage with respect to net quick assets will be waived.

(3) The only cash or securities which may be surrendered to the company to purchase new plant or equipment or to replace the loss by fire at Terre Haute and to restore production capacity will be such as may remain with the trustee after payment of the 20% to bondholders, and this amount will not exceed approximately $100,000. Any new plant or equipment that may be purchased through this expenditure will come under the lien of the mortgage.

(4) Payment of the interest maturing on Jan. 1 1923 on the present issue of bonds at the rate of 7%. This will necessitate the advancing of cash by the banks which they are willing to do when and if the proposed plan is declared operative.

(5) The creditor banks will fund into 5-year unsecured 5% debentures, thus postponing payment of 1% of their interest, all but $500,000 of their present loans, which amount will be left as a current unsecured debt.

(6) Commencing on Jan. 1 1925 company will set aside annually 60% of its net earnings in a sinking fund (providing the remaining 40% equals at least $100,000): one-half of the sinking fund will be used to retire 1st Mtge. bonds by call in the order of the present serial maturities. The other half will be used to retire the debentures.

(7) The voting control will be vested in three voting trustees, one of whom will be the direct representative of the bondholders and another approved by the bondholders' representative. The third will represent the banks.—V. 115, p. 871, 185.

American International Corp.—Subsidiary Makes Settlement With Colombian Debtor On Loan For Dock Construction, &c.—

Pres. Matthew C. Brust of G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., a subsidiary, says:

"G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., has made final settlement with the Department of El Valle del Cauca, Columbia, of the loan made by the company to the department in 1919 and 1920 for the purpose of constructing a dock at the Port of Buenaventura. The department has delivered to the company $1,205,000 7% 10-year external sinking fund gold bonds. These bonds have a lien on the revenues derived from liquor, tobacco and slaughter house taxes, and machinery has been set up for the collection, deposit and remittance of service funds to the Bankers Trust Co., New York, trustee of the bonds.

"The revenues upon which the bonds are a lien, are about eight times the annual requirements for bond service, and the bonds are additionally secured by a mortgage on the dock. It is expected that the National Government will shortly purchase this dock. The arrangement between G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., and the Department has been sanctioned by the National Government of Colombia and the bonds bear the signature of the Colombian minister to the United States on behalf of the department."

The "Boston News Bureau" Nov. 6 stated in brief: "G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., has cleared up its affairs so that collections and inventory problems are now secondary, and extent of liquidation is indicated by the fact that bills, notes and accounts payable, which in July 1920 were about $23,000,000, were at end of Sept. 1922 a little under $6,000,000, while receivables were reduced from $26,300,000 to $10,000,000, the latter amount consisting, in part, of current accounts not due and overdue accounts secured by collateral. Inventories by close of September had been reduced to $1,636,000 from $4,000,000 in July 1920.

"Export business of G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., while reduced in volume, due to elimination of small orders, is steady and profitable, and practically no credit losses have been suffered this year."—V. 115, p. 1635.

A Montreal dispatch Nov. 17 states that the final details in connection with the reorganization plan has been completed, and that the new organization, which will be known as Ames-Holden-McCready, Ltd., will start operations with a clean sheet and with new cash capital to the extent of approximately $1,000,000.

Final arrangements have been made at the Royal Trust Co., for the release of the company from its guarantee of the Ames-Holden Tire bonds and the release of the Common stock holding in the Tire Co. by the parent company. Checks amounting to over $250,000 were also sent out by D. Lorne McGibbon to creditors of Ames-Holden-McCready. This represents 40 cents on the dollar to creditors who preferred to take settlement upon that basis in cash, rather than have their claims paid in Preferred stock of the reorganized company, as provided for under the reorganization plan.

Ames-Holden Felt Co., Ltd., producing felt footwear and all kinds of felt for industrial purposes, has been merged with the new company.

Austin Nichols & Co., Inc., N. Y.—Sales. &c.—

President C. W. Patterson says:

"Operations of our wholesale grocery houses for the first nine months ended Oct. 31, as compared with the corresponding period of last year, show an increase in sales of 7%. Net profits for the period are substantially in excess of Preferred dividend requirement for the entire year. This being exclusive of the earnings of our canning operations, which are determined yearly, and as the succeeding three months are usually most active and profitable, we look forward for a very satisfactory showing for the year.—114, p. 2363.

Avery Co., Chicago.—Refinancing Plan.—A refinancing plan has been announced to provide for immediate financial requirements and to carry the company through the 1923 manufacturing season.

The plan provides for the sale of $1,740,000 10-Year 8% Debentures subordinated to all other debt, which will be taken by A. C. Becker & Co. and First Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, together with other banks holding the company's paper. Such creditors will accept the debentures to the extent of 50% of debt held.

The company will also offer to stockhloders rights to subscribe at $5 a share for 51,808 shares of no par value Common stock. Any of the stock not taken by shareholders will be delivered to A. G. Becker & Co. and the First Trust & Savings Bank under an option to buy it at $5 a share at any time within five years.

Of the total amount of stock taken under option, the bankers will reserve 25% to be assigned at their discretion to any one connected with the company and will hold the remaining 75% for assignment to or in trust for the buyers of the junior securities.

The above plan is expected to relieve the company of pressing financial problems for the next year, during which time it is believed that the present inventory of about $5,000,000 can be materially reduced and the proceeds applied to the reduction of indebtedness.

Pres. J. B. Bartholomew in a letter to stockholders says:

The last few years have been years of great depression in the agricultural implement business owing to the fact that the price of farm products has been low and the buying power of the farmer greatly curtailed. The depression in the agricultural implement business has been particularly severe in the heavier lines such as tractors and power farming machinery, which constitute the main part of the company's business.

The company in the latter part of 1920 sold $3,000,000 10-Year gold notes, the proceeds of which were then estimated to be sufficient to carry the company through to a time when the demand for its products would have recovered. The depression in the industry, and particularly in the heavy machinery lines, has continued longer than any one anticipated, although signs are now multiplying of an increased demand for heavy agricultural machinery and, on the basis of orders and inquiries, our sales force anticipate a very much better business for the year 1923 than we had during 1922.

The trustee under the note agreement and the company's bankers insist that new money, not burdening the company with a fixed interest charge, be put into the business. A mere extension of the present indebtedness will not do, as the company must have new money to go through next year's manufacturing season.

The officers took the matter up with the two houses which underwrote the 10-Year gold notes. They have investigated the company's situation, its financial needs, the quality of its products and its prospects for the future. They are convinced that at bottom the company is sound, that its products are competitively equal or superior to those of its competitors, and, if its finances are now put on a sound footing, that as soon as the demand for heavy agricultural machinery comes back it will get its share of business and again show satisfactory earnings. They state that the heavy business of other agricultural implement companies suffered as much as that of the company in the last two years.—V. 115, p. 2270.

Baldwin Locomotive Works.—Equipment Orders.—

The company has received an order for 50 locomotives from the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. See also V. 115, p. 2270, 2161.

The contract between the Soviet Government and the International Barnsdall Corp. for the development of the Baku oil fields of Russia, has been executed and the company will now proceed to send an engineering force, oil operating executives and oil equipment into the field. See also V. 115, p. 1491, 1735, 2050.

Bates Mfg. Co., Boston.—Stock Increase, &c.—

The stockholders on Nov. 21 voted to increase the authorized capital stock from $2,000,000 (outstanding $1,800,000) to $2,700,000, par $100. It is expected that the directors will shortly declare a 50% stock dividend.

It is announced that the company will erect a new mill in Lewiston, Me., in 1923.—V. 115, p. 2161, 1536.

President L. B. McFarlane, Montreal, Nov. 17, says: "The continued and insistent demand for new telephone service throughout the territory in which we operate calls for additional capital to provide necessary plant and equipment. Additions thus made to our property, as soon as operative, will bring in their quota of profitable revenue and increase the value of the telephone to all users. Since the beginning of this year we have made a ne gain of 25,766 subscribers' stations, the placing of which, together with the additional plant for needful switching capacity, will practically exhaust the proceeds of the last issue of shares. Notwithstanding the extraordinary and ceaseless efforts of our organization to meet the unprecedented demand for telephones, we have approximately 25,000 deferred orders awaiting completion."

Central Warehouse & Refrigeration Co.—Injunction Against Liquidating Dividends.—

Claude Ashbrook, Cincinnati, writing to the "Chronicle" Nov. 17 states that the facts regarding the injunction against the payment of the liquidating dividends by the company are as follows:

The Cincinnati Abattoir Co., which went into the hands of the receiver on May 4 1922, is the owner of the Common stock of the C. W. & R. Co. Working capital was provided by the sale of Class "A" or Preferred stock to approximately 900 investors, most of whom are residents of Cincinnati.

This working capital consisting of $1,000,000 was loaned by the C. W. to the Abattoir and secured by green meats stored in the C. W. in process of curing for account of the Abattoir company, which latter company paid the C. W. interest monthly on these secured loans.

Warehouse receipts were not issued, but the C. W. directors at their monthly meetings invariably had a report of different meats in its possession as collateral.

Following the appointment of a receiver certain creditors raised the question as to the ownership of the meats, which claim the C. W. directors on advice of counsel refused to consider. The receiver of the Abattoir consented to the sale of such meats by the Central Warehouse, the proceeds from which were credited to the open account of the Abattoir company from time to time as meats were sold.

A stockholders' committee representing Class "A" stockholders of the C. W. was organized for protection of Class "A" stockholders, and these gentlemen together with the directors of the C. W. decided to distribute the proceeds from the sale of the meat amounting to $400,000 as a 40% liquidating dividend to Class "A" stockholders.

The Abattoir receiver had not made any move to enjoin the directors from such distribution of assets, but anticipating that he might do so, the stockholders' protective committee made a mandatory demand in writing upon the C. W. directors, that the 40% liquidating dividend be paid to Class "A" stockholders.

These dividend checks were, therefore, issued and certified by the First National Bank of Cincinnati and were intended for distribution among the 900 Class "A" stockholders. The certified checks were then delivered to the Citizens National Bank of Cincinnati, which institution acted as depositary for the Class "A" stock. The citizens National Bank succeeded in distributing about one-half ot the $400,000 as stockholders presented their certificates of deposit for indorsement of the payment.

At this juncture the Abattoir receiver obtained a temporary injunction from the Probate Court enjoining the First National Bank from the payment of its certified checks and also enjoining the Citizens National Bank from distributing any additional checks to stockholders. This precipitated a curious and almost an unprecedented situation in local bank circles.

It was found that the Citizens National Bank had delivered to stockholders certified checks amounting to $187,000, of which somewhat in excess of $100,000 had previously been paid, leaving a balance, or roughly, $87,000 of certified checks held by fortunate stockholders and local banks which had taken them for deposit.

Incidentally, on the day of the injunction the First National Bank was compelled to dishonor its own certified checks by refusing payment through the clearing house, or on presentation at bank.

A week later the injunction so far as the checks previously delivered by the Citizens National Bank and in the hands of the public, was raised, but that part of the temporary injunction enjoining the Citizens National Bank from proceeding to distribute certified checks aggregating $213,000 is still in force.

The C. W. & R. Co. is a Delaware corporation and the injunction suit was this week transferred to the United States District Court. The question to be determined, of course, is the right of the C. W. to sell the meats held by it as collateral and distribute the proceeds in liquidation to its stockholders.

There was produced a total of 24,225 dry tons of concentrates, averaging 19.80% copper, equivalent to a recovery of 19.23 lbs. of copper per dry ton of ore treated, as compared with 13,568 dry tons of an average grade of 25.42% copper and a recovery of 21.22 lbs. per dry ton of ore treated during the second quarter.

Of the total material removed, 388,544 cu. yds. was stripping, the remainder being equal to 601,585 tons of ore of an average grade, according to mine sampling and assaying, of 1.405% copper. The difference between the tons of ore mined and the tons of ore milled is accounted for by low-grade oxidized ore sent to storage.—V. 115, p. 992.

Choate Oil Corp.—Forms Syndicate to Buy Property.—
The holders of the 3-year 7% Sinking Fund Conv. gold bonds and the 5-year 8% Sinking Fund Conv. gold notes are in receipt of a letter dated Nov. 17 from their respective committees informing them of the present situation, summarized briefly as follows:
The Committees exhausted every means to merge the corporation with other oil properties, believing that if this could be done it would probably be the best solution of the Choate problem but nothing along these lines could be accomplished.
The court had set Nov. 25 1922 as the date of final sale of the assets and the following plan is recommended as the only one that affords an opportunity of protecting the interests of the bond and noteholders at the sale.
It is believed that if the property can be purchased at the receiver's sale for about $250,000 a profit can be made on the transaction and the only way to raise the money is to give every bondholder and noteholder an opportunity to join a syndicate, which syndicate upon receipt of sufficient funds, may purchase the property. The bondholders and noteholders who subscribe, it is believed, will not only get back their contributions made for this purpose, but, in addtion, may receive some re-payment upon their original investment. If an insufficient fund is raised to purchase the property, subscriptions will be returned without any expenses.
The West End Trust Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has consented to act as depository for this fund and the committees request that subscriptions be made at the earliest possible moment.
A group of stockholders is being formed for a similar purpose and it may develop that this Syndicate and the stockholders group may combine, if it is necessary to do so, to protect the property from an outside bidder.
The Committees are: (1) For the notes: George C. Priestly, Chairman· Ellis Jackson, Charles E. Wolbert, Herbert W. Goodall, with W. W. Delamater, Sec., and Roberts, Montgomery & McKeehan, Counsel. Corn Products Refining Co.—Complaint Filed by Federal Trade Commission—Chairman Bedford Replies.—
Declaring that the company "makes the market," and through the medium of guarantees against price declines in table syrups has eliminated the competition of smaller companies, the Federal Trade Commission announced Nov. 19 that it had issued a formal complaint against the company, requiring an answer in thirty days, after which a date for a hearing will be fixed.
In an extended statement the Commission explains that through the operation of the price guarantee system the company has been able to force other competitors to lose their customers through lack of comparable resources. The Commission stated that it had made a preliminary inquiry upon the subject of decline in price at the instance of members of the corn products industry, who believed this to be unfair competition. The Trade Board statement says in part:
"The company manufactures and sells both glucose and table syrups. Among the competitors are a number of manufacturers known in the trade as syrup mixers, who make syrups but do not manufacture glucose, purchasing their requirements of glucose from the Corn Products Co., and competing only in the sale of table syrups. This is important in view of the fact that guarantee against decline in price is given by the company on table syrups, a competitive product, but not on glucose, with respect to which there is no competition between the syrup mixing firms and the Corn Products Refining Co.
By reason of a dominant position in the industry, arising from financial strength and plant capacity, the company is alleged to "make the market" on glucose and table syrups and that its competitors of necessity must follow its prices. The company, the complaint recites, has a Capital stock of $80,000,000 and grinds 22,500,000 bushels of maize per annum, which is over one-half of the combined capacity of all glucose manufacturers in the United States. Its total maize grinding capacity is 45,000,000 bushels per annum. Its nearest competitor grinds 9,000,000 bushels of maize per year. As to the actual production of glucose, the company frequently produces a greater quantity per annum than all other producers in the aggregate. As to table syrup sold, the company manufactures and markets a much greater quantity than any of its competitors.
Chairman E. T. Bedford, in connection with the above complaint, issued the following statement:
"Guarantee against price decline is given by practically all large manufacturers who distribute their advertised package goods under their own label through the wholesale grocer. It prevents speculation and effects uninterrupted distribution, resulting in economies in both manufacturing and cost of transportation as well as cost of selling, all of which are in the best interest of the ultimate consumer, who, by reason of the guaranteed price, gets a lower price and the immediate benefit of any decline in price.
"This guarantee was given by this company on all its package goods sold under its own labels when, in 1912, it discontinued the packing of the private buyer's label, which at that time constituted a large portion of its business. The company has not entered into competition for this business since that date.
"It establishes prices only for its own advertised products, the prices of which are never lower than those of competing products made by other manufacturers. It is the minority manufacturer and seller of glucose, which, as a raw material sold in bulk direct to the consumer at comparatively small margins of profit in competition with sugar and other materials, fluctuates in price more often and is not guaranteed against decline either by ourselves or any other manufacturer. The productive capacity for this product is more than twice the world's requirements. This agrressive competition of syrup, as charged, more properly is chargeable to other glucose manufacturers, who manufacture syrup and sell more directly in competition with the mixer in the packing of the private label.
"There is more than one glucose manufacturer whose capacity for producing glucose is equal to that of the requirements of all the syrup sold in the United States and there are other glucose manufacturers equipped with all the facilities we possess, having their own can plants, &c., who have sufficient capacity to supply all the requirements. As a matter of fact, if none of the Corn Products plants were operating, the consumer, both for glucose and syrup, could be supplied with all requirements. Supply and demand make prices. The lowest seller fixes them and our competitors have had the monopoly of that privilege."—V. 115, p. 1946, 1637.

Nevada Consolidated Copper Co.—53d Quarterly Report.

| | July. | August. | Sept. | Total. | Av. Mthly. Prod. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Third quarter | 2,065,053 | 1,509,353 | 1,203,894 | 4,778,300 | 1,592,766 |
| | April. | May. | June. | Total. | Av. Mthly. Prod. |
| Second quarter | 2,145,892 | 5,103,277 | 4,286,741 | 11,535,910 | 3,845,303 |

A total of 41,936 dry tons of Nevada Consolidated ore, averaging 1.505% copper, was milled, and 34,678 dry tons of Ruth Mine direct smelting ore, averaging 6.127% copper, was received at the smelter. In addition to the company ores, there was purchased and smelted 1,667 dry tons of custom ore, averaging 5.912% copper.

The cost of production per pound of copper, including all fixed and general expenses, other than Federal taxes, and including also the exceptional expenses incident to the enforced suspension of operations caused by the destruction of the concentrator by fire, on July 9, and the consequent burdening of the ordinary, as well as extraordinary, expenses upon a limited production, was 17.48 cents per pound. This cost does not include credit for gold and silver values and miscellaneous earnings, which amounted to 0.98 cents per pound of copper.

| Financial Results (1922)— | 3d Quarter. | 2d Quarter |
|---|---|---|
| Operating loss | $171,083 | $103,309 |
| Shutdown exp. & miscel. non-operating costs | ------ | 130,910 |
| Miscel. earnings & value of gold and silver | 46,804 | 89,803 |
| Decrease in surplus account | $124,278 | $144,415 |

Reconstruction of Concentrating Plant.—Has progressed rapidly and satisfactorily. The erection of the steel superstructure and the installation of sufficient equipment in one section of the mill, having a capacity of treating an average of 1,000 tons of ore daily, was completed and turned over for continuous operation Sept. 16. The interval between the burning of the mill on July 9 and the starting of operation on Sept. 16 was 69 days.

The construction of steel ore binds, erection of the main concentrator building and the installation of machinery and equipment has continued with satisfactory progress. The steel building superstructure for two units, or one-half the original mill, is practically erected, and the fine ore bins of steel construction are completed for one unit. The necessary equipment for crushing, grinding and concentrating an average of 2,000 tons of ore per day has been installed and is under operation. Additional equipment will be in operation by Nov. 30, giving a nominal capacity of about 3,000 tons of ore per day, with an average recovery of 80% of the copper contained in the ore. Commencing with December, the treatment of the concentrate product of this tonnage, together with an adequate quantity of high-grade direct smelting ore from the Ruth Mine, will result in restoring the production of copper to the curtailed rate of output prevailing when the fire occurred.

By the middle of January, the steel ore binds for both units will be completed and the reconstructed facilities will have a capacity approximately equal to that at which the concentrator was operating at the time of the fire. By the end of March two complete units, containing 18 grinding mills, will have been rebuilt and equipped, which will give a capacity to mill of from 7,500 to 9,000 tons of ore per day. This, exclusive of metal recovered from the Ruth high-grade ores, will give a production of from 5 to 7 million pounds per month, depending upon operating conditions and production requirements.

Buildings and equipment for the third unit have been ordered for erection and installation when spring weather opens. When these are completed the mill will have a capacity in excess of the four units of the original plant and will be capable of producing approximately ten million pounds of copper per month.—V. 115, p. 994, 757.

The New York "Sun" Nov. 24 says in part: "Trading in shares of the company, listed only yesterday [Nov. 23] on the Stock Exchange, was ordered suspended late to-day at the conclusion of a special meeting of the Exchange Governing Committee.

"An overnight collapse in quotations and a wide difference in quotations on subsidiary stock listed on the Curb Market, caused the suspension. The Curb Market early to-day prohibited trading in the subsidiary stock yesterday 30 letters of recommendation had been received from prominent financial institutions here and in other cities.

"The Stock Exchange Committee said that prior to listing of the shares

"Fluctuations on the Stock Exchange curb were violent yesterday. First quotations on the Stock Exchange yesterday were $32, but to-day the stock was offered at $28 and later as low as $10 with no bids. On the curb the subsidiary stock yesterday jumped between $2 and $8 a share, and this morning the order was issued by curb officials prohibiting trading.

"Stock Exchange officials were reticent to-day, declining to comment beyond admitting that several committees were investigating the trading. The only explanation at the North American Oil offices was that a delay in transmitting certificates to be exchanged resulted in confusion. There still are about 25,000 shares of North American Oil & Refining out-standing.

The report covering the quarter ending Sept. 30 1922 shows:

| 3d Quarter— | July. | August. | September. | Total. | Av. Mthly. Prod. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2d Quarter— | April. | May. | June. | Total. | Av. Mthly. Prod. |

In addition to copper derived from concentrates there was a total of 217,328 pounds of copper contained in ore sent direct to the smelter. This, combined with the copper contained in the concentrates, brings the total net production from both sources, after allowing smelter deduction, up to 10,079,470 lbs., as compared with 5,624,243 lbs. for the previous quarter.

There were milled 436,000 dry tons, averaging 1.57% of copper, an average daily tonnage of 4,739 tons, as compared with an average of 2,996 tons per day for the actual operating days of the pervious quarter. The mill recovery was 75.23% of the total copper contained in concentrating ores, as compared with 73.43% for the previous quarter. The underground development was 3,514 ft., making the total development to date 790,711 ft.

The milling cost for the quarter, including the customary proportion of fixed and general expense, was 97.22 cents per ton, as compared with $1 38 per ton for the previous quarter. The average mining cost of ore milled was $1 14 per ton, including the usual charge of 15 cents per ton for the retirement of prepaid mine development expense. Of this total 2.313 cents was the cost of coarse crushing and loading, leaving a net mining cost of $1 12 per ton, as compared with $1 52 for the previous quarter.

The average cost per pound of net copper produced was 13.51 cents, as compared with a cost of 18.03 cents for the previous quarter. This figure includes all general expenses other then Federal income taxes, and also takes into account credit for the value of gold and silver.

Miscellaneous income amounted to .326 cents per pound, resulting in a net cost of 13.18 cents per pound as compared with 16.92 cents for the previous quarter.

| Financial Results 1922— | 3d Quar. | 2d Quar. |
|---|---|---|
| Operating profit | $22,095 loss | $312,069 |
| Miscellaneous income and gold and silver | 35,704 | 64,201 |

The average carrying price of copper for the third quarter was 13.760 cents, as compared with a carrying price of 13.026 cents for the previous quarter.—V. 115, p. 996.

The assets to be acquired from Becker Milling Machine Co. and it subsidiary, Whitcomb-Blaisdell Mach. Tool Co., include:

(a) Good will, &c. (b) Certain machinery and equipment necessary for manufacture of Becker & Whitcomb lines, having a fair cash value of $40,000. (c) Certain raw materials and supplies, having a fair cash value of $10,000. (d) The entire inventories of finished machines and cutters having a book value on Aug. 31 1922 of $270,000. (e) Such portion of the semi-manufactured inventories as Reed may determine to be worth the cost of moving estimated to have a book value of from $230,000 to $250,000.

For the foregoing assets the company will pay (1) $175,000 in cash, representing $50,000 payment for machinery and raw materials and $125,000 initial advance payment on account of finished inventories. For finished inventories Reed will pay in cash in addition to the $125,000 any sums that may eventually be realized from sales in excess of this amount after allowance for interest, expenses and a sales commission of 15% of the net sales price.

(2) 2,300 shares of Common stock (no par value) to Preferred stockholders of Becker in the proportion of one share of Reed Common in exchange for each 5 shares of Becker Preferred outstanding.

(3) Warrants entitling the Becker Preferred and Common stockholders to subscribe in the aggregate to $5,525 additional shares of Reed Common stock at $50 per share on or before May 1 1923.

All properties and assets of Becker and Whitcomb, not taken over by Reed and which will consist primarily of plants, buildings and machinery, and raw material and supplies, will be sold or otherwise disposed of and the affairs of each company will be finally liquidated and wound up. Reed will undertake the liquidation for a commission of 10% on the net proceeds realized from the sale of such personal property.

All cash received from the liquidation and sale of properties will, after the payment of liquidating expenses, first be applied to the payment of prior claims and certain accounts payable. Becker noteholders will receive in full satisfaction and discharge of their claims the balance of the cash proceeds pro rata until such notes are paid in full with interest. It is estimated that there will be available for immediate distribution sufficient cash to provide for a partial payment to Becker noteholders of not less than 25% of the principal amount of their claims.

The time limit fixed for the deposit by Becker stockholders of stock certificates is Dec. 15 1922, unless extended.

Skelly Oil Co.—Report for Third Quarter of 1922.—
President W. G. Skelly, Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 14, says in substance:
In spite of the decline of crude oil prices in July and Aug. and a persistence of the lower price, the company and its subsidiaries were able to earn during the quarter a net of $1,634,064 available for surplus and reserves, of which $1,102,979 was allocated to reserves for depletion, depreciation, &c., leaving a net surplus of $531,085. For the 9 months ended Sept. 30 the consolidated net earnings, after all charges, including reserves for depletion, depreciation, &c., were $1,631,674.
Business is showing the most gratifying progress in all directions. As against average daily net oil production in the year 1920 of 4,480 barrels, and 7,875 barrels in 1921, and 8,075 barrels in the first six months of 1922, the average daily net oil production for the quarter was as follows: July, 11,122 bbls.; Aug., 11,624 bbls.; Sept., 11,759 bbls. The prospect is that the company's average daily net oil production in the fourth quarter of 1922 will leagely exceed even these figures.
It is likely that by Feb. next the company's crude oil in storage on its four tank farms will approximate 2,000,000 barrels. Of this amount the company has placed in storage already about 750,000 barrels.

Net quick assets on that date were over 1¾ times the principal amount of these bonds.

Net profits for the past 6½ years ended June 30 1922, are reported to average $340,257 per annum, or more than 3 times the maximum annual interest charges on these bonds.—V. 114, p. 1296.

COMMERCIAL EPITOME.

Friday Night, Nov. 24 1922.

With colder weather retail trade is better. Besides, employment is now universal throughout this country, labor is in sharp demand, wages are high, and buying power is greater than it was a year ago. Wholesale and jobbing business is fair. Holiday businses is expanding. It is true that there is a lull in business in cotton goods for the time being, although woolens are selling better than they did recently during the prolonged warm spell. Temperatures have been down to the freezing point hereabouts of late and naturally this has had a more or less stimulating effect on the clothing trade. And prices of textiles have remained firm. One interesting and cheering development this week is a noticeable increase in the supply of cars. Trade is not so much hampered as it was. There is still room for much improvement, but the trend seems to be in the right direction. Flour and other supplies are arriving here on a larger scale, so much so that this fact has become a feature of some of the markets. And cotton, after some depression, has latterly advanced with exports to-day not much below 75,000 bales, and spinners' takings for the week so large as to suggest that a great deal more cotton is going into consumption than is generally supposed, although much of the business, is appears, is being done at the interior towns. Poland, it appears, has bought some 50,000 bales of American cotton. And wheat exports continue to be large, and for the first time this season overtop the total for the same time last year, having reached some 207,600,000 bushels, an increase over this date last year of about 6,000,000 bushels. Corn exports are also running ahead of those of last year. Cotton exports are still nearly 300,000 bales less for the season to date, but it is believed that Europe is simply buying from hand to mouth for a time owing to the state of its currencies, although it is also true that England has been buying more East Indian cotton this year than usual.

Meanwhile the buying power of this country is rising, not only because of high wages and general employment, but also for the reason that the South is getting good prices for cotton and tobacco. Trade at the South feels this stimulus. Also, it is noted that the recent advance in grain prices has had a somewhat beneficial effect on Western trade. Recent reports of mail order business have been gratifying. Another heartening feature is that fuel prices are declining, or at any rate, those for soft coal. The demand for bituminous coal has latterly fallen off, apparently for the reason that with increasing supplies buyers are looking for still lower prices and are therefore playing a waiting game. It is stated that the Northwestern States now have an adequate supply of soft coal. On the other hand, it is noticeable that anthracite coal prices keep up, although the output is the highest thus far this year. Meanwhile pig iron and steel prices are gradually falling, with production large and buyers here, as in the bituminous trade, holding aloof for a better buying basis. Building continues on a large scale, although a strike of 125,000 bricklayers is threatened at New York on something like $100,000,000 worth of work. The department stores in this city and others in different parts of the country report a good business, especially with the fall in the temperature. Taking the list of commodities in general there have been more declines in the past week than advances, although previous to this week it was more apt to be the other way about . Also, there has been some increase in failures. Raw wool has been quiet, with prices firm, however, at home and abroad. Farmers are selling their grain more freely, as cars become more plentiful, and better prices furnish an incentive to market their products. They are still handicapped by the high prices of other products, but it is said that farm hands, now that winter is approaching, are finding plenty of work in mines, mills and factories. Salaried workers in the big cities, notably clerks and so forth, are not so favorably circumstanced, for their wages have not advanced on anything like the same proportions as those of the artisan population.

The labor question still looms up as a menacing factor not to be ignored. And now a big building tie-up in New York is threatened. The trouble is between the bricklayers' union and building trades' employers over the matter of employing members of the independent union. On Nov. 21 the members of the Mason Builders' Association voted to lock out all union bricklayers next Monday, unless on or before that date the bricklayers who have struck return to work. Union officials said that this ultimatum undoubtedly would result in a complete tie-up of building in the metropolitan district, as they would not return their men to work with independent helpers and laborers. They threatened to begin on Nov. 22 to put strikes in effect on construction jobs throughout the city where those to whom they object are employed, adding that 7,000 to 8,000 union bricklayers might be made idle. Several million dollars of construction work already is tied up by strike of some bricklayers, the Mason Builders' Association have learned. How long is this kind of thing to go on? As the case now stands, amazing as it sounds, a bricklayer, it is stated, gets $12 a day for laying 300 bricks, or close to $1 for laying two dozen bricks; that is something more than the farmer at one time recently, if not now, got for a bushel of wheat, which took him half a year to raise and send to market, in contrast with the labor of the bricklayer in a mere fraction of a day. There is evidently something wrong here. In fact, it is so distinctly wrong that the ills of the farmer are attracting increasing attention everywhere. It is a grave drawback in the whole business situation in the United States to have the buying power of about 55% of the population seriously curtailed by the unfortunate position in which the farmer finds himself placed by reason of the high cost of labor and resulting high prices. Labor is getting more than its share of the fruits of industry. That fact is self-evident. And it threatens to handicap industry more and more seriously as time goes on. Wages are, it is stated, at about 90% of the peak level for the industrial group. In some parts of the West it is said farms are being sold out under foreclosure at less than the prices which ruled in 1914. What the farmer has to buy, as has so often been said, costs far more than what he has to sell. It is pointed out that the price of cloths and clothing is fully 80% higher than in 1913, fuel and light 155% higher than then, lumber and building materials 70% higher, and house furnishings 78% higher than just on the eve of the war, while the average rail freight rate is stated at about 57% higher than in 1913. There is talk to the effect that rail freights ought to be reduced. Possibly; but it is computed that the farmer's expense for freight transportation is not more than about 10% of all his expenditures. The pinch comes in the cost of clothing, shelter, etc. But the truth is that labor, for its own benefit and in defiance of society at large, dictated the present immigration laws, which keep down the importation of foreign labor to about 25% of what it was in the two years immediately preceding the war. This threatens to cause something like a corner in labor. The labor pinch becomes more severe as time goes on. It need not exist. Yet industry is cramped by it. Iron and steel mills are running at about 75 to 80%, as against 60% some months ago, but as far as can be seen they might be running at 100% but for the scarcity of labor, and the consequent high cost of the output. Building is on an enormous scale. The October output of automobiles made a new high record for that month. The woolen and worsted industry is operating at 80 to 85%; boot and shoe manufactures at 80% in New England and 100% at St. Louis, and cotton manufactures in New England and at the South at from 80 to 100%. Where plants in various industries run at 80% they would be running at 100 but for scarcity of labor. Everywhere there is a demand for labor. And yet we see the source of supply in Europe dammed up, mischievous legislation keeping out the labor which is so badly needed, solely for the beneft of labor without the smallest regard for the rights of the great mass of an already heavily taxed nation of 107,000,000 people. Steel executives in this country regard the labor problem as the greatest problem confronting the nation's industries in 1923.

On the 21st inst. it was announced that formal notification had been sent to the Amoskeag Mills of Manchester, N. H., by the voting strikers that they had rejected the terms of reemployment offered by the mills by a vote of 99%. It turned out, however, that fewer than 3,000 operatives, or not 20% of the normal complement of the mills, voted on the question. The mills on the 20th and 21st insts. started up more than 1,000 additional looms, and they declare that neither from choice nor necessity will they alter the terms of employment which were tendered the strikers. The strike is generally regarded as broken, as far as the question of hours per week is concerned. The Amoskeag Mills, it was stated on Nov. 23, now have 8,000 operatives at work and 60% of the entire plant is operating in part. The strike at the Pacific Mills at Dover, N. H., has ended after nine months' duration with an acceptance by the workers of the 54-hour week.

Light snows or rain fell in the Texas panhandle on Nov. 21. It has been colder here and on the 23rd inst. the temperature was down to 31 degrees. In Pittsburgh on Nov. 22 the first light snow of the season fell generally throughout western Pennsylvania.

LARD firmer; prime Western, 12.25@12.35c.; refined to Continent, 13.25c.; South American, 13.50c.; Brazil in kegs, 14.50c. Futures have advanced in Chicago regardless of some of the foreign news and easier prices at times at the Chicago stock yards. There was a good demand for cash lard. Pit offerings were light. Hedge selling was small. Clearances of product for Europe were comparatively large. And at interior points stocks are small. To-day prices advanced, ending 17 to 25 points higher for the week.

COFFEE on the spot rather quiet but firm; No. 7 Rio, 10⅞c.; No. 4 Santos, 15@15¼c.; fair to good Cucuta, 15½@15¾c. Futures fluctuated within very narrow bounds early in the week, with an absence of fullish tone, Rio exchange on London down 3-32d., lower coffee prices in Brazil, a reduced short interest, a falling off in the December premium over March to 24 points (against 30 on the 18th inst.), rather free selling of futures by local jobbing interests, and in general a disinclination to buy except on reactions. Prices fell on the 21st inst. with the cables lower and a certain amount of liquidation. On Nov. 23, despite the fact that Brazilian exchange was lower and trade very light, there was an advance of half a dozen points in some months. December was most wanted, which seemed no bad sign. In fact, the buying of December was by trade interests. December is said to be selling well below the replacement price. To-day was first notice day on December contracts, and 24 notices were issued. Prices advanced and ended 14 to 18 points higher than a week ago.

Closing prices were as follows:

SUGAR.—Raws advanced to 3⅞c. for late November shipment with a moderate business early in the week at that price. Refined has not sold freely, however, and early in the week at least there was evidently no great readiness on the part of refiners in general to pay 3⅞c. for Cuban raws. Receipts for the week at Cuban ports were 11,272 tons, against 13,862 last week, 24,060 last year and 1,678 in 1920; exports, 44,092, against 44,650 last week, 62,414 last year and 16,789 in 1920; stock, 108,661, against 141,481 last week, 1,052,526 last year and 265,857 in 1920. Havana cabled that the weather was favorable for the growing crop. On the 21st inst. trading in the December position was small, but the new crop months were rather active, particularly September. Trade interests were the largest buyers, although one house with Cuban connections sold 2,000 tons September, it appears, at 3.77c. The sugar futures' technical position is by some considered bullish. On the 22d inst. trade interests bought December and Cuban interests bought, it was said, some 3,000 tons of March. All Cubas offered at 3⅞c. were taken by refiners. The supply at that price is said to be pretty well cleaned up. On the 23d inst. 4c. was asked for small offerings of Cuban spot raws. To-day was first notice day on the December delivery, and five notices were issued. Western beet up to 7c. Cane here 5c. f. a. s. prompt and 4.60c. distant. Cane refined, 7.10c. for granulated. To-day spot raws were quiet at 4c. for Cuban, with offerings small. Conflicting stories are afloat as regards the sales of new crop Cuba. Western interests report a sharp falling off in the beet crop. Futures advanced here to-day and ended 8 to 15 points higher for the week, the latter on March.

OILS.—Linseed on the spot has been scarce, and while the tone has not improved, the market is described as rather steady. There is a good business in December going on at 82c. per gallon. And there is a better demand for the distant deliveries. Paint and varnish manufacturers are purchasing very sparingly. Spot carloads, 87c.; tanks, 83c.; less than carloads, 90c.; less than 5 bbls., 93c. Cocoanut oil, Ceylon, bbls., 8⅝@8¾c.; Cochin, 9¼@9½c. Corn, crude, 9¼c. Olive, $1 15@$1 17. PETROLEUM.—Crude prices on the 22d inst. were revised. The Mid-Continent crude oil was put on a gravity basis by the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., the largest purchasers and producers. This was done because of the heavy production of low gravity oil in Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas fields, and also because of the fact that some refiners and pipe lines were paying premiums for higher gravity oil, leaving lower gravity oil for the Prairie. New schedules are as follows: Below 28 degrees Baume, 90c.; 28 to 29.9, $1; 30 to 32.9, $1 10; 33 to 34.9, $1 25; 35 to 36.9, $1 40; 37 to 38.9, $1 60; 39 and above, $1 80. This basis does not affect Mexia or Healdton crude oils. Kerosene in good demand and firm. Foreign consumption is very heavy. Gasoline dull and easy. Gas oil quiet but steady. New York prices: Gasoline, cases, cargo lots, 28.75c.; U. S. Navy specifications, bulk, 15.50c.; export naphtha cargo lots, 18c.; 63@66 deg., 21c.; 66 to 68 deg., 22c. Kerosene, cases, cargo lots, 17c.; refined petroleum, tank wagon to store, 15c.; motor gasoline, garages (steel bbls.), 24c. According to the Geological Survey, the daily average production for October increased 14,655 bbls. to 1,524,355 bbls. And daily average imports increased some 21,342 bbls. On the other hand, the daily average consumption amounting to 1,686,097, increased 44,464 bbls. Stocks increased only 1,160,000 bbls., which is the smallest monthly increase since August 1921. Pipe line and tank farm stocks of domestic oil increased 2,240,000 bbls., 1,311,000 of which is credited to California. Stocks of Mexican petroleum held by importers in the United States decreased 1,080,000 bbls.

RUBBER quiet but steady. There is said to be a pretty good inquiry for speculative account, but very little actual business is being done, because buyers and sellers do not agree in their ideas on prices. London of late has been rather steady, but business there, too, is quiet owing to the difference of views between buyers and sellers. Buyers bid 12⅜; sellers ask 12¼d. Smoked ribbed sheets and first latex crepe spot and Nov., 24c.; Dec., 24⅛c.; Jan.-Mar., 24½c. Para quiet; up-river fine, 24c.; coarse, 17¾c. Central also quiet; Corinto 11½@12c.

HIDES have been quiet and rather weaker. Later prices were falling, River Plate reports show. Some 16,000 Sansinena steers sold, it was said, at equal to 21¾c. sight credit. Cables gave the Argentine price at $54 25. Other small sales were reported at slight declines. Here common dry hides were persistently dull and nominal. Some 1,000 Peruvian sold, it seems, at 14¼c. for choice 35-36-lb. hides. Calf skins were declining. At Chicago on Nov. 22 big packer hides were dull. A feature was sales of first salt Shicago city calf skins at 19c. a lb., a decline of 1c. or 3c. this week. There was a sale of 4,000 La Blancas at $54 74, equal to 21⅞c. c. & f., and also, it is said, 4,000 Smithfield steers at $55, which is equal to 22¼c. c. & f.

OCEAN FREIGHTS were firm on grain and West India traffic, with a moderate business. Grain has been coming forward more readily to the Atlantic Seaboard and grain rates have been firm.

Charters included grain from New York to Rotterdam, 14c. November; from north Pacific to United Kingdom, usual options, 38s. December; grain from New York to Genoa, 20c. November; from Atlantic range, including Boston and Portland, to Antwerp or Rotterdam, 15c. early December; to Marseilles, 4s. 3d. December; to three ports in Denmark, 20c. last half December; grain from Atlantic range or Portland to Venice, 4s. 9d. Dec. 1-15; 10% grain from Atlantic range or Portland to west coast of Italy, 4s. 6d. December; grain from Atlantic range to Antwerp-Hamburg range, 15½c. early December; option of United Kingdom at 16½c.; to Antwerp-Hamburg range, 15c. Dec. 25-Jan. 15, option United Kingdom at 3s. 6d. a quarter; six months time charter in West Indies trade, 1,333-ton steamer, $1 40 delivery during January north of Hatteras; six months' time charter 1,631-ton steamer in West Indies trade, $1 30 November delivery; one round trip in New York-Mediterranean trade 2,122-ton steamer, 1 10 prompt; grain from Atlantic range to west coast of Italy, 22c. November-December; lumber from north Pacific ports to New York, $15 50 December; from Campbellton to New York, $6 50 November; coal from Hampton Roads to Santiago, Cuba, $2 prompt; nitrate from Chile to Jacksonville-Boston range, $5 50 January-February; pig iron from Antwerp to both Boston and (or) Philadelphia, 12s. one, 13s. both, prompt; six months time charter in West Indies trade 1,845-ton steamer, $1 15 December delivery in Cuba; six months' time charter in West Indies trade 1,484-ton steamer, $1 20 December delivery Cuba.

TOBACCO has been in fair demand and about steady. For wrappers the inquiry at times has increased somewhat, and also for fillers, and prices in some quarters are reported firm. Not that there has been any very large business actually done. There is certainly room for improvement, not to say considerable improvement. But the feeling is in the main hopeful and it is believed that with the approach of the holiday season, trade will increase, especially as employment is very general throughout the country wages are high, and buying power is greater than it was early in the present year, all of which must insure more or less to the benefit of the tobacco business.

COPPER firm at 13⅞@14c. for electrolytic. And while it is true buying of copper and brass has been very light of late, most of the large wire drawers and brass mills have enough orders on hand, it is said, to keep them busy at the present rate of operations for about three months. One authority estimates the consumption of copper by the automobile industry at 50,000,000 lbs. for 1922. This estimate is based on the fact that there are 10 lbs. of copper in each Ford car and approximately an average of 20 lbs. in other makes of automobiles.

TIN both here and in London has latterly declined; spot here 36⅜c. Lack of American support has discouraged British believers in higher prices. American consumers, it is reported, do not believe that the present statistical position warrants present high prices. Lead quiet but steady; spot New York, 7.20@7.25c.; East St. Louis, 6.85@6.90c. Prompt lead is scarce, and what little there is sells only in small quantities, at 7½c. per pound New York, which is $5 per ton above the market. Zinc declined with London; spot New York, 7.40@7.45c.; East St. Louis, 7.05@7.10c. Production is increasing.

PIG IRON has been quiet despite the fact that inquiries have been on a somewhat larger scale. There have been inquiries from automobile and pipe works of a worth-while kind, aggregating for the two interests some 48,000 tons. Prices have been lower on pig iron at all producing centres. Coal quotations have weakened in the Youngstown district. At the furnaces and lower Lake docks on Nov. 1 the stocks of iron ore, it appears, were 5,000,000 tons more than at the same date last year, or an ample supply until the resumption of shipments next spring. In Eastern Pennsylvania and Buffalo district prices dropped $1. Buffalo iron is quoted at $27 and possibly $26. A sale of standard foundry No. 2 X is said to have been made at $27. At Chicago the price dropped $1 and has latterly been quoted at $29 base. At Birmingham iron is said to have been offered at $22, a decline of $1. Basic pig iron is quoted at $27, valley furnace, a decline of $1.

STEEL output is the highest since 1920, the Pittsburgh sheet output at 90%. But the demand aside from that from the railroads has been moderate. Yet the consumption is said to be pretty close up to the production. Fabricated steel has been active. The demand for cars increases, especially at Chicago. It is pointed out, too, that the seasonable falling off in new structural undertakings usual at this time of the year is not so marked as in most years. It suggests the urgency of the needs. But in some directions prices have eased. The quotation of 2 cents for plate, shapes and bars has been shaded, it is said some $1. to $2 a ton, especially on car material. Meanwhile it is a hopeful circumstance that although car shortage is still complained of, mills in the Pittsburgh and nearby districts, where transportation has been most difficult, have not found their stocks accumulating much over recent totals. At the same time new business lags, because of an uncertainty as to prices in the forepart of the coming year, and an natural disinclination under the circumstances to buy beyond the needs of the near future. Meanwhile the Welsh trade is underselling Americans on tin plates. It is said that the Standard Oil Co. has bought 150,000 boxes from Wales for its foreign needs. And Welsh mills are also competing successfully with American mills on the Canadian Pacific coast. Black sheets have been quoted at 3.35c. basis and tin plates at $4 75 per base box. Inquiries are in the market for 200 more locomotives and nearly 7,000 more cars. German manufacturers secured the Japanese railroad order for the Imperial Government road of 5,000 tons at $8. it is stated under the American price. The South Manchurian railways will open bids this month on 15,000 tons of 100 lb. rails.

WOOL has been in fair demand and steady. In Boston there has been a moderate trade at generally firm prices. Trade is only moderate because it appears some are looking for lower prices within the next six weeks regardless of the recent firmness of foreign markets. In Boston the market recently for 54-70s combing has been about $1 10 clean basis, landed Boston, without the 31c. a pound clean content duty. Good fine stapled Montana or equivalent sold recently at $1 10 clean basis, small lots of half bloods at $1 30 for good; choice three-eighths, $1 65; good high quarter blood combing wools, 90c. clean basis. For fine stapled Montana wool $1 40 was quoted clean landed cost. Fall (6 months) Texas wools sold recently at Kerrville at $1 20 to $1 25 clean basis landed Boston. A year ago these Kerrville wools sold at 20½c., or about 58c. to 60c. clean basis landed Boston. Boston was much interested in the London sale of the 22d inst. and its strong prices. Also the first Geelong sale of the season in Australia showed a general advance of 10% on offerings of 21,000 bales of very good wool. Merinos, good to choice, are up 9c., it seemed, clean basis landed Boston. One cable put the clean landed cost of warp 70s out of this sale, not figuring duty, at $1 25. Cables from Montevideo offered average shrinking good combing on the following basis landed in the grease: Sixties, 50c.; 58s, 47c.; 56s, 44c.; 50s, 40c.; 48s, 32c.; 46s, 26c.

At Wellington, New Zealand, on Nov. 20 11,000 bales were offered and 10,000 sold. About 75% of the offering was old-season clip. Good demand from British, Continental and American buyers. Prices firm. The range on greasy crossbreds 50.58s. was 17d. to 20d.; 48-50s, 10¾d. to 16d.; 46-48s, 10d. to 15¼d.; 44-46s, 8½d. to 13¾d.; 40-44s, 7d. to 9¼c.; 36-40s, 6½d. to 8½d.

In London on Nov. 21 the November (eighth) series of London wool sales scheduled to begin that day was postponed until the next day owing to a dense fog over the city. In London on Nov. 22 the eighth and last of the 1922 wool auction series opened with total offerings on the list of 165,000 bales of free wools and 60,000 bales of British Australian Wool Realization Association wools. These will be offered at 19 sessions ending Dec. 22. Large attendance on the 22d. Offering of "Bawra" and free wools, 14,900 bales. Demand sharp from British, Continental and American operators. Withdrawals small. Selection mostly greasy crossbreds. Compared with the prices at October series, fine grades advanced 5% and medium to coarse 5 to 10%. Few merinos unchanged. Queensland brought 27½d. greasy. A little scoured merino from Victoria and West Australia sold at 46d. Assortment of Puntas good and the greasy crossbreds sold at Australasian prices. In London on Nov. 23 the joint offering was 13,300 bales. Good demand from British, Continental and American operators. Crossbreds firm. Merinos more plentiful and prices rather weaker than in October. Sydney 3,677 bales; greasy merino, 26d. to 30½d.; scoured, 22½d. to 49d.; greasy crossbred, 11½d. to 20d. Queensland 670 bales; greasy merino, 19d. to 29d. Victoria, 2,250 bales; greasy crossbred, 7d. to 30½d. West Australian 554 bales; greasy merino, 17½d. to 25d.; scoured, 36d. to 46d. New Zealand 5,741 bales; crossbreds best greasy, 19½d.; scoured, 38½d.; slipe, 27d. Sales of Realization Association wools in Liverpool have been scheduled for Feb. 18-19 and March 1-2 and in Hull for Jan. 12 and Feb. 23.

The Boston "Commercial Bulletin" in its issue of Nov. 25 will say:

While the market generally has been quiet during the past week, the long awaited opening at London has unquestionably encouraged the wool markets both here and abroad. A good attendance is reported at the Colonial auction in Coleman Street and prices have opened par on merinos, slightly above par on fine crossbreds, and 5 to 10% dearer on low and medium crossbreds, compared with the October sales. Bradford instantly responded to the demonstrated strength of the market, both in London and in the Colonies, where the markets are a bit higher.

* Estimated.

Speculation in cotton for future delivery has been much smaller and prices at times have shown more or less weakness, especially for December. December has been under pressure in fear of a large issuance of notices, or at any rate, 20,000 to 25,000 bales, an issuance sufficiently large to have a depressing effect to-day, the first notice day for that month. In anticipation of these notices there has been a distinct pressure to sell December, especially as there were rumors that New Orleans and Norfolk would ship cotton to this market for tender. Moreover, there have been such depressing factors as dull and declining spot markets, dulness of cotton goods, smallness of exports and more or less depression in stocks, bonds, foreign exchange and the grain markets, which have not been entirely ignored. Yet the factors bearing directly on the cotton trade have naturally had the most influence. Among these was the dulness and hesitant if not actually weaker tone at times in Liverpool. Local and Manchester selling there has been a factor. Liverpool, too, has found speculation dwindling, as was the case in New York and New Orleans. Liverpool also has been overshadowed by the dulness of Manchester. That centre suffers from a falling off in its East Indian trade and also from the lessened buying power of Continental markets. This, to be sure, is nothing new, but the cumulative effect of poor markets in the Orient and also, so to speak, at its very doors on the Continent, has been more pronounced than ever in Lancashire. And for that reason, by the way, there has been persistent talk to the effect that the working time there of the mills on American cotton was to be reduced. Not that anything in this direction has actually taken place. But the mere mention of the possibility has not been without its effect, notwithstanding some cynical comments to the effect that both Liverpool and Manchester were talking poor in order to depress the price of American cotton at a time when both markets were none too well supplied with the American staple. Yet it is a fact beyond dispute that Liverpool's spot sales of cotton for some time past have been largely made up of other than American cotton. Indeed, it is said by some Southern crop experts that of Liverpool's spot business thus far this season some 70% has been in non-American growths. East Indian cotton has, it seems, been especially favored by Liverpool in facing hard times across the water. It is asserted that East Indian cotton has been obtainable at several cents under the price of American. So that Manchester mills have naturally found it more profitable to make yarns from East Indian cotton rather than from American. What is more, there have even been hints that East Indian cotton would be offered rather more freely to American mills, whose imports it is well known consist mostly of Egyptian long staple cotton. Finally, all months at one time got below 25 cents. and December was even with months over which it recently had a good sized premium. Liverpool, Japanese, Wall Street, Western interests, Southern concerns and local operators have all at times been selling.

Meanwhile the reports from Worth Street, Fall River and New Bedford, as well as Manchester, have been anything but cheering. There has been a distinct falling off in the sales, and it would seem a certain softening of prices on some goods. At any rate the aggressive spirit recently noticeable has to all appearances died down. Fall River, indeed, sent reports to the effect that the consumer objected to ruling prices. And it goes without saying that everybody is on the qui vive as to this matter of the price at which economic law threatens to stop the rise in raw cotton. Recent reports were to the effect that the consumer balked at buying goods made from 26-cent cotton. Whether this is a temporary loll in trade or something more remains to be seen. Some maintain that the world's consumption of American cotton this season is not likely to exceed 12,000,000 bales, possibly not more than 11,500,000, as against 12,800,000 bales last season. As already intimated, England is using more Oriental cotton than heretofore. Continental Europe is poor and cannot buy much.

On the other hand, the market certainly showed signs of resistance at around 25 cents. It was noticed that whenever the price got below that point it came back readily as soon as selling pressure disappeared. This soon attracted attention. It happened day after day. And on Thursday rebuying by liquidated longs was something of a feature. Also, New England and Canadian mills bought December and March here on a somewhat larger scale. That had a more or less cheering effect. Rumors, too, on that day that a large Southwestern spot interest had sold 20,000 bales of the actual cotton to Czechoslovakia and another rumor from New Orleans that some 50,000 bales had been sold to Poland had a certain effect. These reports were contradicted. But for a time they had a bracing effect. So did a report that the United States was to grant a loan to Germany. And to-day it was insisted that the Poland report was true. Another fact of interest was that the world's spinners' takings of American cotton this week were expected to stand out in strongly bullish contrast with the relatively small total for the same week last year and the year before. The ginning report on the 21st inst., too, was considered more or less of a bullish document. It is true that it put the total ginned up to Nov. 14 this season at 8,869,857 bales, against 8,146,227 bales the revised figures up to Nov. 1, 7,270,573 up to Nov. 14 last year, 8,914,642 in 1920 and 7,604,320 in 1919. The ginning for the period from Nov. 1 to Nov. 14, moreover, was 723,630, against 627,847 for the same time last year. In other words, here is a ginning far larger than any in recent years. But on the other hand, it is maintained that there has rarely or ever been a crop picked, ginned and marketed with such rapidity as the present one. The report is variously interpreted as pointing to a crop of anywhere from 9,500,000 to 10,000,000 bales. But ideas as to the yield have latterly shown some tendency to crysatllize around 9,600,000 to 9,700,000 bales. Two crop statisticians have latterly named these figures. Liverpool, according to one view, has latterly shown some tendency to crystallize around 9,600,000 crop. At least that is the belief of some members of the trade here. Europe at one time was skeptical, and not unnaturally so after the bad blunder of Washington officials last year. But there is an idea that Washington statisticians, smarting under last year's criticism have been much more careful this year. At the same time some maintain that the carry-over in this country into next season is not likely to much exceed 530,000 bales, as against a surplus on Aug. 1 1922 of 2,800,000 bales. It is argued, too, that a severe pinch of scarcity is likely to be felt during the first half of 1923, and that the price is likely to rise to a point where economic law automatically imposes a check on consumption. The universal query is, naturally, What will that price be? That, of course, the future must determine.

To-day prices were some 30 to 37 points higher, with the December notices only 14,100 bales, exports 74,586 bales, spinners' takings larger than last week, spot markets higher, the technical position better and the trade, Liverpool, Wall Street, the South, liquidated bulls and shorts, all buying. This offset the dulness of goods, the smallness of spot sales in Liverpool—only 3,000 bales, of which 1,000 bales were American—Japanese selling and more or less liquidation. Yet it is true there was a reaction towards the close. There was a large amount of swapping between December and January. The final tone was steady. Closing prices to-day show a decline for the week of 20 points in December, 11 on January, with March unchanged and May 4 points higher than a week ago. Spot prices here advanced 25 points, middling reaching 25.70c., which, however, shows a loss for the week of 10 points.

Dallas, Texas, reported on Nov. 18 that an order for 50,000 bales of cotton had been placed with the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association by the State Universal Stores, Ltd., of Russia, it was announced at the office of I. J. Semeniouk, American representative of the company. The cotton will permit the Russians to start up textile mills idle several years. Delivery to Petrograd is provided.

The members of the Master Spinners' Federation have received ballots to decide the question of reopening the Liverpool cotton market on Saturdays. It is urged that it would strengthen the Federation's hands to make strongly renewed representations to the Liverpool Cotton Association to reopen. The spinners are to communicate their views to buying brokers.

BREADSTUFFS

Flour has been in only moderate demand owing to the decline in wheat and an idea that it may go further. Also, at least moderate offerings of resale flour have been available at much below first hand prices. And receipts have increased very noticeably. In a single day they were 93,170 sacks, of which 51,425 were for the domestic trade. This has led to a certain amount of reselling as the arrivals exceeded the immediate requirements of the market. Moreover, there has been little new export demand. Foreign buyers seemed loath to pay recent prices, especially with wheat falling. It is agreed, however, that if wheat prices should take an upward turn it might easily stimulate the foreign demand. On Nov. 21 the receipts here were 79,462 bbls. This told. There was some reselling at prices under mill quotations.

Later in the week flour was offered here for immediate delivery at discounts of 25 cents per bbl., it is said, under prices for mill shipment. This, to be sure, had no very marked effect, although, on the other hand, it was something that could not be ignored, either. Believers in better prices for flour point out that these second-hand offerings are likely soon to be absorbed, and that stocks here are far from large. Much of the flour arriving at New York is said to be going directly into the hands of the consumer. Yet it is none the less an interesting fact that in three days the arrivals at New York were some 271,526 sacks. Of this, it was stated, 128,442 sacks were for domestic consumption.

Wheat declined early in the week, with large liquidation in a "long" market, with a reaction due, and indeed, in the general opinion, overdue. Also, Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, issued a very bearish statement, given below, in substance taking the ground that there will be a world's crop of nearly 900,000,000 bushels to supply demand estimated at not more than 600,000,000 bushels. Last Monday prices fell 2 to 3 cents. Also, a private cable from the Argentine estimated the exportable surplus at 185,000,000 bushels, which was 35,000,000 over the last official report. This offset an increase of only 134,000 bushels in the visible supply and world's exports for the week of 17,048,000 bushels, of which 15,375,000 were from North America. Exporters were credited with taking about 750,000 bushels, principally Manitobas, and it was stated that a good part of the demand had come from Great Britian. It is true, too, that on Tuesday prices advanced 1 to 1½c. on a renewed demand. The visible supply increase of 134,000 bushels in the United States last week against a decrease in the same week of last year of no less than 4,505,000 bushels, after all leaves the total only 34,364,000 bushels, against 50,877,000 a year ago.

On Nov. 21 on better buying prices advanced after an early decline on further liquidation. A private cable from Australia estimated the crop there at about 90,000,000 bushels, compared with last year's yield of 144,000,000. This was in suggestive contrast with the reports of an increased crop in Argentina. The Winnipeg market was strong, and this braced Chicago and helped businses with export houses, it was said. The sales of cash wheat to exporters were about 750,000 bushels, of which the greater part consisted of Manitoba, although there were also about 300,000 bushels of durum. Many do not agree with the bearish ideas of Arthur W. Cutten, though, of course, they do not cite export sales of Canadian wheat as a bullish argument.

Later on prices declined. Liverpool at times during the week has shown a disposition to ignore advances on this side of the water. It has even responded to advances in Chicago with a decline. Also, there has been only a moderate export demand of late. On the 22nd inst. export sales amounted to only 250,000 bushels of Manitoba. And Argentine markets were depressed. Coincident with favorable crop reports, something which offset the decreased yield in crop estimates in Australia.

Arthur W. Cutten, the well-known wheat trader of Chicago, takes issue with those who think the outlook is bullish for wheat. He says in part:

While Europe's crops are undoubtedly short of last year, recent official and semi-official advices tend to modify the early unfavorable reports. France has increased its preliminary estimate 20,000,000 bushels and Spain 14,000,000 bushels. The impression is growing in Germany that producers greatly under-estimate their crops, in an effort to escape taxation. The fact stands out that Europe with ex-European countries, have imported less wheat and flour than during the corresponding period last year, notwithstanding their harvests were interfered with by wet weather. The theory that European finances are going to be restored over night is not borne out by developments, as their condition is generally accepted by the world's leading international bankers as being on the verge of another collapse. Nearly 5 months of the crop year have passed and North America has exported 192,000,000 bushels of wheat out of a surplus estimated at 575,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels, leaving almost 400,000,000 bushels still available, in addition to close to 100,000,000 bushels of rye available from this year's crops. Harvest is under way in Argentina and Australia, with a combined surplus estimated at 230,000,000 bushels. India and the Balkans are estimated to have 65,000,000 bushels, a world's total of a round 870,000,000 to 900,000,000 bushels to fulfill world's import requirements a little over 600,000,000 bushels at the present rate of takings. It appears that through the unfavorable car situation the American producer has lost his opportunity to dispose of his entire surplus at favorable terms.

Paris advices say that France may return to a combination of wheat and potato flour similar to the old war bread, owing to the failure of the season's wheat crop. The reduced purchasing power of the franc will be aggravated if France buys a large supply of American wheat at dollar prices. French restaurants have begun a movement looking to the economical use of bread. To-day prices advanced with lighter receipts and firmer closing cables, a strong Winnipeg market and an idea that Canadian and American farmers have sold considerable of their surplus. Closing prices at Chicago, however, show a decline on December wheat for the week of 1¾c., while May has dropped only ¼c.

Indian corn declined early in the week with wheat and on heavy "long" selling of corn itself. The technical position seemed to have been weakened in the recent advance. It had become to all appearances overbought. The demand fell off. A reaction was due and it came. Not that it was anything very marked, for the cash demand was brisk. But on the other hand the receipts have been large, and last week the visible supply in the United States increased 795,000 bushels, in striking contrast with an actual decrease in the same week last year of 769,000 bushels. It is true that the present visible supply for all that is only 9,962,000 bushels against 17,936,000 bushels a year ago. But with the receipts increasing and bullish speculation less aggressive, the tone has not been so firm.

Later on reports from the West said that the interior cash demand had fallen off. Also, it appears farmers have latterly shown more disposition to sell their new corn. It appears further that the crop movement is restricted only by the supplies of cars and inferentially would be much larger than it is now if transportation facilities were better. On the other hand, export demand of late has been somewhat larger. The total sales for two days were stated at 600,000 bushels. No. 2 yellow corn in Eastern cash markets has at times been in rather small supply, while the demand has been steady.

On Nov. 1 the receipts at primary points were smaller than expected and cash markets were firm and futures higher. Also, exporters took hold a little better. The foreign inquiry, in fact, was the best for some little time past. The export sales were about 300,000 bushels. To-day prices were rather irregular, but interior receipts were said to be smaller, and the feeding demand fair, with provisions high. There was an advance here early in the day of ¾ to 1c., but much of it was lost later. Final prices show a decline for the week of 1 to 1¼c.

Oats declined at the opening of the week, but rallied somewhat on the 21st inst. with other grain. But a lack of striking features and falling prices at times for wheat and corn have had a natural tendency to keep prices from advancing much. This is not surprising, seeing that receipts at primary points have been larger, while the demand has been anything but urgent. It is true that the visible supply in the United States decreased last week 84,000 bushels, but in the same week last year the falling off was 325,000 bushels. It is also true that the total visible supply in this country is only 33,743,000 bushels, against 68,396,000 a year ago, but the thing that takes the edge off these statistics is the absence of any very insistent demand, domestic or foreign.

In the later trading prices for a time were firmer with a rather better cash demand. But still later prices eased in sympathy with other grain.

Later there was some export demand, even if not very large, but it is also a fact that what there was of it was chiefly for Canadian oats. About 50,000 bushels of Canadian were sold for foreign markets. To-day prices advanced ½c., but show a decline for the week at the close of ½ to ⅞c.

Rye weakened somewhat early in the week with wheat down and considerable liquidation of "long" holdings of rye recently acquired. This was the more natural as export demand fell off. It became only moderate and lost its force as a bullish factor, whereas recently, as is well known, it was a prominent and stimulating feature. The visible supply in the United States fell off 1,430,000 bushels as against a decrease in the same week last year of only 207,000 bushels. As the case now stands, the total visible supply in this country is 9,194,000 bushels against 6,558,000 a year ago. On the 21st inst. prices advanced to some extent with other grain.

On Nov. 21 there was a good cash demand which offset heavy liquidation. An early decline of 1 to 1¾c. on that day was recovered and prices ended ½ to ¾c. higher, with sales of about 500,000 bushels against old business.

Later on prices declined somewhat, with export business small and cash premiums inclined to fall. To-day prices advanced ½c. early, but lost the improvement later. The latest prices are 3¼c. lower for the week on December and ¾c. on May.

WEATHER BULLETIN FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 22.—The general summary of the weather bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture, indicating the influence of the weather for the week ending Nov. 23, is as follows:

COTTON.—There was considerable rainfall in the northwestern part of the cotton belt, which resulted in some delay in harvesting late cotton. Some top crop was reported as maturing in Texas. The weather was very favorable for outdoor work in the northeastern portion of the belt and harvest made good progress in that section.

WHEAT.—Further rainfall in the Ohio Valley States, together with the prevailing mild temperature for the season, were very beneficial for winter wheat and other fall sown grain in that area. The additional moisture was especially helpful in Kentucky, where the soil was put in good condition and the late seeded wheat was coming up. This crop was reported in fine condition generally in Illinois, and as making good progress in Indiana, while timely showers occurred in Ohio.

The condition and progress of winter wheat were satisfactory in Missouri, where there was ample soil moisture for present needs while moderate to heavy rains fell in all portions of Arkansas, where the soil had previously been very dry. Mild weather with abundant sunshine prevailed in Kansas and light precipitation was general, making excellent growing conditions for winter wheat. The crop was reported as making good growth and stooling in the eastern half of the State, but much wheat was not up in the western half, although it was germinating and beginning to show as a result of the improved moisture conditions.

Moisture was ample in Oklahoma except in the extreme western portion, and wheat made good progress generally, with the condition of the early seeded reported as good to excellent, except where it was too dry and the late seeded as coming up nicely; some wheat remained to be seeded, however. Seeding continued in Texas, where frequent showers were beneficial, while fall grains improved in Nebraska under the influence of favorable weather conditions. The weather was mostly favorable in the Central and North Rocky Mountain States and the Far Northwest, although more moisture was needed for best growth of wheat in parts of Washington. Some sections of the Atlantic Coast area needed more moisture, but as a rule conditions were favorable there as well as in most Southern States.

CORN.—Mild and damp weather in Ohio and West Virginia have favored corn husking. Rather frequent rainfall caused some delay in this work in other Ohio Valley States. There was considerable cloudiness in Iowa and the fields continued too soft for husking and slow progress was made with further reports of damage to corn that had been blown down. There was much cribbing done in Missouri, and husking progressed rapidly in the Great Plains States, except where the fields were too wet in eastern Kansas. Husking progressed under generally favorable weather conditions in the Atlantic Coast States.

THE DRY GOODS TRADE.

New York, Friday Night, Nov. 24 1922.

Markets for dry goods continued to hold steady during the past week despite lighter trade. While the falling off in activity has been considered a natural reaction from the long period of rising prices, the cessation of forward buying is said to have been prompted in part by new requests emanating from credit sources. The jobbing trade in general, however, is believed to have smaller commitments than is usually the case at this time of the year, and it is predicted that as soon as the taking of inventories is completed, business will again become active. According to reports from authoritative sources, jobbers have been doing a very steady business, and have been well satisfied with purchases made up to the present time, although in some cases they are not altogether optimistic over the immediate outlook owing to the resistance to paying higher prices on the part of retailers in sections throughout the country outside of industrial centres. Furthermore, jobbers are also experiencing great difficulty in keeping their running costs down, which makes it necessary for them to obtain full prices if they are to continue their business on a profitable basis. The advent of cold weather has sitmulated the demand for heavy goods, such as cloaks, suits, blankets and underwear. The more seasonable weather has also enlivened buying in the retail trade. Gray goods which ruled easier during the early part of the week, developed more strength and activity during the latter part. First hands who were credited with selling on a larger scale than for some time, withdrew offerings, owing, now doubt, to the improved tone of the cotton market.

DOMESTIC COTTON GOODS: While a falling off in the demand for cotton goods has been noticeable during the past week, prices have been well maintained. In view of the fact that most manufacturers and selling agents have sufficient orders booked to take care of their available production for the next few months, the lessened activity is not worrying them. Buyers, especially the larger consumers of cloths, have been conspicuously absent. While some authorities attribute the falling off in demand to the slightly easier tendency of some constructions of print cloths during the early part of the week, others claim that inactivity has been due to the fact that large buyers have provided for their requirements for the next few months, and consequently are not obliged to make further commitments for the time being. Salesmen returning from the road state that buying for spring has been fairly good, but it has not been broad enough to cover more than half of the normal requirements of consumers. Therefore they predict a resumption of buying within the near future. In the meantime a steady readjustment of prices on finished goods is taking place in primary and jobbing markets, the readjustments being made for the purpose of bringing values up to a parity with the high cost of gray goods and yarns caused by the high levels prevailing for cotton. Sheetings have held firm, although business during the week has been of limited proportions. Some mills making the heavier weights are not disposed to quote except on a basis of current prices for spot cotton, as they have large enough orders booked to consume the cotton owned now. If new business is accepted it will be necessary for them to enter the market for additional supplies at the higher levels. Print cloths, 28-inch, 64 x 64's construction, are quoted at 8¼c., and the 27-inch, 64 x 60's, at 7¾c. Gray goods in the 39-inch, 68 x 72's, are quoted at 11c., and the 29-inch, 80 x 80's, at 14¼c.

WOOLEN GOODS: Trade in markets for woolen goods, with the exception of a few lines, has been moderate during the week. Buyers for the most part have shown more of a disposition to operate cautiously at the higher price levels now prevailing. Manufacturers, on the other hand, have not been inclined to sell freely, particularly for deferred delivery, at current prices, owing to the uncertainties surrounding the raw wool situation. There is more or less talk of the probable time of the openings of woolens for the next heavy weight season, and while no definite dates have been announced, it is predicted that developments in this direction will take place around the second week in December. According to reports, buyers in some instances have already tried to place advance orders. Prices, when named, will likely show advances and this accounts for the efforts of buyers to place their orders now before the lines are officially opened. There has been a continued good inquiry for overcoatings, and the preference for quality appears to be general and not confined to one part of the country.

FOREIGN DRY GOODS: With the bulk of the advance buying of spring linens, as well as the greater part of the holiday stocks completed, less activity has been displayed in markets for linens during the past week. Most of the present demand is confined to the more popular priced lines of household goods of the gift variety, but real activity in these lines is not expected until after the Thanksgiving holiday. A fair demand for towel and toweling continues, with most of the inquiry for the low cost varieties. After the Thanksgiving holiday a resumption of retail buying is expected to deplete stocks and result in a considerable amount of replacing. Burlaps have been fairly active during the past week. Influenced by a good inquiry for South American account, prices have ruled firm. The market was also helped by cablegrams from Calcutta telling of a very firm situation at that centre. Light weights are 6.85 to 6.90c. and heavies 8.50 to 8.55c.

Clarke County, Wash.—Decision of Supreme Court that Inter-State Bridge Fund Must be Used to Pay Off Indebtedness.—The Portland "Oregonian" reports that on Nov. 1 the Supreme Court of Washington, sustaining the judgment of a lower court in a test suit brought by George Hopp against the Clarke County Commissioners to compel the defendants to use the inter-State bridge fund in paying off a bonded debt of $450,000, standing against Clarke County as its share of the cost of the bridge, decided that the fund must be used to pay the debt. The fund, it is said, had been used for about two years on Clarke County roads, but the State law providing for this became inoperative June 1 1921, and the Legislature failed to pass any new legislation.

Colorado.—Moffatt Tunnel Law Held Constitutional.—The State Supreme Court has rendered a decision, upholding the action of the First Judicial District Court in declaring constitutional the Moffatt Tunnel Law, providing for the construction of a tunnel giving transportation relief to northwestern Colorado and authorizing the issuance of $6,720,000 bonds for carrying out the work. Suit was originally brought in the District Court at Golden by the Wolfe Bros. Land Co., who attacked the law on several counts, among them that the Legislature had no right to create a single improvement district out of any part of the State and that the bill declares the tunnel is for the benefit of the entire State, whereas, assessments are to be made against a particular district to build it—V. 115, p. 782.

Judge Samuel W. Johnson of the Golden Court on Aug. 31 had ruled that the Act did not violate any provisions of the Constitution and had accordingly upheld law—V. 115, p. 1232. Thereupon the plaintiffs carried the case to the Supreme Court—V. 115, p. 1448—which has now affirmed the decision of Judge Johnson.

Florida.—Constitutional Amendments Adopted.—The amendments to the Constitution, increasing school taxes, providing additional circuit judges and providing that State officials be paid monthly, were adopted by the voters on Nov. 7—V. 115, p. 1858.

Kansas City, Mo.—Voters Defeat New Charter—Non-Political Water Board Favored.—The new charter, submitted to the voters on Nov. 21 (V. 115, p. 2290) was lost by about 20,000 votes.

The people at the same time voted in favor of the continuation of the administration of the water-works by a bipartisan board, the alternative providing for this receiving 4,000 more votes than the one calling for a board appointive by the Mayor.

Nebraska.—Result of Vote.—Nebraska, according to unofficial returns, indorsed the anti-picketing law referred to the voters by petition, but refused to provide that delegates to political conventions be selected by caucuses and conventions instead of primary elections. Approval was given to the section of House Roll 193 requiring that any proposed bank in Nebraska show that the bank is necessary before it can be opened. See V. 115, p. 1964.

South Dakota.—Result of Election.—South Dakota electors on Nov. 7 voted down the proposals to build a State owned hydro-electric power plant and to establish a State owned bank by votes of 105,620 "no" to 54,907 "yes," and 121,566 "no" to 32,881 "yes," respectively. The former proposal entailed an appropriation of $2,200,000 and the latter an appropriation of $2,000,000 levied upon the credit of the State. The proposal to move the university from Vermilion to Sioux Falls was likewise lost, the proposition receiving 12,019 favorable votes and 137,675 unfavorable. The voters also decided against the proposed repeal of the law prohibiting Sunday amusements by 98,925 "against" to 56,606 "for." The measure looking to the abolishment of the office of State Sheriff and the State Constabulary lost by 93,671 negative votes to 63,583 affirmative—V. 115, p. 1965.

The four Constitutional amendments voted on at the same time were defeated by heavy majorities. The votes on the four measures follow: To allow Legislature to fix salaries of State officers, 38,171 "for" to 107,846 "against"; To require 15% of voters' signatures on initiative and referendum petitions, 95,373 "against" to 48,662 "for." To allow Legislature to enact laws for organizing new counties, 111,833 "against" to 29,801 "for." To give to State, counties or other taxing districts authority to levy special assessments upon land lying along the banks of rivers, 103,838 "against" to 33,537 "for."

Texas.—Validity of Levee Improvement Districts Being Tested.—In a suit styled the State of Texas vs. the Delta Farms Association, brought to collect delinquent taxes on a $192,000 bond issue of Delta County Levee Improvement District No. 1, in which parties who held liens on the land before the voting of the bond issue contended their liens were prior to the tax lien, and attacked the constitutionality of the levee improvement district laws, District Judge Newman Phillips, late in October, according to the Dallas "News," held the levee laws were constitutional, and the bonds and taxes valid, but decided that the liens on the property existing at the time of the creation of the district and the issuance of the bonds were superior to the tax liens.

The case, it is said, will be appealed by both parties. It is pointed out that if the decision of the district court that tax liens are subordinate to liens held at the time of issuing bonds is upheld by the higher courts, the value of levee district bonds will be greatly affected.

Utah.—Constitutional Amendments Defeated.—According to the unofficial count, the three proposed amendments to the Constitution submitted on Nov. 7—V. 115, p. 1758—were defeated. One proposed to amend Sec. 1, Article XIV, so as to increase from 1½% of the assessed valuation to 2%, the limit placed on the aggregate amount of debt that the State may have outstanding at any one time. The second would have revised, in general, Sections 2 and 3 of Article 13 so as to give the Legislature power to classify property and to tax the different classes at different rates, and to fit an income tax into the general taxation program. The third would have amended Section 9 of Article VI so as to increase the compensation received by members of the Legislature from $4 to $8 per day.

THE TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 1920 IN NOVE 1BER 1922.

On March 1 1920 the railroads of the United States, which on Jan. 1 1918, as a war measure, had been taken over for operation as one system by the United States Railroad Administration, were, in so far as still under its control (the short lines having previously been surrendered), restored to their owners. Federal control was thus terminated pursuant to a proclamation issued on Dec. 24 1919 by the President of the United States and subject to the terms of the Transportation Act of 1920, approved by the President on Feb. 28 1920. The complete text of the Act was printed in the "Chronicle" of Feb. 21 1920, pages 715 to 732, with an amendment in V. 110, p. 2253.

On Sept. 1 1920 the Government guaranty of income which was granted to assenting roads for the six months following the end of Federal control expired by limitation.

On March 1 1922, two further provisions of the Transportation Act expired by limitation, namely: (1) The provision of Section 15 (a) making it incumbent on the Inter-State Commerce Commission when adjusting freight and passenger rates during the two years beginning March 1, to aim at establishing such rates for the railroads of the country as a whole or in districts as should afford "as a fair return" on the tentative valuation which was fixed by the Commission in July 1920, a sum equal to 5½% per annum and in addition at the discretion of the Commission an additional ½ of 1% to make provision for improvements, betterments or equipment; (2) The provision in Section 210 (a) permitting the carriers to apply for loans from the Federal Revolving Fund within two years from the termination of Federal control.

On May 24 1922 the Inter-State Commerce Commission, as required by the Act, made known its decision as to what would be a new reasonable rate of return on the investment of the roads, for use when fixing rates for passenger and freight transportation. The decision of the Commission was reached in considering the question of rate reductions, and the full text of the Commission's report and opinion in that case, in which a horizontal cut of 10% in freight rates was made, was given in the "Chronicle" of May 27 1922, pages 2317 to 2329. The conclusions as to the rate of return will be found on page 2327. The Commission ruled: "That on and after March 1 1922 a fair return upon the aggregate value of the railway property of the carriers defined in Section 15a of the Inter-State Commerce Act, determined as therein provided, will be 5.75% of such aggregate property value as a uniform percentage for all rate groups or territories designated by this Commission."

The Transportation Act of 1920 was designed to enable the railroads as a whole to meet their financial problems caused by the war and Federal operation, and to assist them in their future financing by giving them a reasonable, though extremely moderate, return on their investment. The immediate effect was most disappointing owing to an enormous increase in labor costs and a precipitate decline in railroad traffic. (V. 113, p. 1732 to 1734.) The railroads were therefore obliged to curtail their expenses drastically and to seek a reduction in the wages of their employees.

Comparative statistics show these results for railways having annual operating revenues above $1,000,000 (see full data in V. 113, p. 1852 to 1854, 1739 to 1742; V. 114, p. 1492):

In April 1921 the Railroad Labor Board ordered the abolition on July 1 1921 of some of the provisions of the "National Agreements" which the railroad managers claim have cost the railroads of the U. S. $300,000,000 per annum, but laid down 16 cardinal principles that must be maintained. (V. 112, p. 1580, 1581; V. 113, p. 34, 805, 893, 915, 916, 1326, 1429, 1644, 1731, 1732.)

Subsequently in 1921-22 the national agreements were revised by the Labor Board, removing some of their most burdensome features in the case of railroad labor other than trainmen's brotherhoods. See below.

The United States Railroad Labor Board, at Chicago, on May 10 handed down a decision holding the practice of contracting shop repair work to outside firms as a violation of the Transportation Act. V. 115, p. 34, 1597; V. 114, p. 2084, 2174.

In May and June 1921 the Labor Board announced its decision that the exigencies of the situation demanded a substantial decrease in railroad expenses, and for that reason railroad wages on the larger roads should be reduced on the average 12%. A strike against this decrease and to forestall any further changes in wages and working conditions was ordered by the four trainmen's brotherhoods and the switchmen's union; but on Oct. 27 1921, on the eve of its becoming effective, was declared off, as below stated.

In Nov. 1921 many reductions in freight rates had already been made (since Aug. 1920), and the railway executives, in order further to reduce these rates as demanded by the public, posted notices of a proposed additional wage cut of about 10% with the intent of wiping out the remainder of the wage advance of 1920. The railroads agreed to pass on all benefit from this further wage cut to the public, and in anticipation of same put in effect on Jan. 7 1922 an experimental reduction of 10% on agricultural products for all parts of the country, this reduction to stand during the six months in which the plan to reduce wages will come before the Labor Board. See also V. 113, p. 2153, 2470, 2786. It was not until May 1922 that the Labor Board announced its decision as to further wage reductions, and it then promulgated decreases in the pay of the shop craft employees, maintenance of way men, freight car men, signal men, clearks, &c., effective July 1 1922, which it was computed would effect a saving to the carriers of $135,000,000 per year.

This led to a prolonged strike, as noted further on in the article on Railroad Wages. V. 114, p. 2432, 2541, 2784. The maintenance of way men, who did not join in the strike, had a portion of the decrease remitted to them on a rehearing, the remission amounting to 2 cents an hour.

Late in 1921 and early in 1922 the Federal Government sold a large amount of its holdings of equipment trusts (see below), and was using the proceeds to settle its accounts with the railroads.

The sale of these equipment trusts and the improved financial outlook late in 1921 led the Federal Administration to withdraw their support of the so-called Funding Bill, which, as an amendment to the Transportation Act of 1920, would have permitted the settlement of the large amounts due by the Government to the railroads on account of compensation, guaranty, &c., and the funding of $500,000,000 of indebtedness due by them to the Government for expenditures made during Federal control on additions and improvement account. Compare V. 113, p. 2371, 2043, 2043, 2042, 1730, 1115, 910 to 914, 805, 696, 488, 487, 149.

For tentative valuations of 150 roads filed in 1921, see V. 113, p. 1008, 1011, 1539. See also article entitled "Federal Valuation of the Railroads in the United States," by the Committee on Railroad Securities of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in "Chronicle" of Oct. 21 1922, page 1798.

The general railroad consolidation plans submitted tentatively in 1921 were outlined in V. 113, p. 1429 to 1431, 1950 to 1952. Hearings on the so-called Ripley plan, approved with certain modification by the Inter-State Commerce Commission were scheduled to begin before that Commission on April 24, but were postponed. Hearings, however, were resumed Nov. 17. V. 115, p. 2232.

George B. McGinty, Secretary of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, in a letter to Senator Willis of Ohio in May 1921, said in part:

"It is not a question to-day whether or not the rates shall produce 5½ or 6% upon the value of the carriers' properties.

"More than one-half of the carriers are earning less than their operating expenses and taxes. A very few individual roads are earning their interest charges. Some of them are not even earning their operating expenses.

The following outlines the Transportation Act of 1920:

GUARANTEED INCOME FOR SIX MONTHS.—Railroad companies signifying by March 15 1920 their acceptance of such guaranty shall be guaranteed by the United States Government for the first six months ending Sept. 1 1920 following the termination of Federal control, sums at the same rate as their compensation during that control.

To this end the Commission, pending the completion of its valuation o the railway properties in the United States, is required to make tentative valuations of the several roads as a basis for rate making.

RETURN ON CAPITAL FOR FIRST TWO YEARS.—During the two years beginning March 1 1920 the Commission shall adopt 5½% as a fair return on the actual value of railroad properties and at its discretion may add a sum not to exceed a total of ½% for improvements, betterments or equipment chargeable to capital account.

DISTRIBUTION OF EARNINGS IN EXCESS OF 6%.—Net railway operating income in any year in excess of 6% of the value of the property shall be utilized as follows: (a) One-half of such excess shall be placed in a Reserve Fund maintained by the railroad; (b) the remaining one-half shall go into a *General Railroad Contingent Fund.

REFUNDING OF CARRIERS' INDEBTEDNESS TO THE UNITED STATES.—The net indebtedness of each carrier to the United States for additions or betterments may be funded for a period of ten years (or less at option of company) from the termination of Federal control with interest at 6% per annum, subject to the right of the carrier to anticipate the payment of the whole or any part of the indebtedness. Any remaining debt to U. S. to be evidenced by 6% notes running one year or less.

CONSOLIDATION OF RAILROAD PROPERTIES—STOCK CONTROL, &C.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission is directed to prepare and adopt a plan for the consolidation of railroad properties into a limited number of competing systems, and consolidations are authorized when in harmony with the plan so adopted and approved by the Commission. See plans as proposed in 1921, V. 113, p. 1429 to 1431 and 1950.

The Commission shall also pass on any proposed measures for the control of one road by another by consolidation, lease, stock ownership or otherwise. In any consolidation the total amount of outstanding stock and bonds of the consolidating company shall not exceed the value of the consolidated properties as determined by the Commission.

JOINT USE OF TERMINALS.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission whenever in its opinion there exists an emergency may require such joint or common use of terminals, including main-line tracks for a reasonable distance outside of such terminals as in its opinion will best meet the emergency and serve the public interest.

INTER-STATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MAY INITIATE RATES.—In the exercise of its power to prescribe just and reasonable rates, the Commission can initiate as well as modify and establish rates.

CONTROL OVER SECURITY ISSUES.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission is given exclusive control over the issuance of all railroad securities, except notes maturing in less than two years when the total issues of said notes of the railroad amounts to less than 5% of its capitalization. See regulations, V. 111, p. 1814, 1049, 587.]

LABOR BOARDS TO ARBITRATE DISPUTES BETWEEN WAGE-EARNERS AND EMPLOYERS.—The law authorizes a system of labor boards of adjustment to be established by employers and employees. A central railroad labor board of appeals created with power to hear disputes and initiate investigations.

The members of this board, three of whom are to represent labor, three railroad managers, and three the public, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. There are no penal provisions for the enforcement of the decisions of this board. [See list of members on page 6.]

Federal Control—Standard Return.

The proclamation of President Wilson assuming control of the roads was dated Dec. 26 1917. See V. 105, p. 2509; V. 106, p. 35; V. 108, p. 2081.

CONTRACTS FOR GOVERNMENT CONTROL—RENTAL PAYMENTS.—The form of contract which the Government executed, with ght variations, with the railroads, will be found in V 107, p. 1157, 956.

The Act of Congress approved March 21 1918 (cited in V 106, p. 1421) uthorized the President "to agree with and to guarantee" to any carrier that during the period of such Federal control it shall receive as just com- e nsation an annual sum (herein called standard return), for each year . . not exceeding a sum equivalent as nearly as may be to its average annual railway operating income for the three years ended June 30 1917."

In a few cases for special reasons extra compensation was granted. Disputes, however, arose and when Federal control was terminated Feb. 29 1920 there still remained a number of roads concerning which the question of compensation, whether the standard return or a larger sum, was still to be determined.

Out of the aforesaid compensation as supplemented by the company's non-operating income, including interest and dividends on any bonds or stock owned, and other outside items each company was required to pay all Federal (war) taxes, interest and other fixed charges, and also any dividends allowed on their capital stock.

A list of the compensation contracts finally executed up to Sept. 15 1920 will be found, with the amounts of the compensation agreed upon, on pages 6, 7 and 252 of the issue of this Section for Nov. 27 1920. Others have been noted from week to week in subsequent issues of the "Chronicle."

EQUIPMENT TRUST AGREEMENTS OF JAN. 15 1920.

Equipment trust agreements were executed early in 1920 by some 80 leading railroad companies with the Director-General of Railroads and the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York as trustee, covering approximately $323,000,000 worth of new rolling stock, built and building. This rolling stock was ordered by the United States Railroad Administration during the period of Federal control of railroads and has been allocated to the railroad companies named below and accepted by them. (Compare V. 109, p. 1668, 1955, 2406.)

The notes, while issuable from time to time as equipment is delivered to the roads, are all dated Jan. 15 1920, payable both principal and interest, in gold of present standard. Each issue will mature in 15 equal installments on Jan. 15 n each year, 1921 to 1935, both inclusive, and will bear interest at 6% per annum, payable semi-annually, July 15 and Jan. 15 at the office of the trustee in New York City. They will be subject to redemption at the option of the maker prior to maturity at 103 and interest on any interest date after 60 days' notice, but only as entire issues.

The War Finance Corporation, in a statement issued by Managing Director Eugene Meyer Jr., on Jan. 22 announced that the Director-General had addressed a letter to all railroads of which the U. S. Treasury still holds issues of equipment trust obligations no part of which has yet been sold by it, asking [in order to increase the saleability of its holdings] that he be permitted to subordinate to the remainder of the issue [which remainder he might then sell] not alone the last five maturities, 1931 to 1935, or any one or more of them, but such portion of the maturities of any year as he may determine. The official statement says:

"'Eleventh: Upon request of the holder, or holders, of all the notes which by their terms shall be due and payable in any year, and upon presentation of such notes for that purpose, the trustee shall stamp thereon, or upon such part thereof as said holder, or holders, may designate and request, the following words:

"'For value received and as an inducement to purchases of unstamped notes, the holder of this note has caused the same to be stamped pursuant to Article Eleventh of the Equipment Trust Agreement mentioned in the note, and, as provided in said Article Eleventh, the unstamped notes shall be payable in preference and priority to the stamped notes out of any moneys received or collected by the Trustee under said Equipment Trust Agreement upon enforcement of its rights or remedies in case of a default of the carrier.'

"For the present, it is the purpose of the Director-General, upon the execution of the supplemental agreements, making the amended clause operative, to makes sales of railroad equipment trust obligations under an arrangement, to subordinate, on the part of the Government, approximately 33 1-3% of the principal amount of each maturity; and the Director-General will be prepared to sell 66 2-3% of issues of equipment trust obligations, unsubordinated, at par and accrued interest to date of delivery. The Railroad Administration will thus retain the one-third subordinated part of all serial maturities."

NATIONAL RAILWAY SERVICE CORP. EQUIP. TRUSTS

This company was incorporated in Maryland July 29 1920 at the instance of the National Association of Owners of RR. Securities (S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore, President) to co-operate with the I.-S. C. Commission in assisting the railroads of the country to finance their needs for new rolling stock, as permitted by the amendment to the Transportation Act of 1920. (Compare V. 111, p. 458.)

The certificates were described by President Warfield substantially as follows (compare V. 111, p. 1661, 458, 493):

Corporation.—A public corporation, operated without profit. The entire capital stock, which is nominal, has been subscribed by the National Association of Owners of RR. Securities and will be deposited with the Secretary of the Treasury.

Description.—The initial certificates were issued in two series, not to exceed $30,000,000 each, maturing in 15 years in 30 semi-annual payments. Seven railroads or systems (see below) were to be included.

Class of Certificates.—The Certificates of each series are divided into (a) Prior Lien and (b) Deferred Lien Certificates. Trustee, Guaranty Tr. Co. on conditional sales basis; Bankers Trust Co. on lease basis.

The Prior Lien Certificates are prior in lien, bear int. at rate of 7% and will be taken by life insurance companies and investment institutions to the extent of 60% of the present issue of each series.

Deferred Lien Certificates to the extent of 40% bearing int. at 6% will be issued to secure the Government loans to the Service Corporation as the terms to each carrier are approved by the I.-S. C. Commission.

Security, &c.—The Deferred Lien Certificates are deferred both as to principal and interest to the Prior Lien Certificates in the hands of investors. A contingent fund and a sinking fund are provided under the trust agreements, which, with the carrier contracts are to be administered by the Corporation and the corporate trustees. As additional security to the Certificates, each carrier deposits with the trustee its notes for the purchase or rental of the equipment.

Railroads Included in Present Series.—The carriers which were to be included in one or the other of the initial series were as follows (compare V. 113, p. 183; V. 112, p. 1144, 372, 62):

| Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Ry. | New Orl. Tex. & Mex. (V.112,p.1144) |
| Bangor & Aroostook Ry. | Wheeling & Lake Erie Ry. |

In Nov. 1921 there had actually been issued (a) on the conditional sales basis $6,580,000 Prior Lien and $6,179,000 Deferred Lien Ctfs., and these had been created for the B. & O., N. O. Tex. & Mex. and Bangor & Aroostook; (b) on lease basis an additional amount for Chicago R. I. & Pac., Minn. & St. Louis and Wheeling & Lake Erie, viz., Prior Lien Ctfs., $7,760,000 (excl. $128,000 already paid); deferred lien ctfs., $5,258,730.

RAILROAD WAGES.

On July 20 1920 the U. S. RR. Labor Board, acting under Transportation Act of 1920, granted wage increases to the 2,000,000 railway employees of the United States, retroactive to May 1 1920, which the Board estimated would add approximately $600,000,000 to the pay roll, but which the Association of Railway Executives estimated at $625,921,085, or 21%, but which appears to have aggregated possibly $720,000,000. Increases aggregating about a billion had been demanded. See V. 111, p. 347 to 350, 459, 460; V. 110, p. 2252, 2254, 2624.

On July 1 1921, after careful investigation, the U. S. Labor Board permitted the railroads, aside from the so-called short lines (which are in a class by themselves), to make a wage decrease of about 12%, as against the aforesaid wage advance of May 1 1920. It was estimated that this would effect a saving in the yearly pay-rolls of the roads of $375,000,000. (Compare V. 112, p. 2143 to 2150, 2377; V. 113, p. 33.) While the decrease was duly put in effect, the question whether it should be accepted or should be opposed by a strike was referred by the leaders of the 16 railroad unions to their local organizations (V. 113, p. 149), which, it appears, were quite generally in favor of a strike, both to recover the lost wages and prevent further unfavorable changes in wage or labor conditions.

When, however, it came to the actual declaring of a strike only the four trainmen's brotherhoods and the switchmen's union were prepared to take this step in the face of a strongly adverse sentiment on the part of the public and the Federal Government, and even in the case of these unions, on a number of roads, notably the Pennsylvania Eastern Lines, the necessary 66 2-3% vote was lacking (V. 113, p. 1326, 1706, 1718, 1730 to 1738).

The strike was scheduled to begin in the various sections of the country Oct. 30 to Nov. 5 (V. 113, p. 1735), but it was called off on Oct. 27 after a hearing before the Labor Board, in view of the vote by the latter that it would not take up the matter of wage decreases until all the questions relating to national rules and regulations have been disposed of by it. (V. 113, p. 1849 to 1852, 1943.)

In 1921-22 the national rules were rewritten by the Labor Board on a somewhat more reasonable basis for the shop crafts and maintenance of way men, clerks and station employees, signal men, supervisors, firemen and oilers, train dispatchers, railway express employees, &c., but not for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railroad Conductors, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Switchmen's Union of North America. The efforts of the railroads to get these latter bodies to agree to a wage reduction of about 10% and to submit to various changes in the rules failed in April 1922.

Reductions in wages of shopmen, maintenance of way men, freight car men, signal men, clerks, &c., aggregating approximately $135,000,000 per annum, were announced by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board in May and June last, effective July 1 1922. V. 114, p. 2432, 2541, 2784.

Following the wage reduction, the shop craft organizations went on strike July 1 1922, and for three months thereafter the railroads of the country were seriously handicapped in their operations. V. 115, p. 139. On July 17 1922 about 8,000 stationary firemen, engineers and oilers also were called out. President Harding made strenuous efforts to get the strikers to return to work and held numerous conferences with representatives of the unions and with railway executives. But his proposals for the settlement of the strike of railway shopmen, though accepted Aug. 2 by the employees, fell through, because the carriers rejected the recommendation that the men return to work with their former seniority and other rights unimpaired (V. 115, p. 611, 612). Later in the month, however, many of the roads made individual agreements with their men on the basis of the so-called Baltimore plan or other separate arrangements and where this was not done the strikers in large numbers gradually drifted back, so that by the end of September the strike ceased to be much of a disturbing influence. V. 115, p. 2123, 1596, 1282, 1283.

A preliminary injunction restraining the officials of the Federated Railway Shop Crafts from interfering in any way with the operation of the railroads was granted at Chicago Sept. 23 by Federal District Judge James H. Wilkerson, and later was continued in force. This was an additional aid in breaking up the strike. V. 115, p. 1495, 2123.

The threatened strike of 400,000 maintenance of way men had meanwhile been stayed, E. F. Grable, President of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers, having reached an agreement with the Railroad Labor Board to withhold any strike order until the Board could arrange for a rehearing (V. 115, p. 139, 395). After the rehearing the Labor Board (Oct. 14) granted the employees, represented by the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Station Employees, an increase, effective Oct. 16 1922, of 2 cents an hour over the reduced schedule put in force on July 1 (V. 115, p. 1790).

The rules as revised for the other unions in general add from one to two hours to the eight hours that must be worked at the regular pro rata rate before the punitive extra pay becomes operative.

RAILROAD RATES.

On Nov. 17 1921 the Railroad Executives, in anticipation of a further wage cut of 10%, announced a 10% reduction in rates on farm products for all parts of the country, except New England (and in New England also it was voluntarily accepted by the leading railroads), the old rates to be restored at the end of six months in case the expected lowering of railroad wages had not been accomplished. (V. 113, p. 2154, 2470, 2786.) This move followed numerous and important rate reductions on many products since Aug. 26 1920, when the general advance below described was ordered. The 10% reduction in rates on farm products it was estimated would save shippers about $55,000,000.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission in May 1922 last ordered a horizontal reduction of 10% in rates, effective July 1 1922. For full text of decision see "Chronicle" of May 27 1922, pages 2317 to 2329. In the case of grain, grain products and hay in Western territory the Commission had the previous autumn ordered a freight rate reduction of 16½%, which went into effect Jan. 1 1922. That reduction was allowed to stand without change, the 10% cut not in any way affecting it.

The I.-S. Commerce Commission in July 1920 having placed a valuation of $18,900,000,000 upon the railroad properties, against a book value of $20,040,572,611, undertook to allow them 6% upon the property investment,

(8) Refunding & General Mortgage of 1915 due Dec. 1 1995 (V. 101, p. 1884). The initial $60,000,000 5% bonds of this issue was brought out in Dec. 1915. See below; also V. 101, p. 1884; V. 102, p. 975; V. 103, p. 1989. In June 1919 an additional $15,000,000 and in Nov. 1919 an additional $2,000,000 Series A was pledged as part collateral for $35,000,000 secured gold bonds.

The I.-S. C. Commission in Jan. 1921 authorized the company (1) to issue $3,000,000 Ref. & Gen. Mtge. Series "B" 5% bonds, for the purpose of retiring by exchange an equal amount of Ref. & Gen. Mtge. Series "A" 5% bonds; and (2) to pledge $3,000,000 Ref. & Gen. Mtge. bonds, Series "A;" and $10,000,000 (reduced to $7,000,000 in Aug. 1922) ref. & gen. mtge. bonds, Series "B," as security for its $9,000,000 promissory note to be issued to the Director-General of Railroads. Additional $5,000,000 Series "B" pledged with Govt. to secure $3,000,000 loan. V. 112, p. 468. In Jan. 1921 $3,250,000 was pledged as security to U. S. Nat. Ry. Service Corp. $5,200,000 loan for equipment.

Also covers the passenger and freight terminals in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Chicago and the freight terminals on Staten Island, N. Y., in Cincinnati and Washington, as well as one-half stock interest in the Washington Terminal Co. and one-half ownership of joint yards at Washington. A direct lien upon about 2,297 miles of first track, and a lien, through the deposit of bonds, and in most cases all, and in no case less than 96% of stock, of the co. owning remaining mileage.

Reservation of Bonds.—The mortgage reserves bonds to retire about $282,000,000 prior liens on various parts of the system and the $63,250,000 convertible gold bonds (these last being secured by the new mortgage pari passu with the bonds issued thereunder) and provides for the reservation of bonds for construction, improvements, new equipment and the acquisition, directly or indirectly, of properties and securities. The right is reserved to refund the Prior Lien 3½s into 1st M. 4s of 1898 due 1948, and to extend the due date of the S. W. Div. 3½s to date not later than July 1 1950.

The authorized issue is limited to an amount which, together with all the prior debts of the Railroad Co., after deducting therefrom the bonds reserved under the provisions of the mortgage to retire prior debts at maturity, shall not exceed 3 times the then outstanding capital stock, with the additional limitation that when the aggregate amount of the bonds outstanding and the bonds reserved to retire prior debts shall be $600,000,000, no additional amount of bonds shall thereafter be issued, except the bonds so reserved to retire prior debt, without the further consent of the stockholders of the railroad company, and such additional bonds may be issued only to an amount not exceeding 80% of cost of work done or property acquired.

(9) Toledo-Cincinnati Div. Bonds.—In July 1917, following foreclosure sales, 391 miles of the former Cincinnati Hamilton & Dayton Ry. System was reorganized per plan in V. 102, p. 1059; V. 105, p. 715, 908, as the Toledo & Cincinnati RR. Co., whose outstanding securities ($5,000,000 capital stock, $16,250,500 First & Ref. Mtge. bonds and $20,000,000 Adjustment & Improvement bonds) were then acquired by the B. & O. RR. The aforesaid 390 miles embrace: Main line Cincinnati to Toledo, 201 miles, including 141 miles leased from Dayton & Michigan RR. (a very profitable lease; see caption of that company); Tontogany to North Baltimore, 19 miles; Deshler to Findlay, 18 miles; Hamilton to East Middleton, 13 miles; Piqua to Troy, 9 miles; Dayton to Ironton Jct., 123 miles; other, 8 miles.

The B. & O. RR. having acquired all the securities issued by the Toledo & Cincinnati RR., made a deed of trust covering the same to secure not exceeding $35,000,000 collateral bonds, which are intended ultimately to be made as far as possible a direct lien on this division. Of these new B. & O. bonds, $11,250,500 of 4% and $5,000,000 of 5% were issued forthwith under the plan. The remainder were reserved to retire at maturity or earlier the bonds undisturbed by the plan as shown in table above, or for acquisition of underlying stocks, branch lines, branch line bonds, aid for refunding additions and betterments, or to acquire First & Ref. Mtge. bonds of new company issued therefor. V. 105, p. 2364.

(10) Collat. Bds. (Coal & Coke Ry.)—This $3,000,000 (closed) issue was sold in March 1919 to provide (along with treasury cash) for $5,000,000 1st M. 5s of Coal & Coke Ry., maturing April 1. (See that co.) The new issue is secured by pledge of all the $5,000,000 1st M. 5s of Coal & Coke Ry. due 1924. See V. 108, p. 1273.

(11) The $35,000,000 6% Secured Bonds dated July 1 1919 have as security: $6,065,000 Reading Co. First Pref. stock; $14,265,000 Reading Co. Second Pref. stock; $10,002,555 Reading Co. Common stock; $15,000,000 B. & O. Ref. & Gen. Mtge. 6% bonds, Series "B," and $2,000,000 Series "A," due Dec. 1 1995. The trust indenture provides that the aggregate value of the collateral deposited shall always be maintained at least equal to 125% of bonds outstanding. V. 108, p. 2628; V. 109, p. 71.

The trust indenture provides that the company in each year, beginning July 1 1919, after providing for its fixed charges, will set aside out of net income accruing after that date, not less than $3,500,000 p. ann. until a total of $17,500,000 has been set aside, such sums to be used, from time to time, solely for capital expenditures theretofore made, to pay loans incurred

Reorganization.—On Aug. 29 1916 the Boston & Maine RR. was placed in temporary receivership on account of inability to pay its maturing obligation of nearly $20,000,000. Pres. James H. Hustis was appointed temporary receiver and continued in this position until reorganization and consolidation of the system on Dec. 1 1919.

The reorganization plan (V. 107, p. 1918, 2375, 2474), which became effective Dec. 1 1919, provided as follows:

(1) Consolidation of the Boston & Maine RR. with its seven directly leased lines and the assumption by the consolidated company of all subleases and other obligations.

(2) Payment in cash of principal and back interest of all matured obligations of the eight consolidating companies.

(3) Payment in cash of back interest on unmatured bonds and debentures of the consolidating companies, these being left as original or assumed obligations of the Boston & Maine RR.

(4) Exchange of stock of consolidating leased lines on which dividends had been paid as rentals for like amounts of Boston & Maine Cumulative First Preferred stocks, the latter to be issued in series with dividends corresponding to the dividends on the old leased line stocks, but for a period of 5 years these dividends to be paid at 20% less than the normal rates.

(5) Preferred stock of the Boston & Maine remains undisturbed, except that it is subordinated as to dividends but not as to principal to the First Preferred stock, and the regular 6% rate reduced to 4% for the period of 5 years. However, it has been stipulated that the dividend on this stock must be paid if earned.

(6) The Common stock of the Boston & Maine is undisturbed, but is to receive no dividends for a period of 5 years, except under conditions mentioned below. In case of liquidation all three classes of stock are to share equally in assets after providing for obligations and accumulated dividends on the First Preferred and Preferred stocks.

(7) The money necessary to pay off the matured obligations was obtained by the selling of $19,879,000 bonds to the U. S. Govt., these bonds being secured by the consolidated properties under a mortgage which equally secures all the outstanding bonds of the consolidated companies, except that $8,338,000 bonds of the consolidated companies which previously have been secured by mortgages retain these mortgages, which are senior in lien on the divisions covered to the lien of the new general mortgage.

(8) The agreement in respect to the reduction of Preferred dividends and non-payment of Common dividends during 5 years is modified by the provision that if during the period of 5 years the company shall sell $12,000,000 6% First Preferred stock at par and apply the proceeds in the reduction of debt to the Government, restrictions in respect to Boston & Maine Pref. and Common stocks shall lapse, but curtailment of dividends on the First Preferred stocks shall continue.

(9) The amounts earned for the stocks and not paid out on account of the reduction in dividend on the Pref. stock and the omitting of dividends on the Common are to be paid to a trustee to be applied in the purchase from the Government of the bonds it takes for its advances or invested in impts. V. 107, p. 1918, 2375, 2474.

Payments.—On Dec. 1 1919 announcement was made that the notes of the Boston & Maine RR., Connecticut River RR. and Fitchburg RR. would be paid with accrued interest; the notes of the Vermont Valley RR. purchased at par and accrued interest, and the overdue coupons of the Boston & Maine RR. and St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain RR. paid. V. 109, p. 2171.

CAPITAL STOCK.—First Pref., authorized, $50,817,900, of which $12,000,000 is reserved to retire $12,000,000 of new bonds. Issued, $38,817,900. Pref. only as to divs. (see paragraph 4 above). Preferred and Common stocks (see paragraphs 5 and 6 above). The Boston RR. Holding Co. holds $21,918,900 Common and $654,300 Preferred stock, and this has been ordered by the Court to be sold by Oct. 1 1922. V. 108, p. 2122

BONDS.—In exchange for the $19,879,060 advanced by the Government the company issued $17,606,060 5% bonds payable July 1 1920 and $2,273,000 6% bonds payable Jan. 1 1929. The 5% bonds due July 1 1920 were refunded by a like amount of 6% bonds payable Jan. 1 1929, purchased by the Director General of Railroads.

The new 1st & ref. mtge. secures all of the consolidated company's bonds equally with the bonds given to the Government, and will cover all the property owned or hereafter acquired, subject only to the following divisional mortgage bonds: Portsmouth Great Falls & Conway RR., due June 1 1937, $1,000,000; Worcester Nashua & Rochester RR., $1,265,000 ($735,000 due Jan. 1 1930, $380,000 due Oct. 1 1934, $150,000 due Jan. 1 1935); Troy & Boston RR., due July 1 1924, $573,000. Bonds are to be issued in series. (See table at head of page.)

Proceeds of the $4,000,000 mortgage gold bond 6% bonds sold in Nov. 1922 are to be used toward the retirement of obligations maturing in Jan. and May 1923, amounting to $3,991,000, viz.: $2,000,000 Boston & Maine RR. 3½s, due January 1923; $969,000 Connecticut River RR. 3½s, due January 1923; $250,000 Boston & Lowell RR. 3½s, due May 1923; $772,000 Vermont & Massachusetts 3½s, due May 1923. CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.—(See Map.)

In 1919 a company under the name of "Canadian National Railway Company" was incorporated by the Dominion Govt. with the intention of having that company take over and operate the railways owned or controlled by the Govt. This company was organized in Oct. 1922 and it is expected that before long the Government-owned and controlled lines will be entrusted to it for operation as a consolidated system. At the present time these lines, aggregating about 22,200 miles, are being operated as the Canadian National Railways, as to 17,400 miles, and as the Grand Trunk System as to 4,800 miles.

In May 1920 Wm. A. Read & Co., New York, offered $15,000,000 7% equipment trust gold certificates, dated May, 1920, and due May 1 1935.

Semi-annual payments of $500,000 each beginning Nov. 1 1920 must be used by the trustee to purchase certificates at or under par, if obtainable. At the end of each six months any unexpended balance must be used at the direction of the railway to purchase either certificates or Canadian Government obligations due before the maturity date of the certificates. Certificates may be purchased at a premium and tendered by the railway company to the trustee, under the foregoing provisions.

In Nov. 1918 an Order-in-Council was passed transferring the management and operation of all the other Government railways, in Canada to the board of directors which had been appointed to manage the Canadian Northern Ry. system.

In June 1919 the Canadian National Ry. was incorporated at the instance of the Canadian Government, which owns its entire capital stock, to operate all the Government-owned lines. On June 30 1919 the title to the physical property of the Canadian Northern Ry. Co. and its subsidiaries was still vested in the several original companies, and they were directly liable for their bonds though Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railway, on June 30 informed the Canadian House of Commons that if the net earnings of the Canadian Northern Ry. are insufficient to pay the bond interest the Government had arranged to provide for such interest for the current fiscal year.

DOMINION CONTROL AND LOANS.—In 1914 the Canadian Government guaranteed $45,000,000 of 4% debentures and took over an additional $33,000,000 of the capital stock over the $7,000,000 previously acquired. In 1918 the balance of the $100,000,000 was acquired. The total capital stock is now $100,000,500 of which $500 is outstanding in the hands of public. V. 106, p. 2344; V. 107, p. 1191; V. 108, p. 1822; V. 98, p. 1600, 1607, 1918

In 1917, under Act of the Canadian Parliament, the Government advanced to the roads of the system $25,000,000 with which to meet coupons and other maturing obligations (V. 105, p. 496, 996, 1207, 2271, 2364; V. 106, p. 2344. In 1918 further agreed to assist the company by guaranty of principal and interest, in renewing or postponing maturing obligations of the system. V. 106, p. 1796, 2223. Also in 1918 voted to grant a further loan of $25,000,000. Compare V. 106, p. 2559, 2344, 2336, 2223

CAPITAL STOCK.—Of the $125,000,000 cap. stock as increased in 1914, $25,000,000 was issuable only in exchange for Income Charge Stock, the right to exchange expiring Jan. 1 1922. V. 98, p. 1600; V. 100, p. 393; V. 105, p. 996.

DEBT.—The $45,000,000 debenture stock was guaranteed in 1914, principal and int., by the Dominion Govt. under plan outlined in V. 98, p. 1600, 1607, 1918. In June 1917 $44,866,667 of this issue had been disposed of as follows: Sold in 1914 and 1915, $17,033,333 (£3,500,000); pledged with Dominion Govt. against advance of $10,000,000 Dominion notes, $12,500,000; pledged as part security for 2-year 6% notes for $11,500,000, $15,333,333. See also V. 102, p. 1982; V. 99, p. 269, 341, 536, 747, 1129, 1450; V. 100, p. 307, 1591.

1920 the U. S. Supreme Court sustained most of the Government's charges. The plan for the disposal by the company of all the stock of the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Co. owned or controlled by it (as embodied in the dissolution decree of the Reading Co. dated Feb. 14 1921), provided that the stock be disposed of within six months after entry of the decree or previous to any other later date which may be fixed by the Court. Announcement was made on Nov. 17 1921 that the company had sold its 169,788 shares of Coal Co. stock to a syndicate for $32,500,000. See V. 114, p. 737, 946, 2578; V. 115, p. 182, 644, 868; V. 113, p. 1982, 2184, 2719; V. 112, p. 743, 2641; V. 101, p. 1464, 1807; V. 110, p. 1816. Full Crew Law, V. 105, p. 1897, 2093.
